Hit the Man, Not the Pig.
Oil in Florida.
The Death Enforcer.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI, FLA., Dec. 21—There is a great deal of little news. In California, Governor Rolph pardons 129 convicted of bootlegging. The people voted against prohibition. Vox populi, vox Dei. "The voice of the people is the voice of God," and Governor Rolph says that is more important than the voice of prohibition.

Prof. Kraus, who teaches philosophy in City College of New York, has changed his mind about killing himself by fasting, because nobody does anything about attacks on Jews in Poland.

He, philosophically, concludes that he couldn't improve conditions in Poland by dying of hunger. A living professor is better than a dead martyr.

Another railroad in the hands of a receiver. This one is the Central of Georgia Railway Company, belonging 100 per cent to the Illinois Central Railway. Apparently the ownership was not profitable, in these times.

A receivership is no disgrace now, to escape it is a distinction like being a survivor of the Charge of the Light Brigade.

A strange story from Duluth, Minn., about two men who agreed to steal a pig. One was to drive the pig out through a little trap door, the other standing with an axe was to hit the pig, when it appeared.

One man crawled in, but the pig was not there. He crawled out of the little door and his friend, waiting, hit him in the neck with the axe. It was a nervous blow and he will recover. Any clergyman can find a moral in that story.

Mr. Larkin Cleveland's Herald, published in De Funiak Springs, Fla., carries on its front page the line, "Liked by many, cussed by some, and read by everybody," believes that oil will soon be found at De Funiak Springs.

An important member of the Standard Oil crowd believed that there is oil in Florida, that the deposits must run eastward from Mexico under the Gulf, and below the surface of Florida. After spending two or three hundred thousand dollars trying to find it, he decided that the oil was too far down. If oil is there, as it probably is, somebody will find it. But don't buy oil stocks hastily.

In the British House of Commons an indignant member discovers that Tabasco sauce, used in the House restaurant, is made in Louisiana, U. S. A. Promptly the House agrees to throw out the "Yankee" concoction and substitute something British.

Meanwhile, some Americans continue to emphasize the superiority of British goods, doing all they can to finance British labor and commerce.

Crime incident in Chicago. Four policemen raided seven gangsters, presumably talking business, on the fifth floor of an office building.

They surrendered meekly, but police failed to recognize Frank Nitti, on whom reporters have bestowed the picturesque title, "Death Enforcer of the Boss."

Mr. Nitti put a piece of paper in his mouth, chewed violently and tried to swallow. Policeman Lang dashed at Nitti to save the secret, Nitti started firing. Lang was a better shot. Three bullets in Nitti's abdomen, one in the spine, will make it necessary to choose another "death enforcer."

Again this year the Russian government will "ignore Christmas Day," and Christmas Day, surviving the ignoring process, will be celebrated by millions in Russia as elsewhere, when those that now decide to ignore Christmas will have been long forgotten.

Religions die, when their time has passed, and a better one appears, but you can't kill them.

That is proved by the failure of various religions to kill off their rivals. Religion itself can never die, since it is the expression of man's desire to know, what he can never know.

Light is shed on bootlegging and racketeering profits by the fact that Mr. Nitti has recently served 14 months in Leavenworth Prison for failing to pay Uncle Sam any income tax on his three years' share of "Capone profit," amounting to $842,888. You can imagine how much the "big shots" must have collected if an understrapper gets $300,000 a year, and are not surprised that in our prohibition-depression-crime era the income of the criminal classes is greater than that of the United States government.

That is not the fault of prohibition, but due to the fact that prohibition did not work out as expected, because you cannot change human nature by the law in this country, any more

In the men's ward, the mayor played his annual game of forty five for the championship, which, by the way, he never wins, and distributed special gifts of money to his opponents.

JIGS FOR ILL WOMEN

The mayor was accompanied by his son, Francis, who delivered several poems as his share of the entertainment.

At the dedication of the recreation building the Rev. Louis J. Hallowell, chaplain of the island, offered prayer. Joseph A. Singarella, who built it, also spoke briefly.

Following dinner, the mayor visited the chapel he built in memory of his wife.

DEMAND MADE FOR BURNS

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21 (AP)—John I. Kelley, assistant Attorney-General of Georgia, made formal demand of Governor Moore today to extridate Robert Elliott Burns, chain gang fugitive, to Georgia.

Kelley, accompanied by Warden Harold Hardy of Troup County, Ga., presented requisition papers signed by Governor Russel of Georgia.

Burns was brought from Newark and taken to the Governor's office handcuffed to a deputy sheriff.

Flames were discovered early today leaping simultaneously from this mansion and from the summer home of Mrs. Hilda Ginn of New York, situated only a short distance away.

The Harwich fire department succeeded in saving part of the Ginn structure but the Duris home, on a hill overlooking the sea, was a total loss. Damage to both structures is estimated at about $25,000.

BOTH HOUSES CLOSED

Both fires apparently were set, according to Fire Chief George M. Moody, as both houses had been closed for the winter.

Mrs. Ginn is the former Hilda Merchant of Gloucester and Hyannis and well known in musical and amateur theatrical circles on Cape Cod. In August, 1928, she sued Dr. D. Clifton Ginn, Hyannis dentist, for divorce.

President Hoover and His War Debt Whirl

THE country would have been grateful to President Hoover if he had been able to possess his spirit in patience for the few remaining weeks of his administration and keep his hands off the war debts.

With a haste and flutter that clearly reveal the disarray of his thought and his confusion of purpose, he has sent a special message to Congress which is a sorry melange of contradictory, ill-considered and undigested proposals.

Reminding himself that Congress refused to authorize the creation of a debt commission to deal with the European war debts en bloc, he announces that he proposes to proceed, despite Congress, to do the very thing which it refused to authorize.

Thus having whirled himself completely around once, he proceeds to whirl himself around again.

THE mischief which seems inherent in whatever President Hoover proposes is shown in the statement to Parliament by former Prime Minister Baldwin that the United States government had agreed to undertake with Great Britain a joint examination of the whole question of war debt payments.

Of course, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT has done nothing of the kind, and if we understand the attitude of President-elect Roosevelt he intends no recommendation to that effect when his party succeeds the present administration.

It seems Mr. Hoover's fate, in whatever he attempts, to contribute new complications to every problem. Particularly has this been true of the problem as to the debts, which is the direct out-

Russell Noble to Sing in Prison Choir

How will they celebrate Christmas in The World Apart—the state prison in Charlestown?

The answer will probably surprise you

In the morning the 900 convicts will attend either one of two divine services officiated over by Fr. Farrell and the Rev. Whitney, the chaplains.

A choir of 20 prisoners, led by Phil Thorpe, violin-playing lifer, and including Russell Noble, Haverhill boy hammer slayer, will sing Christmas carols at both services.

The Christmas menu will be noodle soup, roast pork with stuffing, mashed potatoes, squash, cup custard, Christmas bread and coffee. Warden Hogsett, who announced it, didn't define "Christmas bread."

From the dinner table each prisoner will take an extra helping of bread to his cell and at four o'clock in the afternoon tea will be served to the men in the cells.

4 P. C. BEER WINS FIRST FIERY TEST IN HOUSE

Move to Cut Alcohol to 2.75 Loses; Bill Vote Late Today

Washington, Dec. 21 (INS)—The House today rejected an amendment to the Collier beer bill reducing the permitted alcoholic percentage from 3.2 to 2.75 per cent. The vote was [illegible] for and 124 against.

The amendment was offered by Representative Mich[illegible] (R.) of Michigan as the proposal of the "moist" group of the House.

The vote, however, could not [illegible] construed as a test of the attitude of the House on final passage. Many drys joined in voting against 2.75 per cent beer on the ground that they had a better chance to kill the bill with the 3.2 percentage in it.

The House also approved the $5 a barrel tax recommended by the ways and means committee.

Pleas for 2.75 per cent beer were made by Michener and Rep. Wood, Indiana, both Republican leaders.

They declared that 3.2 per cent beer was plainly intoxicating, while Wood asserted the Supreme Court would uphold 2.75 per cent beer.

WINS EARLIER TEST

The standing vote showed the House badly mixed on the issue with wets and drys on both sides.

This was regarded as the big fight on the bill during the amendment stage and forecast a final decision on the measure before adjournment today.

Earlier the 3.2 per cent bill triumphed 163 to 118, on the motion of Rep. Sirovich (D.), New York, to strike out the enacting clause—a motion which the drys would not let him withdraw after he made it merely to get the right to make a five-minute speech.

The militant dryh were quick to take advantage of the action of Sirovich, who wanted to answer ridicule of his statement as a physician and scientist that beer and milk have the same nutritional qualities.

The mild-mannered Sirovich, has

BRITAIN OPPOSES FRENCH-U. S. DEBT ARBITRATION

PARIS LOOKS TO ROOSEVELT REGIME FOR REAL ACTION

Paris, Dec. 21 (AP)—Great Britain will informally counsel France against pursuing an idea under consideration by officials here of having the question of payment of the December interest on the American debt submitted to arbitration, according to reports in diplomatic circles.

It is stated that the British feel this would not in the long run contribute to successful settlement of the debt problem and that resort to arbitration would be undesirable because it would be founded on the presumption that the question cannot be settled through the regular diplomatic channels.

GENERAL PARLEY SOUGHT

However, the British are said to be strong for the French idea that a general conference for general negotiations should be adopted for treating the debts.

The general situation lined up today about as follows:

First, the French attitude is to keep negotiations with America actively going.

Second, eventually to try to move towards a Franco-American study of the debts by experts of the two countries.

Third, a move toward a general conference.

Fourth, the likelihood that France expected nothing vital could be accomplished before the advent of the Roosevelt administration.

Fifth, the likelihood that the government would not attempt for several months to get a new vote from the Chamber of Deputies on payment of the December interest.

The American embassy already had established contact with the new Cabinet on the debts question.

MARRINER IN ACTION

Theodore Marriner, counsellor to the embassy, was received today by M. Cot, under-secretary of state in the foreign ministry.

It was reported in chamber and diplomatic circles that the Paul-Boncour cabinet will make changes in the French diplomatic corps and that this is likely to affect Washington, a new ambassador arriving there about the time of Roosevelt's inauguration.

Millions in Gold on Way to U. S.

Cherbourg, France, Dec. 21 (AP)—The liner Majestic is sailing today with 139 cases of gold valued approximately at $3,500,000 consigned to American banks.

A large shipment of gold from the British Government in payment of the December 15 war debt interest also was reported to be aboard the Majestic.

Hoover Plans to Name Commission This Week

Washington, Dec. 21—Gov. Roosevelt having definitely refused to cooperate in organizing a commission to examine war debt revision, disarmament and world economics, President Hoover has determined to go ahead alone for negotiations.

Intimations were given the President has already sent messages to men he hopes to appoint to the board.

Among those mentioned are Norman H. Davis, Democrat, who has been carrying out missions in Europe for the President; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker, and Senator Reed (R.), of Pennsylvania.

President-elect Roosevelt on the other hand, in working out his own program to put in effect after March 4 is expected to name Owen D. Young for the leading role in the negotiations under the Roosevelt program.

500,000 ALIENS BARRED BY U. S. DURING SLUMP

Feared They Would Become Public Charges

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Secretary Stimson today reported to President Hoover that as a result of emergency bars against immigration, over 500,000 aliens who normally would have entered the United States "during the economic depression" have been held out.

The Secretary of State reported this result had been accomplished through the enforcement of existing provisions of law, principally the clause excluding persons "likely to become a public charge."

Breaking down his total into smaller figures, Stimson said that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, only 12,697 quota immigration visas were issued as compared with the total annual quotas of 153,831.

In addition, he said, there was a reduction in the number of aliens not subject to quota limitations from 45,999 during the previous fiscal year to 24,040 during the past year.

As compared with the 107,469 non-quota aliens who entered the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, he pointed out, the reduction last year was one of 77.6 per cent.

SURPRISE RAID ON SURPRISE INN GETS 15

Dice Players Seized by Troopers Pay $10 Fines Each

The dice were rolling their eyes across a table, bets were being shouted and bills changing hands as rapidly as the "bones," clicked in Surprise Inn, Humarock, early today when all of a sudden there was the sound of doors being battered in.

And to the surprise of 15 men gathered around the table, 16 state troopers rushed into the room. One o fthe number shouted "Surprise party—you're all under arrest."

And so they all were. Surprised and arrested on a charge of being present where gaming implements were found. In Hingham court today, the 15 men paid fines of $10 each.

The raid was the second staged in a week by state troopers in their drive to clean up alleged South Shore gambling resorts. On Saturday eight men were arrested in Duxbury.

GIRL'S CHARGE TRAPS OFFICER

J. Irving Connolly, 31, special policeman and real estate dealer of Viles st., Weston, was held in Waltham court today for the grand [illegible] with attacking Miss [illegible]oln, 27, of Fayette st., [illegible] waived examination [illegible]eld in $5000 by Judge [illegible] Connolly. Miss Lincoln was in court, but was not required to testify.

Police charged the alleged attack occurred on Dec. 11 as Connolly and Miss Lincoln were returning from a party. They stopped at his real estate office in South st., Weston, into which, it was charged, he dragged the girl.

She told her story to Dist. Atty. Bishop the following day, and an investigation by State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil resulted in Connolly's arrest.

Funeral Held for Malcolm H. Eaton

CODE GUILTY IN GOLD SHIP DEAL

Ralph J. Code, of Masefield st., Mattapan, was today found guilty of larceny of $325 from Carlisle O. Byrd, of Waco, Tex., in connection with the now famous $7,000,000 mystery ship deal. Byrd claims kinship with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Code was placed on probation by Judge Devlin with the understanding restitution would be made. Byrd gave the money to Code with the understanding it was to finance an airplane flight from New York to Bermuda where a mysterious "Mr. G" would arrange for the entrance into Canada of $7,000,000 in gold supposedly aboard a ship off Nova Scotia.

Whether he was too vain or too timid to follow a constitutional course at that time, the fact remains that all the subsequent confusion, misunderstanding and bad feeling were the inevitable result of President Hoover's refusal to convoke Congress and to submit his recommendations, if he felt them justified by the emergency, TO THE ONLY BODY WHICH COULD GIVE THEM AUTHORITY AND VALIDITY.

THE "cart before the horse" policy which the President at that time preferred, and seems still to prefer, will continue to expose him to censure abroad and repudiation at home.

It is time for Mr. Hoover to have done with this subject altogether.

The country regards him as the author of its embarrassments in this connection. They wish his blundering and maladroit administration to cease from troubling itself and from troubling them with its ill-conceived and futile approaches to this problem.

The people themselves will work out the solution of it, as well as their other problems, without the doubtful aid of Mr. Hoover, and without the guidance of an administration whose authority has been cancelled, which has been stripped of all actual power except in perfunctory matters of routine, and which has no support, either Congressional or public, on any question whatever of major policy.

Sirovich's exhibit rankled Rep. Blanton of Texas, who ordered "all that poppycock" removed while he was speaking in opposition to the bill.

WIFE NO. 2 BLOCKS BURGESS' SALE OF SHARE IN FORTUNE

ACTS TO GUARD LOSS OF HER ALIMONY

The plea of his second wife, the former Rosamond Tudor of Brookline, that her alimony was being paid out of W. Starling Burgess interest in the will of the late Cordelia W. Burgess of Boston, blocked an attempt to sell this interest today in New Haven, Ct.

Burgess, designer of the America Cup defender Enterprise, formerly of Beverly and Marblehead, where he designed and flew some of the earliest airplanes, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy at Bridgeport in November a year ago.

On petition of creditors, John Keogh, of Norwalk, Ct., referee, ordered that Burgess' interest in the Cordelia W. Burgess will be sold, but Federal Judge Hincks set aside this order today, declaring the question to be beyond the referee's jurisdiction.

The former Rosamond Tudor, who married Burgess at Marblehead in 1904 and divorced him in May, 1925, argued successfully that if the interest were sold she would be deprived unlawfully of her alimony.

Burgess is now married to the former Miss Elsie Janet Foss of Sandwich, N. H., as his fourth wife. She also was his third wife, the couple having been first married in New York in November, 1925, and subsequently divorced.

SALEM HEIRESS MANILA BRIDE

A romance that reached half way around the world for its principals resulted in the wedding today, at Manila, P. I., of a wealthy Salem girl and an official of the government of Hanoi, French Indo-China.

Alice Gilbert Smith, daughter of J. Foster Smith, mill owner, of Salem and Wenham, became the bride of Capt. Jean Lucien Bourgoing, French Army captain, and son of Gen. Paul Bourgoing, commander of the Legion of Honor at Amiens. The Bishop of the Philippines, Rt. Rev. Governeur Mosher, officiated before a brilliant gathering at the island capital.

Capt. Philip Morton Smith, U. S. A., and Boston architect, a brother of the bride, gave her away. Robert S. Pickens, recently of the Associated Press staff at Washington, was best man and Mrs. Pickens matron of honor.

After a honeymoon trip through China and Japan Capt. and Mrs. Bourgoing will live in Hanoi.

The romance began about two years ago when Capt. Bourgoing visited a friend of the Smith family in Salem and continued despite the fact that its principals often were separated by half the distance around the earth. The bride, a graduate of Smith College.

Col. Herbert died in Honolulu Dec. 4.

Finger Put on Starfish and State Scallop Crop Is Safe

The starfish may not realize it yet, but any fourther attempts on their part to wipe out the Massachusetts scallops will be merely a futile gesture because a very serious finger has been put on them.

Two years ago millions of starfish invaded the scallop beds along the Cape Cod shores and threatened to wipe them out altogether. So swiftly and suddenly did the attack come that the value of the crop declined from its normal $2,000,000 last year, and shrunk down this season to but $350,000.

Today, however, it was announced by Director Raymond J. Kenney of the State Division of Fisheries and Game, that a long study and battle, which reached its peak last summer, has been successful, and the seed scallops are beginning to show up again.

Thousands of dollars have been paid to fishermen who have brought ashore millions of starfish

Mussolini Will Erect New Capitol

Rome, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Mussolinian state will dwell with its past in a monumental building to be erected in the new Street of the Empire. Leading Fascist architects have been invited to submit plans for the edifice. It will house the Fascist party headquarters and a museum for recording the history of the movement now ten years old.

Cuts Urged in All School Budgets

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt's State budget advisory committee, composed of representatives of 20 business and civic organizations, has recommended heavy cuts in educational appropriations and curtailment of the State payroll as principal items in a program for "drastic" reduction of the New York budget for 1933-34.

FOLLIES GIRL TELLS SECRETS TO JURYMEN

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Dec. 21 (INS)—Popular girls don't wear slips. They don't eat bread and butter. They don't own pink silk pajamas.

These glamorous details of life in a luxurious New York hotel were supplied by Peggy Lawton Rich, whose husband's suit for divorce goes to the jury today. Jack De Ruyter, Park ave. playboy, is named corespondent.

LIFE IS JUST A BOWL

The details were given in an effort to make 12 good men and true understand how desolate existence can be when the husband—Freddie Rich, radio orchestra favorite—puts you out.

Freddie's detectives and a friend testified they saw Peggy in bed in the wee sma' hours of May 14th, wearing a white slip. This could not have been, because Peggy has no white slip. They also said Jack De Ruyter was there.

WAITING FOR A STREET CAR

Peggy says he was in the next room with another man, Gustave Steinacher, Columbia student.

"Slips are petticoats," Peggy, a Follies girl, explained to the pop-eyed jurors. "I don't own a petticoat. Just underthings pleated from the waist down. I don't believe any popular girl wears slips any more. It's just not in style."

The bread and butter episode was a matter of health, not fashion. Rich's lawyer, David Haar, was trying to show that there were two orders of bread and butter for three persons, according to Mrs. Rich's story that both Steinacher and De Ruyter were present on the night of the raid.

NO BUTTER AND EGG GIRL

"But I never eat bread and butter. I've been on a diet for a year," said Mrs. Rich, sweetly.

She was a very unhappy girl when De Ruyter met her by chance in a hotel lobby, and she asked him to call. De Ruyter sympathized with the poor little creature, and naturally she was grateful. But never did she entertain him wearing pink pajamas, she asserted. A waiter said she wore them, but—like white slips—she wouldn't own own a pair.

BLOWS HOT AND COLD

On the night when a raiding party found the playboy in his shirtsleeves, the weather bureau says it was raining, the temperature was 53 and it was getting colder from 9:30 p. m. on. De Ruyter testified that it was warm and that he took off his coat, vest and collar for comfort.

Languorous Peggy denied that she ever told reporters that she was engaged to De Ruyter. She was quoted last March as saying:

She also denied sporting a diamond engagement ring and saying that Jack gave it to her.

Attorneys for Rich called several rebuttal witnesses to corroborate previous testimony that Peggy and Jack were served meals morning, noon and night in Mrs. Rich's hotel suite.

FILM ROMANCE WRECKED BY CLASHES

The marriage of Janet Gaynor, film beauty, and Lydell Peck, regarded by many as the ideal Hollywood couple, has crashed and all due to "clashes of temperament." The separation of the couple was revealed by attorneys, who declared that there had been no discussion of divorce in connection with the separation. Miss Gaynor and Peck were married in September, 1929. (International News Photo.)

GETS NEW TRIAL PLEADS GUILT

After having obtained a new trial and denied complicity in the robbery of the Everett News Co., Pasquale Sarni, 19, of Everett ave., Chelsea, suddenly pleaded guilty in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today.

Judge Thomas J. Hammond sentenced him to an indefinite term in Concord Reformatory, as compared to 8 to 15 years imposed following his first trial.

In deciding today's sentence Judge Hammond considered that Sarni had served almost 15 months and that he had no previous record.

The Everett News Co. was held up and robbed of $860 on Dec. 21, 1930. Sarni was one of those convicted, but obtained a new trial on the ground of new evidence.

It opened yesterday and Sarni denied having had any part in the robbery. He produced as a witness Joseph W. Romanovicz, 19, also of Everett, who is serving the longest term in specified years ever imposed in this state, 77 to 120 years. Romanovicz testified he and others perpetrated the robbery but said Sarni was not involved.

Mrs. Bridget Saville, 69, Dies in Her Home

Mrs. Bridget Saville, 69, of West Quincy, died today at her home, 80 Dayton st. She leaves three daughters, a son and brother, Lieut. Thomas H. Malone of the Quincy police department. The funeral will be held Friday with solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, and burial in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Yule Parade to Be Guarded by State

Every state trooper on the roster, who is physically able, will be on highway duty throughout the state on Christmas Eve to safeguard the motoring public heading home for the two-day holiday, it was announced today by Capt. Charles T. Beaupre, commanding the constabulary.

A special watch will be kept for speeders and for drivers under the influence of liquor, Capt. Beaupre said, the road conditions, because of ice and snow, being more precarious than usual.

On Christmas Day, one-third of the personnel of 260 men, or as near one-third as can be arrived at, will be allowed to go home for the Christmas celebration, but every man must be back at barracks by Monday night.

Under the rule of the constabulary, one-third of the men are allowed home on Thanksgiving, one-third at Christmas and a third at New Year's. Meanwhile, all days off of the men not excused have been cancelled from Friday night to Monday night.

JANET GAYNOR LEAVES MATE

Hollywood, Dec. 21 (US)—"Clashes of temperament" have wrecked the ideal Hollywood romance, it is revealed with formal announcement of the separation of Janet Gaynor, screen star, and her husband, Lydell Peck, film producer.

There has been no discussion of a divorce, it was stated, but the separation took place last week and is definite.

The couple were married September 11, 1929. Shortly after the marriage, Peck gave up his law practice in Oakland, Cal., and became first a scenario writer for Paramount and then an associate producer for Fox.

Miss Gaynor is under contract to Fox.

Pershing's Brother Has Heart Stroke

LABOR BALKS AT ELY'S MOVE

Gov. Ely's move to relax on Massachusetts labor laws in order to compete with Southern states received a setback today in a letter from the Massachusetts Department, American Federation of Labor.

The letter, mailed by Robert J. Watt, secretary-treasurer, said the state branch was opposed to any such move.

Law Holds Woman Born 124 Years Ago Is Still Alive

Most folk would figure that a woman who was born 124 years ago and who disappeared 92 years ago would be dead by now. But not the law.

Mary Feehan, then 24, sailed from Kilkenny, Ire., for India in 1840

A brother, Patrick, died in this country in 1887, leaving an estate of $1250. Although he hadn't heard from his sister, he had faith she was alive, and he bequeathed his money to her.

Recently other relatives applied for the estate. Surrogate Wingate denied the application, saying:

"Mary Feehan departed deliberately to take residence thousands of miles away. There has been no investigation of her disappearance or her home in India. It has been the legal assumption that a missing person not communicating with his home in seven years may be considered legally dead.

"But this Mary Feehan had taken a new home in India, so that assumption does not apply."

CRUISER GIVES WORK TO 1700

Work on the new 10,000-ton cruiser, to be built at Quincy, will start March 1, and will provide work for 1500 men, officials of the Fore River shipyards said today.

The contract came just as one of the big contracts at the yard was nearing completion. It, therefore, assured work for the 200 already employed, in addition to the 1500 additional men to be required.

WEST ROCKED BY QUAKE

San Francisco, Dec. 21 (AP)—A slight earthquake shook virtually the entire western United States, embracing approximately one-fifth of the nation, last night. But the chief damage known was to a bottle of beer thrown from a table in Reno, Nevada, and to the nerves of a half dozen babies awakened in Boise, Idaho. The shocks were light here.

A series of shocks began at 10:10 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time), centering in Nevada, and continued with diminishing intensity until 11:15 o'clock.

Clocks were stopped in cities as widely separated as Salt Lake City, Utah, and Fresno, Calif., but swaying chandeliers, pictures thrown awry, and some crockery broken by falling from shelves were the principal manifestations.

Newton City Workers Face Pay Cut at New Years

Newton city employes will be forced to take a 7½ per cent cut in salary Jan. 1, according to an edict of Mayor Sinclair Weeks, who wants to keep the present tax rate of $25 on the $1000.

Mayor Weeks announced the move at a meeting of department heads. He added that the low cost of commodities meant that no material harm to city employes would result from the cut.

It will mean a saving of $190,000 a year and help materially in maintaining the present tax rate, Mayor Weeks added.

Representatives from labor organizations and the police and fire units were present at the meeting but offered no objection to the cuts.

HALL AND WIFE RECONCILED

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 21 (AP)—James Hall, motion picture actor, arrested here Saturday on a fugitive warrant from New Haven, Ct., charging non-support, announced that he had effected a reconciliation with his wife, Mrs. Irene Hall. He said they planned to leave for New Haven to attempt to have the charge against him there dropped.

JAIL FUGITIVES FLEE IN GARB OF TURNKEY

Augusta, Me., Dec. 21—Guards and turnkeys at Kennebec County jail were called to task today in a probe of the escape of two prisoners, the same two who escaped before within a month.

The phantom pair, William Rafferty, 23, Boston and Portland rum runner, and John Roach, 28, of East Millinocket, a baseball player and auto thief, were attired in clothing of a turnkey when they were seen after the break.

Last month the pair escaped and were captured at Fort Williams, Portland. They told a lurid story of Augusta speakeasies and charged they had easy access to liquor in the county jail here.

Officials are interested principally in the way they obtained the clothing of the turnkey. They are curious too on why the men escaped together in spite of orders that they be held incommunicado since the last escape.

The first that was known of the second escape was a telephone call from an Augusta man, who recognized both men as they drove through Augusta in a roadster. The roadster proved to be stolen.

Maine highway police relayed a police broadcast to Massachusetts in the belief that Rafferty may have headed for Boston with Roach.

NITTI'S GUNMEN PLOT REVENGE

They have threatened reprisals, it was revealed today, and a police guard has been posted at the home of Detective Sergeant Harry Lang, who put four bullets into Nitti.

The guard was stationed at Lang's home when Mrs. Lang was threatened with death by telephone callers, who also threatened to kidnap her 15-year-old son, Sidney.

BODY MOVED AS MANSION BURNS

Greenwich, Ct., Dec. 21 (AP)—The body of Mrs. Helen Redington Adams-Kelly was carried out of her palatial home in the fashionable Belle Haven section today, when fire did $60,000 damage to the building.

Mrs. Adams-Kelly, Greenwich society matron and founder of General Israel Putnam Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, died yesterday at the age of 84 years. Her funeral will take place tomorrow.

Killer Captured by 2 'Old Women'

Their heads bowed, two aged women approached. Suddenly the two bent forms straightened up. They drew revolvers and commanded Bialek to stick 'em up.

Thus was the murderer of Policeman Patrick Madden captured.

FRANK ("THE ENFORCER") NITTI

By BRUCE GRANT
International News Service Special Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

Chicago, Dec. 21 (INS)—Is Chicago's sin, gin and gun-din era at an end? Is gangland making its last great fight for supremacy? Since "Scarface Al" Capone went away for his ten-year sojourn in Atlanta has his gigantic crime syndicate dwindled away into scattered hoodlum gangs? Who controls beer, alcohol and labor—the three major gold-mines of Crime, Inc.? Who are the leaders, if any, of this once all-powerful underworld?

These and many other questions are uppermost in the minds of the millions in the nation's second largest city today as the outcome of the revelations which followed the shooting of Frank ("the Enforcer") Nitti, Capone satrap and reputed head of the Capone mobsters. And, after careful investigation, International News Service will answer them in this and subsequent articles on the status of Chicago's gangland.

GANGS FIGHT FOR LIFE

One thing is certain: Gangland is fighting as it has never fought before to retain its hold on vice and crime. The Century of Progress Exposition, with its millions of visitors is not far off. Plenty of money to be harvested then.

Legalized beer seems a certainty. Loads of money there—if the syndicate can seize the business. And, too, even during these times of depression, the control of alcohol and beer and gambling and more lurid vice has been a paying business.

But it was the approach of the Century of Progress and the challenge gangland flaunted that it would control the flow of legitimate beer that caused Mayor Anton Cermak to issue his drastic decree—WIPE 'EM OUT! He wants Chicago clean when the visitors from all over the world arrive, and as for allowing them to get their hands into the lawful beer trade, he said:

"You can rest assured that no gangsters, racketeers or hoodlums will be licensed to have anything to do with dispensing beer in Chicago. And you can be certain that they will not have licenses to run any breweries either."

The mayor believes there are some 5000 speakeasies and "beer flats" in Chicago. The police say his estimate is low. They claim 10,000. But M. L. Harney, prohibition administrator for the Chicago district, says there are 1942 speakeasies, "beer flats," saloons and other "places of interest" to the prohibition agent. Anyway, they are all run by or supplied by mobsters.

In its canvass of the situation the International News Service has learned without a doubt that Al Capone is still the supreme ruler of the Chicago underworld. His confinement has in no way curtailed his power.

Once, last summer, one of his leaders tried to step from the ranks and take over control. He was George ("Red") Barker, but his life was written out quickly by the sputtering "typewriter." Since then there have been few open claimants to the throne.

Just who assumes control during "Scarface Al's" incarceration is subject to conjecture. Some say Frank Nitti does. But in the skein of speculation there are numerous blood-red threads.

CAPONE'S AIDES LOYAL

For—as in the traditional manner—the succession to a monarch who has no hereditary right may be expected to be accompanied by violence, even though that monarch is in enforced exile. The only present violence is at the hands of the police.

There are, it has been found, those loyal to the dynasty of Capone—those willing to carry on in a humble way while the big shot goes through his lock-step exercises. Nitti is one. Another is Frank Rio, and still another is Ted Newberry, manager-at-large and North Side collector. There are too, William "Klondike" O'Donnell, and "Three-Fingered" Jack White, a labor racketeer, and Murray Humphreys, a power in the syndicate.

All of these, with lesser ones, are working as they worked before, under the direction of Capone, and Capone is getting his cut as he did in former days. How these men operate, what districts they control, and their chances of survival, will be told in future installments.

(The second article in this series will be published tomorrow.)

Let Her Be Executed, Says Widow of Officer Slain by Mrs. Snipes

Rock Hill, S. C., Dec. 21 (AP)—This is the story of two women, one an expectant mother condemned to die for murder, the other a widow with four small children, sentenced to a life of labor to rear them.

The first woman is Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, who shot to death rural Policeman Elliott Harris. The other is Mrs. Eula Harris, widow of the slain York county officer, who believes Mrs. Snipes should die for killing him.

Mrs. Snipes, 29, the mother of the child, expects the birth of another next month. While women and welfare workers plead with Gov. Blackwood to save her from death in the electric chair next April 7, she is sewing baby clothes in the woman's ward of the State penitentiary.

TOOK ALL WE HAD

Mrs. Harris, left with $1000 insurance money and $300 raised in a subscription fund by newspapers when her husband was shot, is studying shorthand and typing in the hope that she may be able to support her children, the eldest of whom is six.

"I feel no elation over Mrs. Snipes' conviction and sentence," Mrs. Harris said, "but I feel if we are to have capital punishment it should be administered to any deserving it—man or woman. She had time to consider it—she took all we had.

"I don't feel that if it were left to me that I would change her sentence. I do not think she regrets her act. I don't see that her becoming a mother should alter the case. I have been a mother four times.

"They say it was not murder. I don't know what it was then. He tried to keep her back eight or ten minutes and then she slipped up and grabbed his gun. She is the only who said he slapped her.

SHOT WHILE HELPLESS

"I know he couldn't have struck her, knowing as I do how kind and generous he was. He would have found some other means of carrying her in.

"She shot him twice, and while he lay on the ground, helpless, she shot him two more times with the bullets which killed him."

In addition to "Abie" Elliott Harris, Jr., six, Mrs. Harris has twins, James Lloyd and Mary Anne, four years old the day their father was buried, and Gettys, a 10-months old boy. She and her children have been making their home here since the officer was shot last July 17.

Mrs. Snipes contends she shot the officer in self-defense.

"I don't think I should die this way," she said as she sat in her cell. "I am not prepared to go this way."

9 HELD IN JAIL DOPE PLOT

Atlanta, Dec. 21 (AP)—A plot with far reaching ramifications for smuggling narcotics and other contrabands into Atlanta federal penitentiary has brought indictments against 11 persons.

The federal grand jury acted on evidence presented by the district attorney's office and narcotic officers who had spent several months trying to catch the conspirators.

TROOPERS SAVE BOY NEAR DEATH

A four-mile race over snow-packed roads by troopers of the Lake Walden barracks accounted today for the recovery of four-year-old William Wright, of Sudbury, a victim of whooping cough.

The boy was carried into Lake Walden barracks by his father last night. He was choking and appeared on the point of suffocation.

Troopers boarded a patrol car with the child and his father and rushed them both to Emerson Hospital, Concord. Dr. R. Fulton Johnston attended the child and relieved him from the spasm. The boy later was taken home.

Hawks, Famed Airman, to Spend Yule in Hospital Here

Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of many speed records, who barely escaped death in Worcester last April, will spend Christmas in a Boston hospital, it was learned today.

At San Antonio, Tex., the famous speed flier said he was bound for here to undergo plastic surgery as a result of a broken nose he suffered in the Worcester crash.

It is expected that he will enter Massachusetts General Hospital, to which he was transferred from Worcester City Hospital after the crash.

ZASU PITTS TO QUIT HOSPITAL

Hollywood, Dec. 21 (AP)—Zasu Pitts, movie commedienne, said that she is going to leave a hospital today because Christmas is so near and so many packages are to be wrapped.

"I could not bear to be in the hospital over Christmas," she said, "and anyhow I feel fine and I want to go home."

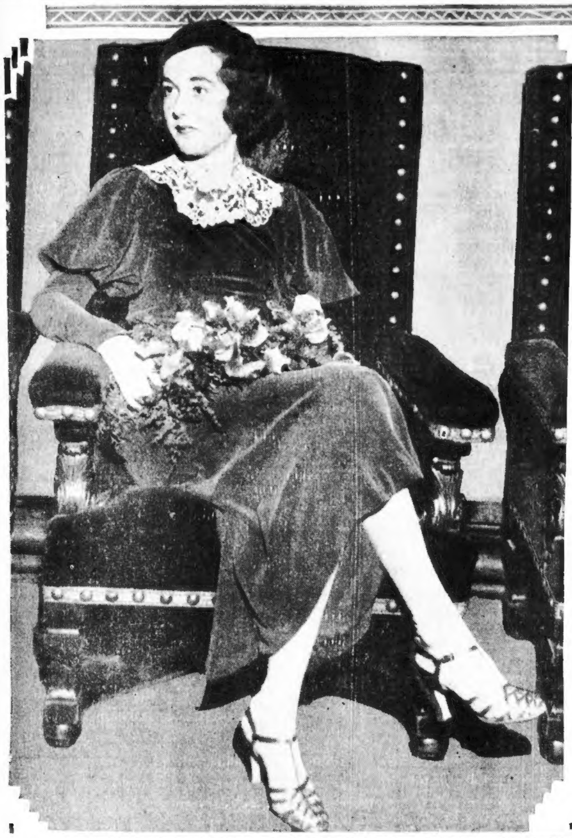
Debuts in Velvet

VIRGINIA WIGHTMAN AND ELIZABETH HOLMES MAKE DEBUTS



MISS HELEN DEAN as she appeared at the Hotel Somerset yesterday when she was introduced to society along with Miss Margaret Nichols at a joint luncheon given by their parents. Miss Dean wore a gown of green velvet trimmed with rare lace and carried a spray of bronze orchids. Her mother, Mrs. William Henry Dean, was gowned in Burgundy crepe.

Joint Luncheon at Country Club for Debs

The Country Club is the scene of a joint luncheon today, being given by Mrs. George William Wightman of Charles st., Brookline, and Mrs. Edwin Pratt Holmes of Holland rd., Brookline, for the formal presentation of their debutante daughters, Miss Virginia Wightman and Miss Elizabeth Holmes, who have both just returned home from college.

Miss Wightman receives in a black and coral gown with hat to match, and wears a corsage of orchids, while her mother chose a wine-colored crepe model, and also has orchids for her corsage. Miss Holmes selected a red-hammered crepe dress trimmed with kolinsky at the neck and sleeves, and a corsage of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley. She is being introduced by Mrs. Holmes in fashionable black velvet, relieved with white lace let in at the sleeves, and a corsage of gardenias.

College Friends

Besides a large number of the season's debutantes, there will be groups of college friends attending the luncheon. Among them are Miss Beryl Dawson of Long Island, Miss Helen Nowell of Winchester, Miss Dorothy Ulrich of Hartford, Ct., Miss Elizabeth Spaulding of Weston, Miss Eleanor Washburn of Newton, Miss Karin Stetson of South Dartmouth, Miss Frances Vaughan of Southbridge, Miss Dorothy Wheeler and Virginia Wyman, all Vassar College friends of Miss Wightman.

Another group include Miss Margery Brown of Winchester, Miss Janet McKinney of Waban, Miss Eleanor Guild of Attleboro, Miss Dorothy Gilbert of Brookline, and Miss Emilie Dreyfus of Boston, all Wellesley College friends of Miss Holmes. Also Miss Nancy Ogilby and Miss Mary Morse both of Brookline, from Smith's College. Another guest is Miss Anne Cleveland.

Relatives Attend

Several relatives of the two families are also attending. They include Mrs. Daniel E. Urbank and Mrs. John H. Mitchell, both of Springfield, and Mrs. Edward Valentine of Cambridge, aunts to Miss Holmes, Mrs. Ralph L. Pope, Mrs. Paul Shaw, (Betty Pope), Miss Elizabeth Reynolds, and Miss Elizabeth Calmer, all of Brookline, also Mrs. Philip K. Reynolds, Jr., of Needham, all related to Miss Wightman, whose younger sister, Miss Hazel Wightman, is also among the guests.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

A CHRISTMAS DANCE takes place tonight at the Concord Country Club. Mrs. Edwin D. Brooks heads the list of patronesses, while among the sponsors are Mrs. Gordon Hutchins, Mrs. Mason Garfield, Mrs. Albert M, Harlow, Mrs. Raymond Emerson, and John M. Eaton.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT SCHUYLER OGDEN, (Edith Mitton) are expected back in a day or two from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to spend Christmas in Boston.

DR. AND MRS. JOHN W. BARTOL of Chestnut st. are expecting to go on a visit to Lancaster for the Christmas holidays with their family.

By BETTY ALDEN

THE DEBUT FOR Miss Helen Dean and Miss Margaret Nichols took place at the Hotel Somerset yesterday at a luncheon for about 100 guests . . . Miss Dean's presentation gown was of green velvet trimmed with rare lace . . . she carried a spray of bronze orchids.

Miss Nichols chose a Christmasy costume of white bodice, black skirt and bright red sash and carried a cluster of roses and gardenias . . .

The Somerset was filled to overflowing with young girls in festive attire . . . Lydia Fuller was glimpsed coming down the wide staircase in a warm gray wool dress with rust sleeves and bodice . . . she wore a gardenia corsage, of which flower she is especially fond.

* * *

Gown of Burgundy Crepe

MRS. WILLIAM HENRY DEAN and Mrs. Philip Nichols received with their daughters . . . Mrs. Dean in Burgundy crepe and corsage of gardenias and Mrs. Nichols in dark red velvet, carrying her bouquet of gardenias . . .

Christmas trees, evergreen and poinsettias decorated the Princess ballroom which is so suitably adapted for parties and luncheons with its gilt mirrors and French influence . . . The tables were arranged in a U with a space in the center for dancing . . . which was enjoyed later. Red candles carried out the Christmas effect.

A group of Vassar girls who were home for the holidays, romped in . . . Miss Virginia Wightman in reddish brown with white blouse . . . She is making her debut today with Betty Holmes.

Theresa Coolidge who was the first debutante of the season to make her bow to society . . . way back in September at Lowell House in Cambridge . . . arrived in a dark brown dress and cape with large white buttons and belt which was half of white and half of the deeper brown tone . . . it was very effective.

* * *

Street Ensembles Are Popular

KITTY STONE WAS IN A brown skirt with brown bodice splashed with red and a brown hat . . . these street ensembles which the debs are wearing are very fetching.

In black and gray which is very smart this season, Mrs. Charles J. Paine (Hope Potter), was one of the first to arrive . . .

In fact, everyone was among the first to arrive and there was quite a hustle and bustle before each maiden found her proper place at the tables . . .

Miss Charlotte Page, who is engaged to Mr. Davidson of Surrey, England, chatted with the E. N. O. about Merrie England and what not, while we stood by and admired her black costume . . .

Katherine Nichols, elder sister of the debutante, was in a royal blue gown with metal studded collar, belt and trimming the blue hat . . . it was very smart.

Mary Elizabeth Sears braved one of her little pancake hats and isn't she cunning in them . . . ? She wore a gray tweed skirt, Scottish plaid bodice and a beret that Ann Dick might have envied.

Junior Supper Dance

INVITATIONS TO the Junior Supper Dance have been received . . . the date is January 16 and the place the Hotel Statler. Sylvia Weld Bigelow is on the committee as is Anna Houghton, daughter of the Frederick Houghtons of Milton, and Evelyn Royce. Nat Hamlen is one of the masculine members.

* * *

Mary Bird and Edith Bass had a reunion party for their friends who were on the boat going to Europe and who returned with them this fall at the beautiful Bird homestead in Walpole this week . . . A merry time was enjoyed by Barbara Goodale, Elizabeth and Nancy Morison, Roger Potter, Dr. Rice (assistant to Rev. Arthur L. Kinsolving at Trinity Church) and others . . . Boat games, deck tennis, shuffle board and many of the diversions of ship board were indulged in and as usual this group had one grand and glorious time . . .

* * *

Pop Concert

HAVE YOU HEARD that Arthur Fiedler is going to give a POP CONCERT out of season for the benefit of the Christopher Shop on January 19 at Symphony Hall . . . ? It will be in the spirit of the Gay Nineties and everyone who desires may come dressed in the lovely ruffles and crinolines of 50 years ago . . . We hear that Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs will arrive in a hansom cab . . . ooOOh! Great enthusiasm is already being demonstrated for this affair . . .

* * *

Miss Mary Elizabeth Sears Honor Guest at Country Club Dance

Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Sears of Mt. Vernon st., are entertaining a large group of the season's debutantes at a dance this evening given in honor of their niece, Miss Mary Elizabeth Sears, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sears at the Country Club in Brookline.

Miss Sears, who was presented on Dec. 6 at a tea given in the home of her aunt, Miss Evelyn Sears on Mt. Vernon st., will wear a beautiful gown of red and gold brocade, and will assist her aunt, Mrs. Francis Sears, in the receiving line.

The young lady's cousin, Mr. Francis H. Cummings, will be in charge of the ushers.

Mrs. Francis Sears' sister, Mrs. Merrill Hubbard of Chicago, has come over for the event, and another house guest is Miss Angelica Welldon of New York.

There will be an ushers' dinner given in the clubhouse and those attending will be the Misses Abigail Aldrich, Mary B. Barbour, Edith Bass, Mary Reynolds Bird, Mary May Binney, Carnzu Clark, Mary Cunningham, Jane Dexter, Anne Mixter, Frances Proctor, Anne H. Sims and Marian H. Ware, all debutantes of this year. Others attending will include Miss Charlotte Lyman, cousin of the debutante, Miss Helen Hanford of New York, Miss Margareta Erickson and Miss Lydia Evans.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. BERNARD SHIRLEY CARTER (Hope Thacher), of Paris, with their two children, Shirley Carter, who is at the Brooks school, North Andover, and Miss Mildred Carter, who is a student at the Foxcroft school in Virginia, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Thacher of Beacon st., for the Christmas season.

AMONG A NUMBER OF debutantes of the season who are going over to New York after the Christmas celebrations will be Miss Grace Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nelson, Miss Eleanor Hallowell, daughter of Mrs. John W. Hallowell, who is to visit Miss Camilla Moss over the New Year; Miss Charlotte Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Loring Young, who will be the guest of Miss Louise Auchincloss of Glenn Cove, L. I.; Miss Mary Weld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Weld, who plans to be back on New Year's Eve, and Miss Elinor Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Fay, who is making a short visit to her friend, Miss Katherine Marsters of New York.

'I'VE PAID'---'I'D LIKE TO'

RAMSAY MacDONALD EDOUARD HERRIOT

There was no one to overhear the confidences that passed between Britain's prime minister and the former premier of the French Republic as they met aboard a train in the Parisian Gare de Lyons. But we'll venture they were concerned about Uncle Sam and debts. The man from 10 Downing st. saw his government pay promptly; his colleague from the Quai d' Orsay lost his job arguing in vain that France do likewise. However, his Parliament voted to default. (Int. News Photos.)

France Should Pay Just Like Germany, Says Herriot

Paris, Dec. 21 (INS)—France should recognize the sanctity of her obligations just as she has always demanded that Germany do, former Premier Edouard Herriot declared in a speech at a luncheon of the Anglo-American Press Club today.

The former premier dealt at length with the vote in the Chamber of Deputies against payment of the war debt interest installment due to the United States on December 15 which necessitated his resignation.

"I care little for personal defeat," Herriot said, "since I am consoled by the thought that thousands upon thousands of French, British and American war dead would have approved my attitude.

"I have always maintained, at Geneva and elsewhere, that the sanctity of signatures is applicable to France as well as other nations.

"Peace depends upon replacing might by right. What we have demanded of Germany we must also demand of France.

"The debt problem itself is simple. What is painful is the mutual misunderstanding from which France and the United States are suffering."

FUNCTIONS OFF AS HOOVER GOES

Washington, Dec. 21 (INS)—Two of the most traditionally brilliant functions of the capital's winter social season have been cancelled as a result of President Hoover's decision to indulge himself in a Florida fishing trip over the holidays.

Because of the President's absence, the New Year's reception in the White House has been abandoned. And with this event off, Secretary of State Stimson has decided not to give the usual noontime breakfast to the diplomatic corps in the beautiful Pan-American Building.

For years, these events have been highlights of the social calendar.

McCarthy Rites to Be Held Tomorrow

The funeral of John J. McCarthy, of Somerville, for years active in Democratic politics in that city, who died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 34 Highland ave., Somerville, will take place tomorrow morning, with services in St. Joseph's Church, Union sq., Somerville.

He is survived by a daughter, three sons and a sister.

MILTON'S CHIEF SENDS BACK RUM HOARD

"Gosh, I'm glad to get rid of that stuff!"

That's a funny thing to say about $30,000 worth of liquor. But, believe it or not, that was Police Chief Jim Travers' remark today out at Milton headquarters.

Travers had wasted no time, following a court order, in returning the liquor to Miss Mary Kittredge, 33, of 30 Squamtum st., East Milton, from whom it was seized a year ago.

"Why, that stuff has been filling three cells here all this time," said Travers. "And maybe you think it didn't worry me, keeping it intact."

"When I would think of all the thirsty men in the world, and then think of those cells full of cordials rare wines, whiskey and alcohol, I realized what a responsibility I had on my hands."

It took two trips of the police van, and it was a great strain on the assisting policemen, too, to get the many cases back to Miss Kittredge's house.

"This is another triumph for right," said she. "It proves a man's house, or a woman's, for that matter, is a castle after all. The seizure was illegal and Judge Collins in Norfolk Superior Court yesterday ordered it returned.

"It was all private stock, and now the police have returned every bit of it. There was never any complaint about my house and no liquor was ever sold here. It was outrageous to seize it."

The raid, by Federal agents and police, was on Dec. 16, 1931. The liquor was found under the porch. During the raid, Everett A. Paradise, 35, of Estabrook rd., Wollaston, drove up with champagne and other liquors in his car and was arrested.

Some of the liquor, not covered by the search warrant, was previously returned and yesterday Judge Collins, finding Miss Kittredge not guilty, ordered all the rest of it sent back.

FOR YULE---$30.000 IN RUM

Just before Christmas—Milton's police today returned to Miss Mary Kittredge, 33, of Squantum st., East Milton, assorted liquors valued at $30,000. The action followed a court decision, holding the seizure illegal. The spirits are part of a private stock. Well, merry Christmas! (Staff photo.)

COUNCIL O. K.'S SAYRE, 32 MORE

Prof. Francis B. Sayre of Harvard, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson, was confirmed today by the Governor's Council as commissioner of corrections, succeeding Dr. A. Warren Stearns. The council confirmed 33 of 36 appointments which Governor Ely had previously placed before it.

It did so after Ely prefaced today's meeting by conferring with each councillor, after which there was a caucus of the Republican members. It is understood the governor voiced displeasure at the council's failure to act on appointments made by him.

Other outstanding confirmations were those of George E. Murphy of Lowell as State comptroller, succeeding Walter S. Morgan, and William D. Collins of Boston as clerk of the municipal court, criminal division, in place of Edward J. Lord, retired.

Murphy has been first deputy in State Auditor Francis X. Hurley's department.

James Farrell of Brighton was confirmed as member of the industrial accident board in place of Charles M. Stiller. This appointment had hung fire since Nov. 30.

Appointees whom the council failed to confirm were: Richard J. Dunn, of Newton, as commodore of the Massachusetts Nautical School; Dr. William H. Kelleher, Woburn, medical examiner, fourth Middlesex district, and John L. Hennessy, North Dighton, trustee Bristol County Agricultural School.

Name 7 Postmasters for Massachusetts

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—President Hoover today sent to the Senate for confirmation the following for postmasters in Massachusetts: Baldwinsville, Walter P. Abbott; Cataumet, Francis K. Irwin; Concord, Fred A. Tower; Egypt, Arthur R. Merritt; Forge Village, Josephine M. Connell; Sharon, Robert A. Clark; Truro, Mary E. Joseph.

Last Whistle for Old Fido

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Every one has a personal obsession he wants to make unanimous. The Fido lawmaker is against everything but his own lap dog.

He voted against the sales tax, repeal and the beer bill. That's because the people want them. In a way he is right. He figures "the people wanted me once. So they can be wrong again."

He votes against everything else. He has a one-track mind with no road bed and a rail missing.

A lot of the Fido boys get through this session. In March we will have a President who agrees with the Senate and a House that agrees with both.

Business of Port Shows Increase

Decided increases in arrivals, departures and total traffic during the first 11 months of this year are noted in the statistics released by the Boston port authority today. From Jan. 1 to Nov. 30, increases of 10 per cent in arrivals, 48.6 per cent in departures and 21 per cent in total traffic are shown.

Legless Fire Victim May Die of Burns

Farm Allotment Plan Is Held Up

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—The House agriculture committee failed to reach a decision today on the domestic allotment relief plan sponsored by farm leaders, but committee discussion indicated a sentiment to apply that method to wheat and cotton only on a strictly emergency basis.

NEW SUBSCRIPTION PLAY SERIES

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

What is generally known as the Boston sector of the American Theater Society, or, as others put it, the locally amalgamated Professional Players and Theater Guild, is about to emerge from temporary retirement. The energetic Rebekah Hobbs, into whose hands these splurges into the higher drama are deposited for good subscription purposes, now announces a second series of reliable cash and carry entertainment at favorable prices. There will be, of course, five plays of established merit at the price of four—that is, if you shake hands with Miss Hobbs and sign up for a seasonal subscription. The Plymouth Theater, naturally, becomes the headquarters for the new campaign.

* * *

Violet Heming

Perhaps this return of subscription entertainment at the Plymouth might casually be referred to as the American Theater Society's recovery from its first joust with distressing drama conditions and, having repaired its fences, makes known its great willingness to move forward in stirring order. With the spoken drama reduced almost to odds and ends, Miss Hobbs proudly announces "There's Always Juliet" as the first of the Subscription List's supplementary season. The date, you might like to know, is January 9. In this amusing comedy, the new sponsors (it was once a Gilbert Miller production), have called upon Violet Heming and Roger Pryor to represent the play's solemn artistic responsibilities.

* * *

Grace George Coming

While it may not be possible for the playgoer of the far eastern seaboard to see "There's Always Juliet" fully draped with its original personnel, there can be little complaint at the choice of Miss Heming and Mr. Pryor as its principal protagonists. It is true that these faithful players follow, in the leading roles, artists of international reputation. But it must be admitted that domestic relations of great import compelled Herbert Marshall and his charming spouse, Edna Best, to hasten home to dear old England to prepare for an impending event in which, for some time to come, nursery rhymes are to become the order of the day. But Miss Hobbs' second subscription series at the Plymouth does not depend alone upon this very amusing John Van Druten comedy. Close upon its heels will follow Grace George and Alice Brady in "Mademoiselle"—on January 23. This is an adaptation by Miss George herself from a French play written by Jacques Deval.

* * *

RATTLING THE SKELETON—Before the Shubert boys—Lee and J. J.—became the drama's towering tycoons on Broadway, and elsewhere, they were ambitious young men trying to fathom the theatrical business in Syracuse, N. Y. Sam Shubert, the founder of the firm, and titular head of the family, was treasurer of the Weiting Opera House; Lee Shubert was a program boy, and J. J. Shubert, later to become the nation's most prodigious producer of musical shows—and who still is—was just an errand boy for two elder brothers.

* * *

Aids Budding Talent

Although its achievements have not been broadcast, nor even more than casually mentioned, the MacDowell Club of Boston is spreading a gospel of good cheer and lending material assistance to young musicians who cannot afford to pay for study. For a second time—perhaps we should refer to it as the MacDowell Club's second season of aid and encouragement to young musicians—there is to be an audition for young students of voice, piano, violin and 'cello who, by circumstances beyond their control, cannot pay for professional instruction. The result of these auditions—to the successful entrants, of course—means professional instruction in the form of scholarships. Miss Elsie Winsor Bird, 111 St. Paul st., Brookline, vice-president of the MacDowell Club, sends an urgent message to youngsters to enroll in these auditions. Only those who cannot afford to pay for teaching are invited, and they, says Miss Bird, are more than cordially invited.

WHAT MAKES GRAY HAIR—Wallace Munro, chief of promotion for "Land of Smiles," coming to the Shubert, confesses that his first gray hairs (and he has plenty of them now) appeared 33 years ago in Redlands, Cal., when, as general manager for Olga Nethersole, he held a matinee performance of "Sapho" for more than an hour while his temperamental star wandered around the Mojave desert as the guest of Hopi Indians bent on doing a snake dance in her honor. The dance came off in good order, but Mr. Munro, not having been advised of the celebration, stuck to his playhouse and remained totally tortured.

Globe Trotter

Beautiful pictures of the Holy Land and Bethlehem, give a real Christmas flavor to the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now at Loew's State. The pictures show Bethlehem little changed from biblical days, as is the peaceful countryside surrounding; then come pictures of Nazareth and rare views of the Church of the Nativity and of the River Jordan where the Savior was baptized. There is an appropriate description by The Globe Trotter.

Following the example of Mrs. Roosevelt and Al Smith, Lady Astor leads the Community House chorus in Town Hall, New York in the cause of charity. Lady Astor stresses the value of singing in times of depression and fear and then, with the audience, sings "Pack Up Your Troubles In Your Old Kit Bag and Smile, Smile, Smile."

At Montgomery, Alabama, Smith Blane, a youthful aviator, ascends to an altitude of 2000 feet and descending at terrific speed crashes the nose of the plane into the ground "just for fun." He emerges unhurt!

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

What's the greatest thing you ever saw? A movie? The Seven Wonders of the World? A glass of cold (foaming) GERMAN beer in the dry era? Anyway, William Henry Raynor thinks the greatest thing he ever saw IS the new Rockefeller Center! The RKO chief for New England, says he will challenge any and all comers to show any wonderful achievement anywhere that can best the architectural creation of which Radio City is one important sector.

* * *

Which brings us to the point. The two theaters in the group are to be thrown open next week, under present plans. The dedication will undoubtedly be one of the big theater events of this generation. It is a mammoth investment, the Music Hall costing $8,000,000 and the RKO Roxy, $4,000,000; and assuredly a tremendous business adventure in these days.

"The whole conception is noteworthy," says Mr. Raynor. "One has to marvel at this stupendous undertaking. I went through the various buildings, studied closely the theaters, and I must say that this beats anything I ever saw in my life. Yes, it's the greatest thing I ever saw."

Mr. Raynor has been a showman 40 years, and should recognize a spectacular thing when he meets up with it.

Filmdom's Loss

Somehow, Albert Gran always made us think of John Bunny. Gran was by no means as facile in comedy as Bunny, but did have many good points. His death at Hollywood from injuries in an auto accident in which he was playing a Good Samaritan role, takes a kindly figure out of filmdom. First time we saw him on screen was in "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," which had its riotous moments. Unforgettable is the scene wherein Winnie Lightner leaped from a banquet table—kerplunk!—right down upon Gran's Gargantuan tummy! That was one of the laughter high spots of all of the talkies.

Talkie Rights Bought

What's The Great Magoo-na-Goona do? Though "The Great Magoo," assailed as too filthy even for Broadway, made hasty exit into limbo as a stage production it has been purchased for a talkie. The film press agent calls it a "lusty comedy-drama." Looks as if he put in a syllable too many. After the application of the Hays code mustard plaster, plus other trimmings along the line, with deferential bows to the censors here, there, and everywhere, "The Great Magoo" may goodly be—maybe!

Dorothea Wieck, the German actress who won favor in "Maedchen in Uniform" and who reminds one strikingly of Norma Shearer, is reported to be planning to leave Berlin for Hollywood in January. She is under contract to Paramount.

PLAYER GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

Tala Birell Selected for Lead in "Black Pearl," Story of South Sea Islands

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Dec. 21—One thing we must say for Carl Laemmle, Jr., he isn't easily discouraged. Tala Birell, who, he thought, would be another Greta Garbo or Marlene Dietrich, hasn't so far made a dent in the public's affections.

Louella O. Parsons

Far from believing that his foreign importation is a flop Junior is preparing to give her other stories. Her next is "Black Pearl." She plays the leading role.

Just to refresh your memory this is the South Seas story which took Irvin Willat and Gouverneur Morris to the South Seas to get some real atmosphere. The story is based on an original by that well known author, Mr. Morris himself.

You can never tell in this business when a picture is going to take hold of the public fancy and this one may do the trick for Miss Birell. Anyway, Junior is to be commended for his confidence in her ability.

Paradise Feathers

Warner Brothers will splurge on "Baby Face," Barbara Stanwyck's next picture. Darryl Zanuck feels it's an experiment for heretofore she has always been the poor, downtrodden creature. In this she is the gay lady with plenty of glamour, red-hair and everything. Three leading men will support Miss Stanwyck. The first to be chosen is George Brent. Al Green will direct this hot cha number which, from all accounts, is going to have all the interest of Joan Crawford's "Letty Lynton" and the color of "Ladies of Leisure."

* * *

New Leading Man

Not being twins, Joel McCrea, Constance Bennett's favorite leading man, has been relieved from duty. He is wanted in another picture. Charles Starrett, now under contract to Paramount, has been borrowed to emote opposite the glamorous Constance. Roland Gilbert also has an important role. "Our Betters," the Somerset Maugham story, is the one on which Elsa Mawell is acting as technical adviser. Speaking of Elsa, she is by far the most interesting woman who has come to Hollywood in many and many a day.

Movie Musicomedy

The bare announcement that those two musical specialists, Richard Rodgers and Larry Hart, were headed for Hollywood and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer didn't half tell the story. M-G-M, we learn, is about to produce musical comedies. That means this company which has consistently stayed away from musical plays since their first success with "Broadway Melody," believes the time is ripe to offer a few songs and dances.

World Fair Debate

Six months ago Harry Cohn says we printed a story saying that Columbia intended to make a picture featuring the world's fair. Last week we printed another yarn announcing Phil Goldstone's plans to visit Chicago and make a world's fair opera. So what? Harry feels he has first rights and he says when he was in Chicago a few weeks ago he talked business with Dawes, head of Chicago's world's fair committee, a brother of former Vice-President Dawes. Far be it from us to become involved in any studio argument. Mr. Goldstone's reply to Harry's claim that he was first on the ground, is that the world's fair is open to everyone.

No romance, only business. She was guest of honor at the Georgia Tech game. ELISSA LANDI out of the cast of "The Masquerader" again, due to a recurrence of the flu. ROBERT MONTGOMERY back at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios after a tussle with the same malady. HERBERT STOTHART, well again after a recent automobile accident, off to New York. Taking with him a print of "Rasputin." CLARK GABLE buying his thirty-second turtle neck sweater. DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., lunching with his young and attractive stepmother, MARY PICKFORD to you, COUNTESS FRASSO also in the party. LIONEL and JOHN BARRYMORE holding themselves in readiness to make a quick trip East provided their sister ETHEL'S condition gets worse. CONSTANCE TALMADGE and TOWNSEND NETCHER expected home Thursday from Chicago to spend Christmas with MRS. PEG TALMADGE. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Phil DiPietro

Entirely recovered following an operation, performed at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Phil Dipietro is again on the job as house manager at the Paramount. Phil began in show business at the age of 15, in his native city, Providence. Later he and his brother operated a chain of theaters; still later, he went to the Paramount in Newton, where his work won him a course in the Publix Managers School. He worked at the Capitol under Maurice Corkery, then at the Oriental, as house manager. His last promotion was to the executive staff at the new Paramount.

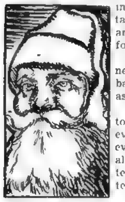
DEATH TAKES AN INDEFINITE HOLIDAY

Toast and hot chocolate is the menu for Dr. Arthur Kraus now that his self inflicted hunger strike is ended. Dr. Kraus, professor of philosophy at City College of New York, abandoned his fast to arouse sentiment against anti-Semitic brutalities in Poland, because he could not find a proper death bed and the right surroundings in which to starve. He's through starving now. (International News Photos.)

Babies Ejected on Christmas Eve: Landlord's 'Gift'



It may be that the windows are frosted and that the stove in the kitchen, lacking fire, is used as a table. It may be that beds lack sheets and blankets. That the children are barefoot.

But until yesterday, every one of the nearly 8000 families asking for a Christmas basket had some kind of a home, as far as was known by the Christmas Fund editor.

Here is how the Christmas Basket Editor discovered that one family would not even have a home on Christmas Day. Not even their shack in the woods that lacked all the conveniences of even the poorest tenement. They have running water in tenements.

A young man, who had previously written in for a basket wanted to know if it could be left 'outside the house' where he is now living.

WIFE, BABIES IN COLD

Inquiring into the cause for this unusual request, the editor was handed a legal notice, which, among other things, informed the man that all his effects (a half dozen articles of the poorest kind of furniture), together with his wife, and three babies, would have to be removed by Christmas Eve as the owner of the property discovered someone who COULD pay $12 a month rent for the house.

The man said he doubted if he would be able to call for the basket, as the place he lives is some distance from Boston, and it took him all morning to thumb a ride in.

Families such as this man's are the kind who ask for Christmas baskets. They ask YOU who read this.

LIKE 1932 YEARS AGO

You will, perhaps, recall the story that the first Christmas was one of a homeless Family . . . for whom no room could be found . . .

In His name . . . the homeless Little One . . . whose feast you observe on Christmas Day . . . perhaps today you will make your contribution . . .

The Christmas Basket Editor would like to mention by name and thank individually all those who have already sent in their contributions, but lack of space prohibits this. To every one, he is grateful in the name of the needy who will be made happy by them. And to them, he wishes the happiest of Christmas Days.

Peter Orlando, president of the Orlando Bakery Co., of Boston once knew how sweet a morsel was a crust of bread when he was hungry.

Now that he is a successful business man he contributes liberally to charities and his special donation this year to the poor will be several hundred loaves of bread to the Christmas Basket Fund.

Yesterday contributions were received ranging from 10 cents to $100. Ex-Gov. Alvan T. Fuller was the donor of $100. His charity is almost proverbial.

TODAY is the day you should give.

Bring or send your contributions to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

WOMAN NEAR DEATH IN FIRE

While her husband, believing her already safe, was arousing the other occupants of a two-family house on George st., Medford, today, Mrs. Jeremiah O'Brien was nearly suffocated in a fire that caused damage estimated at $800.

Jeremiah O'Brien, who lives on the first floor, was awakened by the smell of smoke. After arousing his wife, he ran upstairs to warn Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Carroll and their three small children.

It was not until the fire apparatus arrived that O'Brien discovered his wife was missing. He smashed the bedroom window, and discovered his wife partially overcome by smoke. She said she had become confused in the excitement, and couldn't find the way out. She was treated by a doctor at the home of neighbors.

COLDS
Break Up in a Jiffy
This Quick Way

Feel Like A New Man Almost Before You Know It

People have found out that newfangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks up one in a jiffy.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go. Soon you'll start to feel like a new person.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything you've ever tried.

HOUSE REFUSES TO CUT BEER TO 2.75

ing made his speech, made his request to withdraw the amendment he is a wet—but the drys roared, "No, vote on it!"

On a standing vote the count was 108 to strike out the enacting clause to 132 against. The teller vote increased the total.

O'CONNOR LOSES POINT

The House then peremptorily rejected, without a standing vote, the motion of Representative O'Connor, Democrat, of New York, to write into the bill a legislative declaration that 3.2 per cent beer is non-intoxicating.

The House was astonished when Rep. Cullen, Tammany leader, took sharp issue with O'Connor.

"If I had been here when the amendment was offered I would have raised a point of order against it as a legislative amendment to a revenue bill," Cullen declared.

O'Connor explained to the House the reasons for his amendments and was answered by the Bone Dry Blanton, Texas Democrat.

The fiery Texan declared it was "plain hypocrisy" to even suggest such a declaration. Expert testimony, he said, showed that it is intoxicating.

Blanton attacked Rep Clancy (R.), Michigan, who had denounced the drys as hypocrites.

Rep. Cochran (D.), Missouri, returned Blanton's fire by saying that the Texan had run on the Democratic platform supporting modification and now was repudiating it.

FEARS HOOVER VETO

Representative Sabath (D.), Illinois, then gained the floor and said:

"I'm afraid and I feel that even if we pass this bill that the President, under the influence of the prohibition leaders and the Anti-Saloon League, will veto it.

"If he does, I'm afraid that we will not be able to pass it over his veto."

Representative Beck (R.), Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican wet group, made a plea for an hour's discussion on the question of constitutionality. His plea was denied.

TREADWAY SEES 5C. BEER

Representative Celler (D.), New York, also seeking time to talk, told the House the beer bill should have gone to the judiciary instead of to the ways and means committee.

An effort to broaden the bill to include any liquor having no greater alcoholic content was defeated by the ruling of the chair. La Guardia (R.), New York, proposed the amendment and Representative Collier (D.), Mississippi, in charge of the bill, made the point of order.

Representative Bankhead (D.), Alabama, in the chair, ruled the bill dealt only with malt, not spirituous and vinous liquors and sustained Collier.

The House rejected an amendment by Representative Palmisano (D.) of Maryland to cut the tax from $5 to $3.

Representative Treadway (R.) of Massachusetts contended that beer could be sold at 5 cents a glass with condemn the Democratic majority for not reporting a general tax bill including beer.

Treadway, however, diverted to the $5 tax

"If the sales tax were brought up again it would pass by a big majority," he said.

Members of the Republican wet bloc met behind closed doors in an effort to get an agreement on amendments to be offered but were unsuccessful. Those present—about 50—agreed to support the Collier bill, however.

These proposed amendments were discussed by the Republican wet bloc but Rep. Andrew of Massachusetts, the first to leave the secret session declared "they are not having much luck in getting together."

Although Chairman Collier of the ways and means committee has held all along that the beer bill would pass, Speaker Garner declined to give any prediction as the voting on amendments was undertaken. He did say, however, that in event of a tie he would cast his vote.

Asked how, he told newspapermen:

"I'll let you know when I vote. My job was to get the beer bill to the floor to get it voted on."

Garner Says He'll Vote if It's Close

Washington, Dec. 21 (INS)—Speaker Garner, on the eve of the voting on amendments on the beer bill, declined to make any prediction.

"Will you vote on the bill if it is close?" he was asked.

"I will," he said.

Although he does not as a rule vote except in case of a tie, Garner is known to be strongly backing the beer bill as a campaign promise.

Borah Fights Move to Ban Saloons

Washington, Dec. 21. A declaration against including in any repeal amendment a clause prohibiting the return of the saloon was made by Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, a member of the Senate judiciary sub-committee which today offered a tentative draft of a repeal resolution.

The resolution, which was not officially adopted by the sub-committee, embraced three main points. One was the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, another the protection of dry states, and the third a clause giving [illegible] power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold.

Referring to the third clause, Borah declared:

"My own view is that once you recognize the sale of intoxicating liquor and turn the matter back to the States, the federal government loses all power to control the manner of sale by the place where the liquor is to be consumed."

RUBY FOR PRESIDENT

City Councillor Israel Ruby of Ward 14, Dorchester, today announced his candidacy for president of the 1933 City Council. The election takes place on Tuesday, January 3. Councillor Ruby has been a member of the Council since 1926 and is now serving his fourth term. He has a strong following and knows the procedure of Council well.

Henry J. Sullivan, well-known South Boston political leader, leaves tomorrow evening for Esopus, N. Y., where he is to spend the Christmas holidays with his brother, Frater Francis A. Sullivan, C. SS. R., at the Redemptorist Fathers seminary. Frater Sullivan will be ordained to the priesthood in May, 1934.

LYMAN MENTIONED

Another name being mentioned as successor to Civil Service Commissioner Paul E. Tierney is that of Arthur T. Lyman, of Westwood, son of the former chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

NOT AFTER STATE BERTH

Councillor James H. Brennan of Charlestown is not after an appointment to the State tax appeal board, as reported. Brennan says he told the governor that he is not a candidate for any State job.

Women of America, 128,882 of them, have chosen the 12 outstanding leaders of their sex in this country for the last 100 years. Announcement of the results of the vote cast by the women was made at a dinner in New York last night of the National Council of Women, which co-ordinates the efforts of women's clubs. The women selected are shown in above photos, all save Mary Lyon. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, was first choice, with 102,762 votes. The others selected were Jane Addams, founder of Hull House in Chicago, 99,117 votes; Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross, 96,139; Frances E. Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, 90,303; Susan B. Anthony, woman suffrage leader, 84,321; Helen Keller, deaf and blind lecturer, 81,239; Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," 73,999; Julia Ward Howe, composer of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," 72,276; Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader, 70,489; Amelia Earhart Putnam, the flyer, 43,399; Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke College, 40,831, and Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke and delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, 36,855.

Finger on Trigger of Gun With 5 Notches—Then Law Came

Robert Boyle's finger was on the trigger of a sawed-off shotgun and his eye roving over the windows of a house in Bradford st., South End. Patrolman Francis Ze[illegible] of the East Dedham st. [illegible] testified in Municipal court today.

Ze[illegible] said he arrested [illegible] after receiving complaints that a man with a gun was going to avenge an insult."

On the stock of the gun were five notches. Whether they meant five other insults avenged Boyle was [illegible] refused to say. He [illegible] refused to comment [illegible] Judge [illegible] him [illegible] the House of Correction [illegible] off.

According to police, Becker [illegible] wanted [illegible] Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland for the same charge. He [illegible] police court today after [illegible] by means of forged checks and registering under a false name.

Becker was sentenced to 5 months and fined $50 and [illegible] officials of other cities on his release. His [illegible] said he [illegible] to be wealthy [illegible] him from [illegible] by paying a Buffalo hotel bill of $[illegible] he contracted by forging checks.

Loses Taxi in Holdup

Cambridge police today [illegible] a holdup man who robbed Charles Conville, taxi driver of Ames [illegible] Cambridge, of $5 and stole his machine. The car was later found abandoned.

NEW CHARGE IN STATION THEFT

A new charge of breaking and entering in the day time was placed [illegible] Daniel T. Burke, 33, Roxbury, already indicted for larceny of $2[illegible] from a ticket office in South station last September.

Burke pleaded not guilty and in spite of pleas by his attorney, John Dris[illegible], Judge Cox increased his bail from $10,000 to $15,000.

Burke surrendered several weeks ago when he learned police were seeking him. According to Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle, Burke has a long record under four aliases in Philadelphia, Troy and Cleveland.

The South Station robbery was one of the boldest and most perfectly executed robberies in years. While thousands of commuters were passing within a few feet of the office and during the few minutes' absence of the cashier the [illegible] work in the door of the office was cut and the money stolen.

Boston Woman Leader Praises Choice of Nation's 12 Greats

Mrs. Francis L. Flagg of Newton, president of the Professional Women's Club of Boston, today placed her stamp of personal approval on the 12 women designated in a poll conducted by the National Council of Women as the outstanding American women of the last 100 years.

"It is a truly remarkable list of women who have contributed to American life and influenced progress in many ways," she comented. "Of course, there are other women who have made contributions to advancement, but the list as named is decidedly representative of the great achievements made by women.

"These women are truly great," Mrs. Flagg continued, "but there are other women whose work and service have been meritorious. There is Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the first United States woman to receive both D. D. and M. D. degrees, a Boston University graduate, who in 1915 attained world-wide fame. She was a suffrage leader."

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the National Council, who made public the list, announced the following:

CLARA BARTON, founder of the American Red Cross.

JULIA WARD HOWE, author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

DR. MARY E. WOOLLEY, president of Mt. Holyoke College.

If She Has a Book---Well, Here Are Others to Select From

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

I once had a friend whose method of giving Christmas presents was neat, economical, efficient and time-saving. He would find a book which he liked. Then he would buy a couple of dozen copies and send them, indiscriminately, to anybody whom he wished to remember. No mental effort, no brain fag, no personal touch, and, one suspects, not much satisfaction from the recipients

Giving books for Christmas is dangerous, even with the most careful discrimination. "She already has a book is really a rather sorry joke, because there are so many people in this world to whom books are a total loss, who would rather have a new face cream or a tinkling bangle or a hanky than the wisest or most exciting book ever published. If it were a movie ticket now! I often wonder why the film houses do not sell a 52-week ticket — say for $10 — for Christmas gifts. I bet it would take and the theater would make money at that.

But on the assumption that people would like to give books without really knowing much about what books there are to give, I should like to make a few suggestions. I shall never forget the Christmas when I was 10 years old and my Great Uncle George—bless his heart and his memory—gave me Ouida's "Under Two Flags" and the family took it away from me It was supposed to be pretty hot stuff back in those days, however, harmless now.

Here's a List to Pick From

For people really interested in the state of the nation. Beck's "The Wonderland of Bureaucracy," published last spring but incomparably the best book on our national finances and taxes; Morris Markey's "This Country of Yours," human, informal, first hand bird's eye of what Americans are like; "More Merry Go Round," even if the election is over, interesting, honest, and not too malicious; Nevin's "Grover Cleveland," about one of our greatest Americans; Bowers' "Beveridge," a fine book about a notable man by one of the best political writers in America

For young boys: John Clair Minot's new collection, "The Best Stories of Exploration I Know," companion volume to "The Best Animal Stories," "The Best Bird Stories," etc., by an excellent anthologist; Ernest T. Seton Thompson's "Famous Animal Stories," by the author of "Wild Animals I Have Known"; Hodgins and Magoun's "Behemoth," by the authors of "Sky High," humorous, vivid, easy book about the growth of power machinery; possibly also Richard Haliburton's "The Flying Carpet."

For people with a taste for philosophy and religion Àbbe Dimnet's "What Men Live By," orthodox doctrine in pleasantly popular and sensible form: Joseph Walker's "Humanism as a Way of Life" honest statement of one man's discoveries about the religion that satisfies him; "The Art of Behavior," by the master of the Middlesex school, Frederic Winsor; and "Civilizing Ourselves,' by Everett Dean Martin, noted educator, who writes on intellectual maturity in the modern world.

For people really interested in literature in a serious way: "The Journals (or Diaries) of Arnold Bennett" (two volumes); [illegible] of Literature," by Burton Rascoe, vivid, unconventional and independent judgments on famous men of letters from Homer to Marcel Proust; "Mark Twain's America," by Bernard de Voto, [illegible]dy of the frontier in the 30s and 40s: three books on that savage genius, D. H. Lawrence, his "Letters," edited by Aldous Huxley, his life, "Savage Pilgrimage," by Catherine Carswell, and J. M. Murry's betrayal of his friend, called "Son of Woman."

Three Gems in Sport Literature

If you like sports I suggest Francis Ouimet's "A Game of Golf," Gene Tunney's "A Man Must Fight," and Barry Wood's "What Price Football?"

Are you one of those who believe that a good biography is not only more exciting but more valuable than even a good novel? There is a wealth of material: Gamaliel Bradford's last book, "Biography and the Human Heart"; The Blessed Spinoza (this is his 300th anniversary), by Lewis Browne, author of "This Believing World"; Chesterton's "Chaucer"; "God's Gold," the story of Rockefeller and the Standard Oil; "Emily Dickinson Face to Face"; Sir Wilfred Grenfell's autobiography, "Forty Years in Labrador"; "The Tragedy of Henry Ford"; Carl Sandburg's "Mary Lincoln."

For lovers of the stage there is: "The Stage Is Set," the wisest, sanest, best informed book about the theater for many years, written by Lee Simonson of the "Theater Guild"; also the "Autobiography of Ellen Terry," one of the great dead of the theater.

Of course people like fiction and of that there is a plenty. "Of the making of novels there is no end and much reading is a weariness unto the flesh."

The great success of the past season, the Pulitzer Prize novel, has been succeeded by its equal, fully as successful, "Sons," the story of the second generation of Wang the Chinese peasant. There is also the best seller which is perhaps slated for the Pulitzer Prize, Morgan's "The Fountain," written in reaction against the fleshly school of sexual literature.

If you like Sherwood Anderson, he has written a new one "Beyond Desire," a story of the southern textile mills. Scott Fitzgerald's wife Zelda has written a sophisticated story of post-war times called "Save Me the Waltz." Catherine Brody has done a grim and honest story of the depression called "Nobody Starves." Floyd Dell treats of a radical young Boston woman in the days before the Civil War in "Dinana Stair."

Faulkner's "Light in August" Powerful

The veteran artist Willa Cather has a thin volume of careful stories of plain people in "Obscure Destinies." And if you can stand ugly power—but indubitably power—you ought to read William Faulkner's "Light in August," a tragic tale of the deep South, "New York Tempest" by Manuel Komroff is the re-telling of a famous New York scandal of the 30s.

The English novels are in lighter mood. The author of "Dusty Answer" tells with exquisite sensibility the story of a young girl's coming out in "Invitation to the Waltz." The author of "Six Mrs. Greenes" writes "First Night" about a single evening at the theater in the "Grand Hotel" technique. Hugh Walpole devotes a third volume to the story of Judith Parris in "The Fortress." And "Pekin Picnic" is a subtle and sopisticated story of a kidnaping by Chinese bandit among Legation folk."

You may not feel drawn to more than one of these titles, but I can vouch personally for the fact that every one is in its own fashion and genre a competent and interesting piece of work. And we must not forget that never before in the history of publishing have there been so many inexpensive and attractive series of classic works and works that have enjoyed long popularity in modern reprints. And speaking of reprints, if you want to refresh your memories about the historical absurdities and insanities of the human race, there is an old book revived. "Extraordinary Popular Delusions," an excellent book to meditate upon in these days of general democratic education.

So if she already has a book, you may still find something worth while for her.

GIRL, 11, SAVES 16 AS FLAMES SWEEP

Rouses the Occupants When House Burns in Dorchester

Fighting her way through choking smoke, an 11-year-old Dorchester girl aroused 16 sleeping persons early today when a two-alarm fire swept through the three-story dwelling at 56 Torrey st., Dorchester.

ROUSES PARENTS

She first roused her parents, Alexander and Cecelia Jones, and then scurried down to the first floor where Milton and Carl Goodman, 14 and 12, were asleep. Police said the parents of the Goodman boys were out.

The girl, unable to force the door of the Goodman apartment, ran to the street and aroused the sleeping boys by throwing ice against their bedroom window.

Meanwhile, Patrolman Aloysius F. McNamara of the Mattapan station sounded an alarm and was joined by Sergt. William Hartigan for rescue of other occupants

ESCAPE BLOCKED

Mr. and Mrs. Max Gilman were asleep on the top floor with Harry 25, Fay, 22; Betty, 20; Charles, 5; Marion, 3, and Harvey, 1. All reached safety over a back stairway when the rescuers found escape by the front of the house was impossible. Betty and the three younger children had to be carried out.

The parents of the Jones girl carried Greta, 3, and Herbert 2, to the street, while McNamara and Hartigan were carrying Harriett, 9, and Robert, 5, to safety.

Police said the fire started from an overheated furnace. They estimated damage at $5000.

CHIEF OPPOSED AS PROSECUTOR

Wakefield selectmen, it was revealed today, were asked at a secret session last night to bar Police Chief James J. Pollard as prosecuting officer in the retrial of George Shepard, alleged drunken driver.

The request was made by Atty Peter Walsh, representing Sergt George B. DeRoche, who thus becomes the center of another storm in the department.

Chief Pollard said Walsh's request took him by surprise and he asked a few days to prepare an answer. He said he did not see why the town should pay money to hire another prosecutor when it had one in the police chief.

Shepard was found guilty in Malden court some time ago. Later Patrolman Edwin Rowe said Sergt DeRoche lied in his testimony against Shepard. This led to a big row in the department, centering about Rowe and DeRoche. Shepard has now been granted a new trial to take place in January in Malden court.

Radiator Vandal Damages 3 More

Quincy police renewed their efforts today to apprehend the auto radiator chiseler as reports came from three residents of Billings rd., Norfolk Downs, that the radiators of their autos had been destroyed during the night. Two others reported similar damage yesterday.

"I adore you," Holden said suddenly, throwing all caution to the winds. "Why do you suppose I am here? Please don't think I go about kissing all my lady clients." He put both of his hands on her shoulders.

No Old New England Rum, No Party, Decrees Old Salt

Good old New England rum of the finest is still missing from the open marts, and so the 60th wedding anniversary of Capt. William B. Dennis of Marblehead, and the bride he took threescore years ago will be celebrated quietly on Sunday—as quietly as he has been celebrating birthdays since prohibition

Prohibition has removed the kick from birthday celebrations Capt Dennis complained in April 1931 when he turned 83 years, and he reckoned today that until good old New England rum comes back all his anniversaries will be quiet.

The famous old Marblehead fisherman of other days lives in the 'Commodore Tucker House' at 7 Prospect st., Marblehead, a 200-year-old structure, most of whose residents have lived to be nearly 100.

MAYOR TO FIGHT CHARGE

Following the charge that he had misled the school committee in obtaining unexpended school funds for other city purposes, Mayor John H. Burke of Medford today called a special meeting of the committee for Friday night.

At this meeting Mayor Burke promised to reply to Committeeman Edward M. Harkins, who made the charge, and said he would also ask for further transfer of school funds for other municipal departments.

Committeeman Harkins charged that Mayor Burke made misleading statements to the committee in requesting the transfer of the unexpended balances to the old age assistance and contagious disease accounts. He said the transfers were approved on Dec. 5

ALLSTON BOY IS HELD IN CRASH

A chase through Allston and Brookline today ended with the crash of a stolen car at Fuller and Winchester sts., Brookline, where it plunged off the road into a wall, tossing out the two occupants

One fled, but the other, badly bruised and cut was arrested and taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital where a policeman was placed on guard at his bedside.

The arrested youth said he was Reginald Keefe, 17, of Westford st., Allston.

The chase started when Frank Purdy, 39 Mt. Hood st., Brighton, saw his car being stolen at Brighton ave. and Allston st.

Purdy hailed the driver of another car and gave chase. The pursuit led through Brighton ave., Harvard ave., Harvard st., Brookline, and Fuller st., to the point where the crash occurred.

ENDLESS SALES FRAUD BARED

Boston Better Business Bureau issued a warning today against the "endless chain" system of selling goods revived by promoters of the get-rich-quick type. Seven years ago the postoffice department crushed a similar scheme.

The bureau shows by figures that if the scheme worked out in practice as it does in theory, in a short time no less than 10 billion persons would be going around ringing doorbell, selling merchandise and keeping all the factories in the world running day and night.

College boys, accountants, salesmen, clerks and people in all walks of life are being hoodwinked by the promoters, who tell them of alleged advantages of getting in on the start of such a wonderful money-making proposition, the bureau states.

THREE ARRESTS IN TWO BREAKS

Arrest today of three men whose names police refused to reveal followed two daring robberies in Charlestown last night. A total of about $1000 was taken.

Patrick Murphy of Green st. reported the chain store in Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, of which he is manager, was robbed of $86

The other break was in an office in main st., Thompson sq., where safecrackers got away with $925.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Starting life over again, Jill Mordant, beautiful red-headed nurse in a hospital, is trying to make a home for her brother, Ray. He has been serving a five-year sentence in Michigan State Prison for a crime which "Black Leo" Lehman committed. Dr. John Slater, in love with Jill, and her other friends at the hospital do not know about Ray. As Jill waits for her brother in the South Station, Parker Holden, well-known Boston attorney, is struck by her unusual beauty. He sees her meet Ted Merkle, an old friend of Ray's. Merkle promises Jill he will let Ray alone and brother and sister spend their first day together. Jill is called to attend a victim of gangster shooting and recognizes Black Leo. He calls her name just before he dies. She goes to Ray's room and finds him gone. Then a stranger gives her a message to call a phone number. Jill hurries to the phone address and finds her brother near death. The gangsters hold her prisoner, while she strives to save Ray's life. They send Ray to the country. Rusty refuses to marry Merkle and gets a job in a delicatessen store. The hospital payroll is stolen and an orderly killed. Jill is suspected of tipping off the gangsters. She is arrested while at work by O'Shea. Holden takes her case and finds she is the girl he saw in the South Station. O'Shea hits on a clue to the robbery

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"MIGHT have been some employe of the hospital in that apartment."

"Might have," O'Shea agreed. "But it wasn't. Now let's have a look at that laundry mark. It's going to be a tough job. You check a list of hospital employes and see."

"We're set—if we can check every laundry in town—"

McNabb groaned

"We've got to, somehow

O'Shea picked up a telephone [illegible]

"Say, I'd work 10 years to land these smart birds." He put the bit of paper and the torn collar back to his billfold. "If they haven't left town, we're set. We better get checking the telephone calls out of that apartment. You do that while I get busy on the laundry mark."

Which explains why McNabb and his partner did not sleep for another 24 hours

Jill in her cell, pacing up and down, waited with tumult in her heart for Parker Holden to come back again.

How she dreaded to see him. Yet sometimes she awakened in the middle of the night, sobbing because she dreamed he would not come again.

He did come that afternoon however. He too dreaded the encounter after his amazing conduct of the preceding visit. For he had thought of nothing but Jill since

He could not get her out of his mind And he remained away from her deliberately He waited for her nervously, thumbing over the papers in his briefcase. Jill standing in the door of the interviewing room could not keep the eager, pleading look from her eyes

When Holden saw her he could find no words It was Jill who spoke first.

"I thought you had changed your mind about me," she murmured.

"No, I haven't changed my mind about anything." Holden spoke with honesty. His voice was cold. The light died out of Jill's eyes. What a fool she had been.

But Holden was interested in the legal matter at hand.

"Jill, is there anybody in the city you're afraid to face?"

Jill was silent a moment, thinking. The apartment she had rented. But they'd never find that. The people at the Wayne st. place? She felt perfectly safe. She had seen nobody there and nobody had seen her, she was sure; nobody who could identify her, certainly They'd never get Silvers and Windy

"I can face anybody." Her voice rang true and clear.

"I wanted to be sure. I happen to know O'Shea has something up his sleeve. He may take you down stairs soon for identification.

Then Holden questioned her about how much money she had. She told him the pitiful little sum.

"And Marcia owes me that money I telephoned about," she added.

"She really owes you that?"

Holden seemed relieved

"But be on your guard. They're going to spring something tonight I'm sure. I won't be here," he added. "They won't let me."

ABLUSHING BACHELOR

Holden had something else to say to Jill but he found it difficult to get out the words

"Forgive me."

Holden always so poised and suave embarrassed.

Jill nodded She could not speak

"You must think I'm a fool."

"No."

"It was terribly unfair of me," Holden went on. He was so evidently upset over his conduct Jill could read nothing but anger at his own stupidity. "It was unforgivable" he continued

"I've forgotten it," she said quickly. She did not add that the memory was the only thing which made the last two days endurable There was only one thing in the world she wanted. That was to be in Holden's arms and cry her heart out on his shoulder

Instead she stood up She looked so wan and pathetic standing there her head bowed that Holden hesitated

He came over to her and gently raised her chin, looking down into her lovely gray eyes

"Jill, dear, I'm so afraid for you If I only knew what you are facing. Don't hide anything from me."

Suddenly Jill wanted desperately to tell him the whole truth. But there was Ray. Any trail led to Ray. Unless she told him that, all the rest meant nothing

The gray eyes were opaque. Holden knew he had appealed again in vain. He turned to go in silence

The Junior League Glee Club gave two Christmas concerts yesterday afternoon. The photographer caught the society singers at the Boston Home for Incurables, in Dorchester ave., Dorchester. They are shown as they sang "Silent Night." Their conductor is Howard Abell. After rendering the beautiful Christmas music at that institution, they continued to the Old Ladies Home in Jamaica Plain, where a similar song program was given. Just the other day this group of society folk sang for the sick children at the Boston Floating Hospital. A number of other institutions are to be visited. Included in the glee club are, Mrs. F. W. Andres, Barbara Eustis, Lansdale Watson, Elizabeth Wixter, Anne Torbert, Betty Reece, Catherine Tappan, Mrs. Joseph A. Coletti, Dorothea Seaver, Mrs. William F. King, Elizabeth Townsend, Peggy Turner, Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., and Mrs. B. W. Warner, Jr., chairman of the glee club group. This is annual Christmas activity of the Junior League, and its provisional members are always eager to serve in this way. Staff Photo.)

LASHES AGAIN AT HEAD OF CLOSED BANK

Needed Window Dressing to Gain People's Confidence, He Says

Edwin T. McKnight, president of the closed Medford Trust Company, was branded as a "scheming creature who needed window dressing" and a "courageous gambler with somebody else's money" by Atty. Robert T. Bushnell, counsel for Bank Commissioner Guy in his closing arguments before Master Charles N. Blood today

With the arguments, the hearing of the bank commissioner's suit to hold McKnight, his wife and other officials and directors of the closed bank responsible for the Medford Trust Company losses was brought to a close. Decision was reserved.

Atty. Bushnell, who yesterday referred to McKnight as a "dirty little crook" who had "run, dominated and steered" the bank before its closing continued to lash the bank president today

"McKnight is a very courageous person as long as he is gambling with somebody else's money," he said. "I don't believe for one minute that if it had not been for the respectable board of directors that the people of Medford would have put any such amount of money into the Medford Trust Co.

"This scheming creature needed window dressing. The people had no confidence in McKnight. He was exposed years ago.

3 HOSPITAL TRIPS ENOUGH

It takes more than a broken hip to put John Stevens, 63, of 40 Lynde st., West End, down and out. He first has to collapse before he gives up. A hit-and-run truck felled him Monday. He received emergency treatment at Haymarket Relief Hospital, but refused to stay. Tuesday morning he was back. "His leg still hurt." Treated again, he left—in quest of work, for he's on the dole list. Tuesday afternoon he collapsed in the street. Then doctors at the Haymarket hospital found that his hip was broken, that he couldn't walk—but he had!—and now he's at the City Hospital for a long stay. (Staff photo.)

WIFE BLOCKS YACHTSMAN

W. STERLING BURGESS

The designer of the America's cup defender, Enterprise, W. Sterling Burgess, today again ran afoul of dirty weather. This time it was a squall following in the wake of his matrimonial storm. Bankrupt, Burgess sought to sell the interest in the will of the late Cornelia W. Burgess of Boston. But his wife, the former Rosamund Tudor of Brookline, obtained a court order in New Haven, Ct., preventing this. She declared her alimony was being paid out of the interest. (Staff photo.)

PROPHET JONAS SEES BEER BACK

Jonas B. Israel, white robed prophet of Mineral County, W. Va., who has predicted everything correctly he says, since the San Francisco fire, blew into Boston today and after shaking the icicles from his white hair and flowing beard predicted the early return of beer

Prophet Jonas is a stranger here but in many cities he is a familiar figure in his white clothing, carrying his standard with its Biblical quotations and blowing his trumpet to call sinners to repentance

He expects to be taken for Santa Claus during his stay here, but wherever a crowd gathers, he's going to preach. And when Boston has responded to his call, he's going on to Bangor, Me., to take a whack at the sinners, if any, there

The prophet's right name is John B. Nash and he is a veteran of the regular army. He says he escaped from the Soldiers' Home asylum in Washington in 1914 and has since been arrested 59 times but through it all he's gone right on "boycotting the barber, the butcher and the bootlegger."

2 HELD IN TAXI GEM ROBBERY

A few hours after "taxicab bandits" smashed the show window of Shreve, Crump & Low's jewelry shop, Boylston st., Back Bay, two South End men were arrested early today.

The pair were arrested in bed at a Milford st. lodging house after police received a telephone tip They gave their names as Arthur Bruno, 48, and Paul A. Doran, 30.

The Back Bay "jewelry" proved to be imitation goods for display purposes, but watches and other jewelry in the room of the men led to an investigation of other robberies.

The Back Bay break followed the theft of a taxicab at Columbus ave. and West Newton st., South End, while Alfred Gear of Rossiter st., Dorchester, the driver, was buying cigarettes.

Gear's report of the theft had hardly reached police when a burglar alarm told of the break in the Back Bay store. Police found the window smashed and several imitations missing. The sheared-off door of a taxi was found nearby

Frederick Horan, of Gordon st., Brighton, another cab driver, told police he witnessed the break. The bandits threw an auto jack threw the window, Horan said. The door was sheared off the taxi because one of the bandits failed to close the door.

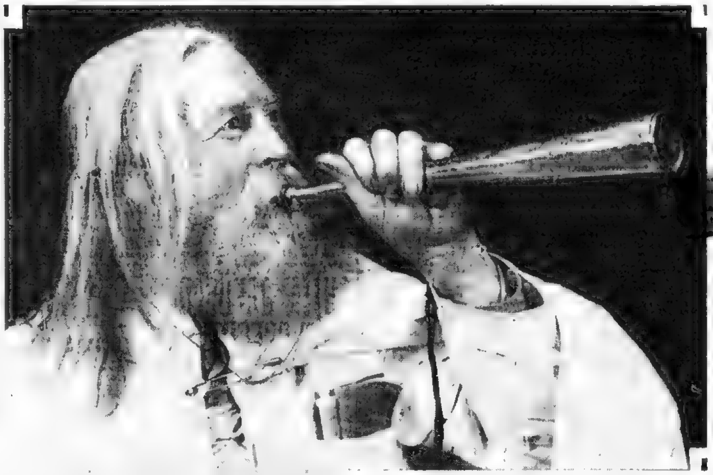
Newton Employes Fight Wage Cut

Newton police and firemen, with city laborers, today were planning to ask a public hearing on the 7½ per cent wage slash ordered by Mayor Sinclair Weeks. They are under civil service.

Much resentment was expressed by city employes at the mayor's action which they claim was unnecessary. They contended the Newton tax rate of [illegible] than that of any city in the state, and fail to see why wages should be cut in order to lower it more.

Teachers and school employes who also were cut were not expected to take any action as they are not entitled to a public hearing, it was said.

PROPHET'S HORN TOOTS GLAD TIDINGS OF BEER'S RETURN



No, this isn't Santa Claus in his evening-at-home lounging robes nor Old Father Time blowing out the old year. It's Prophet Jonas B. Israel (John B. Nash to you) of Mineral County, West Virginia, who blew into Boston today with his Gabriel's Trumpet and his standard lettered with Biblical quotations. Prophet Jonas says he has successfully predicted everything from the Johnstown flood to date and now says he sees the early return of beer. (Staff photo.)

YULETIME BAUBLES SEIZED AS GEM ROBBERS' LOOT

Some of the jewelry seized by police in a Milford st. lodging house when they rounded up two men, suspected of being the taxicab bandits that crashed Shreve, Crump & Low's window in Boylston st. early today and vanished with gems that turned out to be paste for display purposes. But the gems above are real enough to start police on a hunt for evidence of other robberies with which they will try to connect the two men, Arthur Bruno and Paul A. Doran. (Staff photo.)

COL. HAMMOND FORCED OUT OF RANGERS

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Jack McCarthy Is Gone. Change in Garden Ring. It Never Will Be Same. ↕ We Will Miss Big Jack. Other Politician-Fans. Three Fighting Mayors.

World Is Better for the Jack McCarthys

SO BIG JACK McCARTHY—John J. McCarthy, boxing fan, former alderman, business man and political boss in Somerville is gone. The Great Time Keeper has clanged the Last Gong over Big Jack. Somehow the ringside at the Boston Garden never will be quite the same now that Big Jack is gone. Big Jack was as much of a ring fixture in the Garden as the ring posts. He was always there, always in the same seat, and always fought each contest going on in the ring in front of him right in his chair. My, how Big Jack sometimes would work those big hairy fists of his! How he would block and duck and grunt and puff in his ringside chair! And what ferocious scowls sometimes would cloud his ordinarily good natured smiling Celtic face. You could always tell whether the fight was a good or bad one by watching Big Jack. When the big, florid faced, red-haired fan sat still and somber, with a half bored, half expectant scowl on his face, the fight was slow. When Big Jack started to twitch his arms and "make faces" the fighting was getting hot. When Big Jack bobbed up and down in his seat, blocking and hitting and contorting his features into a wild fighting Irish grin you could wager the boys inside the ropes were battling like a pair of dyspeptic bobcats.

Mayor Murphy to Rescue

Sometimes in his wild, fighting exhuberance, Big Jack would leave his chair and stand in the aisle swinging and roaring in wild abandon. We have seen Big Jack's frequent seatmate, Mayor Murphy of Somerville, grasp Big Jack by the collar and pull him back in his seat, apparently fearing McCarthy was going to clamber into the ring right over the heads of the scribes in the press seats. We got many a laugh watching Big Jack McCarthy at the Garden fights. The Garden ring will seem strange without him. As we look across the ring, there will be no Vacant Chair, for another fan will move into Big Jack McCarthy's vacated seat. But Big Jack himself will be missing. And we'll be sorry—oh so sorry. The world needs Big Jack McCarthys. The world is better for its laughs Big Jack McCarthy gave out laughs in wild abandon. You don't need to be a philosopher to understand that the singer, dancer, comedian, clown, entertainer, anyone who makes you laugh, makes you relax, takes you "out of yourself," fills just as important a place in the cosmogony of things as the doctor, the clergyman, the banker, the statesman. Yes, the world is better for laugh makers like Big Jack McCarthy.

He's Happy in Valhalla

We like to think that what is our loss will be Valhalla's gain. We like to picture Big Jack McCarthy, an Irishman whose red shock of hair was an heirloom of Erin's invasion by the Danes, up there in that Norse heaven where all true fighting men go, draining beakers served by the Valkyries, rubbing elbows with all the heroes and fighting men, roaring for Thor to lead his left and bellowing for Odin to cross his right. In Valhalla, the same as in Erin's Tir Na Ogue, the Place Where Everyone Is Young, age drops from the shoulders, muscles again bulge with youthful vigor, the spring comes again to one's limbs and the joy of life into one's heart. Big Jack McCarthy can do in Valhalla what he couldn't do in the Boston Garden ring—leap right in there in all the glory of his youth and the strength of his young manhood and swing his left and cross his right himself, instead of simply urging the other fellow to do it. In that blessing of the gods, Big Jack McCarthy is even happier in Valhalla than he was in his old ringside seat in Boston Garden.

Why Jim Farley Grinned

Sometimes we wonder what makes the politicians take their cauliflower so seriously. Most of them are more or less of the "Jumper" type of the late Big Jack McCarthy. It so happens that at odd times we have sat at the ringside with former Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York, the late Mayor Bader of Atlantic City and Big Bill Thompson of Chicago. We'll never forget our first ringside sitting with Mayor Walker. Just before a fight started in Madison Square Garden we stopped to chat with Mayor Walker, who was sitting beside James J. Farley, state boxing commissioner, who since has become the President Maker. Farley moved over so we had to sit between him and the mayor. Getting the information we were after, we arose to go but Farley pulled us down in the chair between himself and the mayor. He did it with a quizzical grin. We found out what that grin meant when the fight started. At the clang of the gong Mayor Walker started working both elbows like pistons. Like Big Jack McCarthy, Jimmie fought the fight right in his own chair. He worked harder than the fighters. It didn't take us long to find out why Big Jim Farley was so anxious to move over. Anyone who sat besides Jimmy Walker at a boxing bout had to play the part of a punching bag.

Big Bill Packed a Punch

Mayor Bader of Atlantic City was a great fight fan. He was an old athlete himself, a former Penn football player. Bader kept his feelings under control at ordinary fights. But when his idol, Jack Dempsey, was in the ring, Mayor Bader went wild with the rest of the gang. At the opening of the Chicago Stadium, the late Paddy Harmon sat us next to Mayor Thompson of Chicago. And Big Bill, did almost as much scrapping as did Mickey Walker and Tommy Loughran, who appeared in the main bout. It was bad enough taking the pokes of lightweight Jimmy Walker. Heavyweight Big Bill Thompson packed a harder wallop in his huge prodding elbows. Before the fight was over our ribs on Mayor Thompson's side were black and blue. Wonder what sort of a seatmate, Mayor Curley is? If James Michael Curley puts as much enthusiasm and "punch" into his fight rooting as he does into some of his speeches, a bullet proof vest would be correct dress for his seatmate.

He's little — BUT does he look BIG!

An Ice Bug's View of a Big Little Guy

He's no bigger than a Christmas doll (with all his pads) to the customers and weighs less than the collar off that Christmas beer you're going to get (maybe). But to a worried offense it's different. Frankenstein was a midget compared to Tiny Thompson, Bruin goalie, when the tough boys come clicking down the ice nursing the elusive disk. Finally he seems as big as a morning after head, and so there's just nothing to do about it except gamble—usually without much success.

League Lead Is in Reach of Bruins

By BILL GRIMES

"Although the Bruins may not have looked as strong as usual against Ottawa," explained Manager Art Ross today, "it was just the type of game I wanted them to get out of their systems with these truculent Detroit Red Wings coming here tomorrow night.

"You should bear in mind that the Bruins have just returned from a tough Western trip," continued the pilot. "And, boy, it was tough. We battled Chicago for 60 minutes and it was a miracle that Obs Heximer's goal was sufficient to give us a 1 to 0 victory.

"With four minutes to go, I told my players to remain on the ice, regardless of the tactics of the Hawks and they carried out my instructions. With three minutes to go, Hitchman was sent to the penalty box when Joe Lamb board-checked one of the Hawks. Apparently it was an attempt to break up our defense. Then I saw something I have not seen all season—an anti defense penalty. We sure were on the spot and I thought that bell would never ring.

PRAISES SENATORS

"I want to congratulate Cy Denneny on the playing of his Ottawa team. They are a smooth bunch of combination players and I was especially impressed with Syd Howe, who to my way of thinking is a coming star.

"We had one valuable break, the Heximer goal in the first period, for which I am duly thankful and as soon as Joe Lamb scored on that lightning play in the second period, I was perfectly satisfied to protect the lead, for I will be frank and tell you that I am gunning for the Red Wings tomorrow night.

"I was under the impression that the Maple Leafs looked upon us as their bitter hates, but I guess that Detroit does not entertain any brotherly love towards us.

"The Bruins will not start any trouble tomorrow night, but if the Red Wings are belligerent they will be accommodated. Personally, I don't anticipate a repetition of the Detroit incident, but we will be prepared and ready for action for we always strive to please."

The Red Wings [illegible] an unexpected [illegible] in New York when it was the first defeat at home for the [illegible]. Due to the combination of the Bruin 2 to 1 victory over Ottawa and the 4 to 1 Red Wing win over the Patricians, the Rossmen pulled up to within one game of the pacemakers of the American division, and can tie for the lead by winning tomorrow, as the New Yorkers will be idle.

LUCKY TO SCORE

According to reports the Red Wings [illegible] in the past while swamping the Rangers. In fact they should have shut out the New York outfit. In the second period, Bill Cook let fly a shot which was wide of the net but deflected off Ebbie Goodfellow's stick and caught John Ross Roach off guard.

After the lucky Cook goal which tied up the game, Detroit took the lead a couple of minutes later when Eddie Wiseman beat Andy Aitkenhead on a pass from Doug Young and in the final chapter, Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis clinched the game for the Red Wings.

The Toronto Maple Leafs came back into their own last night by defeating Les Canadiens in Montreal 2 to 1. The holders of the Stanley Cup are now three points out in front of Montreal Maroons, while the Flying Frenchmen are still deadlocked with Les Americans in last place.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—A report was current today that Col. John S. Hammond, president of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League had resigned and that his place would be taken by William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden.

Hammond could not be reached and Carey was reported to be en route to Springfield, Mass. [illegible] out the affairs of the Springfield club of the Canadian-American League, a Ranger farm, which Hammond had threatened to withdraw from the Massachusetts city.

The Sun, in carrying the report said it was the culmination of a long feud between Carey and Hammond dating back to the weeks immediately following the death of Tex Rickard when both were aspirants for Rickard's place and [illegible].

PATRICK BOOSTED

The paper also says that Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers, is reported to have been elevated to the vice presidency of the Rangers and placed in general charge.

Col. Hammond has been identified with hockey since its introduction to New York in 1925, first serving as president of the New York Americans and then going with the Garden and organizing the Rangers. He had helped Rickard finance the construction of the new Garden.

To Hammond, the Sun says, is given credit generally for doing most to creat the social atmosphere at hockey games. Indeed, the final stage of the row between he and Carey is said to have developed from Hamond's refusal to cut the admission prices on the score that to do so would lower the tone of the sport.

Carey is reported to have insisted on this at a meeting yesterday which finally became so heated that he demanded and got Hammond's resignation.

At the same time published reports that Madison Square Garden had quietly setled with the federal ogvernment a tax evasion question involving some $500,000 not reported to the internal revenue department from 1926 to 1932 caused considerable discussion.

TICKETS TO SPECS

It was reported that high officials of the Garden since [illegible] time of Tex Rickard had dealt with a syndicate of ticket brokers, selling them tickets sfor major sports events at prices greater than those

CURLEY DEAF TO PLEA OF EAGLES' SEXTET

PLAYERS MUST FURNISH OWN FINANCES

By JOE MOONEY

Through the vaulted passageways and in the recreation rooms at Boston College [illegible] days go a band of young men [illegible] the [illegible] Brother, Can You [illegible]

The [illegible] members of Boston [illegible] team a small sextet lacking only academic [illegible]. And the song they whistle [illegible] for the benefit of Graduate Manager John P. Curley.

B. C.'s hockey [illegible] is composed of undergraduates with a burning desire to represent the Maroon and Gold on the ice this winter. The college lends no financial support to the movement.

"NO," SAYS CURLEY

Graduate Manager Curley without even looking at the [illegible] books of the Boston College Athletic Association regrets that there isn't a dime to aid Boston College hockey this season. And when Mr. Curley opines there isn't a dime for such a cause in the college treasury, there is probably less than that.

And such a team as the boys have gathered together, too. Three are members of the Boston Hockey Club, regarded as the best amateur ice team in America today. They are Ray Funchion, Frank Liddell and Herb Crillisk. Another of local renown is Billy Hogan of Cambridge.

These and others without much question could give any and all the colleges around Boston [illegible] pasting on the [illegible]. They might, indeed, attract quite a following [illegible] the Arena or the Garden.

But the [illegible] Eagles' sextet must limp along under its [illegible] financial power.

FOOTBALL COMES FIRST

That beautiful new Stadium back of Boston College is requiring all the financial attention the B. C. athletic officials can spare these days.

The past grid season at University Heights failed to produce the dollars necessary to carry B. C.'s athletic burden with enough to spare for [illegible] hockey [illegible].

Football [illegible] "B" then [illegible] track. After that the other sports can engage in a free [illegible] for financial support, but [illegible] must understand that there [illegible] after that, just now.

Meanwhile Coach Jack Barry '24, braves the financial elements by arranging to take the unrecognized Eagles to Lake Placid for the intercollegiate hockey competition there next month.

Passing the Puck

—By BILL GRIMES—

One of the [illegible] of [illegible] the Detroit [illegible] over the Rangers last night in New York. On their [illegible] against the Bruins the [illegible] could [illegible] any club in the N. H. L. two goals and still win by a comfortable margin. Yet they lost a 4 to 1 game to the Red Wings.

Having won two in a row, one of which was a [illegible] the Red Wings will [illegible] when they tackle the Bruins tomorrow night at the Boston Garden. [illegible]

Although the Bruins were declared a winner, as a result of a sensational goal by Joe Lamb, they were badly outplayed by Manager Cy Denneny's Ottawa Senators, who have a fast, clever offense which will get them somewhere this season.

Bill Beveridge was at his best in the nets for Ottawa. In [illegible] he gave as fine an exhibition of goal tending as has been seen here this year. The first Boston goal resulted from a [illegible] break, a flipped pass from behind the net by Obs Heximer hitting Bill on the back of his right shoulder and deflecting into the net.

Syd Howe, the Ottawa second line centre, was yards faster than any player on the ice. How that kid can burr when he opens up. He is only 21 years of age and will be a top notcher within a year or two.

Lionel Hitchman will be lucky if he gets back into the Bruin lineup within a fortnight. "Hitch" has a tough looking eye. Two stitches were taken on the eyeball, by a Chicago specialist, at one hundred smackers a stroke.

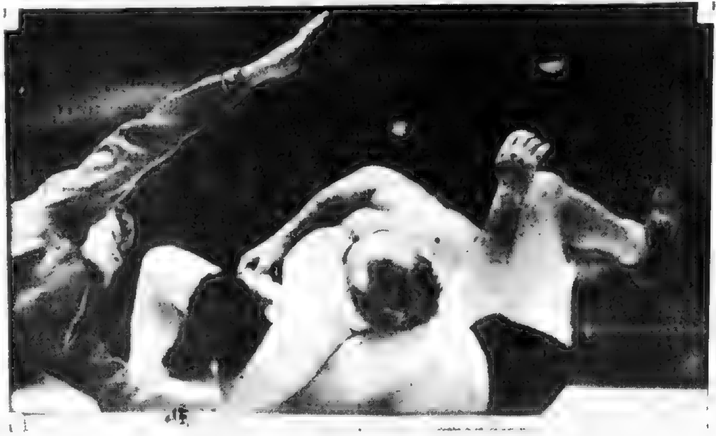
George Owen was used very sparingly last night. He was in the starting lineup but did not appear again after being relieved by Perk Galbraith, who, although not exactly a graceful defense man, is, nevertheless, quite effective.

W. E. House Team Plays Wakefield "Y"

The West End House basketball team will take on the strong Wakefield Y. M. C. A. five at the West End House gymnasium Saturday. The West End House has been undefeated on their court this season.

The West End House seconds will play the Wakefield Y. M. C. A. seconds. Dancing follows the game.

STRANGLER MAKES GOOD A CARELESS BOAST



And here you see Referee Gunboat Smith ready to give him the shoulder tap that kept him honest. The Strangler had claimed he could throw any two wrestlers the same night. So they picked Leon Pinetzki and Sammy Stein to find out. Leon passed out of the picture with a headlock in 28 minutes, and here you see Stein going the same route with same hold in 32 minutes..

YANKS' TRIUMPH FEATURE OF '32

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—By an overwhelming margin the nation's sports experts have decided that the New York Yankees' feat of winning the American League championship and the World Series was the greatest team achievement of the year.

Exactly 100 out of the 302 votes cast in the second annual Associated Press poll of sports writers and editors went to the Yankees. The [illegible] football teams of Colgate and Southern California, the [illegible] of the Green Bay Packers, the United States Olympic track and field squad, and California's all-conquering crew, finished badly distanced also-rans to the Yankees.

COLGATE SECOND

Colgate's football array, undefeated, untied and unscored upon, finished in second place with 33 votes, six more than Southern California's moleskin warriors.

Apparently it was the Yankees' [illegible] performance [illegible] long [illegible] from [illegible]. Other [illegible] that turned the [illegible] ballots toward them rather than to any one football team. The Yankees played 161 games where football elevens are asked to play nine or 10 at the most.

1—New York Yankees, baseball ... 100
2—Colgate football
3—Southern California football
4—U. S. Olympic track and field team
5—Green Bay pro football team
6—University of California crew
7—U. S. Olympic [illegible] sports
8—[illegible]
9—[illegible]
11—Japanese Olympic swimming team ... 7

GAME TONIGHT

Boston at Philadelphia.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

GEORGE NICHOLS, world's light heavyweight champion, wires me from Buffalo he will arrive in town next Monday to finish his training for his 15-round title contest with Norman Conrad of Wilton, N. H., which will be dropped in at the Arena on December 30.

This is the first time Nichols has put his championship on the spot since he was proclaimed king of the boxing division by the National Boxing Association.

Mr. Boston

Nichols and Conrad will both weigh in at 175 pounds, which is the limit for the light heavyweight division. Conrad will come down from New Hampshire next Tuesday. He will entrench at Jerry Buckley's gym on Friend st., where he will polish up his punches for his shot at the title.

It will be the first world's championship bout in this city since Lou Brouillard won the world's welterweight crown from Jack Thompson at the Boston Garden last December.

Conrad has picked up the necessary experience to give the champion severe opposition. Norman engaged in 34 bouts during the past year. He dropped to Dave Shade and Adolph Heuser, but crashed through with victories in his other ring engagements.

Watson to Get Match

IT WAS CHARLEY HARVEY'S appearance before the New York Athletic Commission more than anything else that caused the ring solons to reverse their stand in regard to Seaman Watson, English featherweight champion. Jimmy Johnston matched Watson to collide with "Kid" Chocolate at the New York Garden on January 27.

This announcement caused the commission to rule that Watson must first prove his ability at one of the smaller clubs before being permitted to bow into the Garden.

The English champion was indignant as a result of this ruling, and declared he would not come to this country. Harvey then appeared before the commission and satisfied the boxing powers that Watson is a real champion and has the necessary ability to give Chocolate a tough fight.

Harvey has a great standing before every boxing commission in the country. He is known as a square shooter. It was his plea for Watson more than anything else that made the Watson-Chocolate bout a Garden fixture.

Ancil Hoffman in Gotham

ANCIL HOFFMAN, manager of Max Baer, is in New York doing his Christmas shopping. He wants the fistic Santa Claus to give him a bout for Baer with Max Schmeling.

Jack Dempsey is anxious to promote such a contest in one of the New York ball parks.

Baer has not fought since he won from Ernie Schaaf in Chicago. He has so many managers that he is afraid it will cost him money if he steps into action in the ring. Max, however, asserts he would consider fighting if given a bout with Schmeling.

Der Max, meanwhile, is taking things easy in Germany. I understand he isn't hot for a Baer bout. He prefers fighting Jack Sharkey. The German is anxious to receive a crack at the title.

Schmeling is smart enough to know that the small end of a bout with Sharkey would be more than he can hope to get even if he receives the big slice of the purse for a Baer go.

TWO IN RUNNING FOR CUE TITLE

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—The national pocket billiard championship lies strictly between Ralph Greenleaf of New York and Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, with the other eight hopefuls definitely also-rans.

Greenleaf's seventh successive victory of the current championship tournament, a 125 to 69 triumph over the 22-year-old Jimmy Caras, together with Rudolph's sixth winning game in seven starts, left these two veteran masters of the game the sole remaining contenders for the crown now held by Greenleaf.

Greenleaf's two remaining games take him against Pasquale Natalie of Chicago this afternoon and against Rudolph tommorow night. Rudolph, before he clashes with the champion, must tackle Andrew Ponzi, the sensational Philadelphian, tonight. A victory for Greenleaf today, coupled with a defeat for Rudolph, automatically would clinch the title again for the dapper champion.

Caras, competing in his first championship, gave Greenleaf a tough fight before he surrendered to the champion's superb play.

HARVARD FROSH SEXTET OPENS

The Harvard freshman hockey team opens its season at the Boston Garden this afternoon when it clashes with the Belmont Hill sextet, one of the finest combinations in prep school ranks.

Coach Clark Hodder's yearling outfit, lined with former prep school and high school stars, appears as one of the strongest frosh sextets at Harvard in years, outclassing even last year's champion team which lost only one game during the season, and which contributes three regulars to the varsity this winter.

Since 1926 such premiums have been taxed 50 per cent by the Federal government, but it was said that the Garden had failed to make returns.

The Department of Internal Revenue, the story said, was informed of this condition by two Madison Square Garden box office employes who were discharged last June.

Federal investigation that followed uncovered a separate set of Garden records, held by the box office men, detailing the transactions.

A conference between Garden officials and Federal men was said to have led to a settlement involving several hundrtd thousand dollars.

INTRODUCED HOCKEY

Col. Hammond introduced professional hockey to New York in 1925 and became president of the Rangers when the club was organized in 1926.

He was a close friend of the late Tex Rickard and gave the boxing promoter valuable advice in the construction of the Eighth ave sports palace. Snappy military uniforms for ushers, evening clothes for ticket takers and other fancy frills were part of the Hammond psychology to lure the elite of society to sports events.

WIN OVER LUTZE GUS' REQUEST OF SANTA

By JACK CONWAY

"Where is your wheel chair, Gus?" I asked.

"You must have been reading stories about some of my recent injuries," said the old Dynamiter laughingly. "I'm all right now. The shoulder injury I received in my bout with Ed George in Milwaukee bothered me for a week, but the condition has cleared up."

I asked Sonny to tell me about the muscle spasm which almost ruined him in his recent winning go with Jim Browning at the Garden.

MUSCLES TIGHTENED

"I was warmed up in the dressing room when somebody told me to start for the ring. When I reached the edge of the floor section at the Garden, I noticed they were exhibiting dogs in the ring. I waited for 10 minutes before I could enter the ring. I got chilled during this delay. Then when I got into the ring there was another delay while the ring was cleaned.

"My muscles tightened up. That's what caused all the trouble. A couple of times during the bout I suffered so much pain I thought I would faint.

"I am leaving for Philadelphia by airplane in a couple of hours. I'm wrestling Sam Stein in Philadelphia on Wednesday night.

"I shall then return to Boston, stopping off at Holyoke for a bout. I will be in the best of condition when I clash with Nick Lutze at the Boston Garden on next Monday night.

MORELLI IN SEMI-FINAL

Al Morelli, former Boston College star, has signed to meet Matros Kirilenko, Russian heavyweight, in the semi-final which has a 30-minute limit.

"Gentleman" Jack Washburn has been matched to clash with Axel Anderson. Charley Strack, who has [illegible] a return bout with Washburn, will oppose John Spellman, [illegible] of Brown.

Count George Zarynoff will take on Benny Ginsberg. "Tiny" Roebuck will collide with Elmer Anderson. Stanley Pinto will clash with Boris Demetroff. "The Masked Marvel" will whirl into action against Nick Skotos, while Jack Wagner and Dr. Fred Meyer will furnish some fireworks.

Brockton Y. M. H. A. to Meet Hub Five

The Brockton Y. M. H. A. will get a [illegible] to [illegible] here [illegible] on next Saturday night, December 24, at the Seaver st. gymnasium.

A great deal of friendly rivalry exists between Brockton and Boston Y. M. H. A., and both clubs would rather have this victory than perhaps any other in the schedule.

Fish 'n Game

By WIN BROOKS

I am not sure what the title of this should be, but there is no doubt in my mind that the only appropriate and relevant moral is "Be not of too trusting a nature in sport, for even the wild fowling is in the bag."

Thus prologue becomes also epilogue and the yarn only the tail. This is it:

A duck hunter of my acquaintance, and one of the very best wing shots I know, had promised a friend a pair of ducks for the table and when the last day of the season arrived had not, for one reason and another, made good. It behooved him either to put up or forever shut up and he decided that come what may he must produce.

On the afternoon of the final day he went to the duck stand where he holds membership on Braintree Great Pond, determined that any luckless ducks flying within range that day should grace his friend's festive board. As is quite often the case when one is over anxious no game showed. There wasn't a flight in sight all afternoon and as approaching dusk heralded the close of the season he was without the pair of ducks.

In his dismay, because he valued this friendship highly and is a man who keeps his word, he communicated his problem to the gunner who, for years, has cared for the stand. The gunner mulled it over for a while and finally came topside with a bright solution. He'd just wring the necks of a couple of callers, he said.

"No go," said my friend. "This fellow I've got to produce for will be looking all over those ducks for the shot."

"We'll fix that," said the gunner. "You toss up a couple of birds, one by one, and I'll knock 'em over."

My friend tossed the first caller and the gunner fired at 40 yards. The duck kept on going. Another duck was tossed and the gunner gave him 30 yards' handicap. The second duck kept right on going.

"The light is bad," said the gunner. "Toss another."

Soon another was taken from the pen and tossed and Nels fired three shots from his pump before it was out of range.

"I have decided," said my friend, "that if you do the tossing and I do the shooting, we will more quickly realize our aim which, as you may not know, is two ducks."

So the gunner tossed and my friend shot and after two more ducks had vanished in the gloaming, the latter agreed that the swiftly falling darkness was, indeed a handicap.

"So what did we do," said Tom Horgan, "but Nels put two callers in an old grain sack, hung it from a tree and shot into it. And that is how we got the ducks for Ray Winston. But for the love of Mike, don't use any names in the story."

PENN-GOTHAM BOARDS SPLIT

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 21 (INS)—The Pennsylvania and the New York State athletic commissions have severed relations.

The break became known today when Harry T. Farrell, chairman of the Pennsylvania commission, made public a letter he sent to John J. Phelan, acting chairman of the New York commission protesting the approval of a bout between Stanley Poreda and Ernie Schaaf.

Farrell said the New York commission approved the bout Dec. 16 despite the fact that it had concurred in Pennsylvania's suspension for his alleged failure to honor a contract to meet George Godfrey in Philadelphia.

Eleven Nova Scotia Boxers Suspended

COACH HOLLAND MUST DROP 100 AT MECHANICS

By BILL CONNELL

Quantity production of school track and field event performers is going on at Mechanic Arts high this season with one of the largest school track teams of the state romping under the guidance of Coach "Dutch" Holland.

The small dynamo of the Artisans sports destinies, Holland, knew it would be too tough to call out all the track candidates the same day.

So he summoned the freshmen one afternoon. Just 115 yearlings galloped to the meeting. Sophs came out a few days later, 92 strong. And the junior and senior candidates who were called later on brought the total up over 250.

It wouldn't be possible to coach such a [illegible] so there will be only 150 or 160 on Holland's corps when the meets of the Boston schools arrive.

It goes to show again what a tremendous hold track and field has on Boston schoolboys. Each year the total squads enrolment grows larger. Which is very good for the youngsters. Even though it makes the mentors grow gray figuring out methods for handling such numbers.

A few of the Mechanic Arts seniors who are going to win points, are Gilbert, Yavarow and Burrin in the 300, Strandberg and Mullins hurdlers and Grant and Connor in the dash. Charley Smith and Bill Jennings in the high jump and John Regan and Haig Harrison in the hurdles are capable intermediates. It is difficult to size up the untried juniors, but Yankum Sparks and Johnson should score frequently.

Bids have closed on the new track at Brookline high, and with a break in the weather, the saucer will be ready the first of the year. Which would help Tom Hines a lot in his work of building a strong track team at the Wealthy Town school.

Brookline will need a strong team, to cope with Newton, its old rival. For Don Enoch has a powerful Newton team preparing for the season ahead. With Doug Sloane, captain and dash ace, a real leader, able to score a first in any of the dual meets Newton has slated.

GROVE AGAIN A. L. HILL ACE

FIVE OF FIRST TEN LEADERS ARE ROOKIES

By JOE CASHMAN

Kid pitchers more than held their own with the veteran American League mound aces during the past season, according to the official records.

Of the first ten most effective twirlers from the earned-run standpoint, five are youngsters which is remarkable considering that a big rookie has the hardest row to hoe of any aspirant to a major league berth.

Bob "Lefty" Grove, Charlie Ruffing, Ted Lyons and Alvin Crowder, all experienced hands, grabbed off the first four places in the list, but the youths came strong after that, taking five of the next six berths.

ANDREWS SIXTH

Tom Bridges of Detroit tops the kids, with Ivy Paul Andrews of our Red Sox right behind, in sixth. Then come Elon Hogsett, Tiger southpaw, in seventh, Johnny Allen of the Yanks in ninth and Oral Hildebrandt of the Indians in tenth position.

Eighth place goes to Wes Ferrell, another veteran, who won 23 games and, thus, for the fourth time in as many seasons in fast company turned in over 20 victories.

And in games won and lost, Allen tops the entire field with 17 victories and but four defeats for an average of .810.

Despite an injury which kept him out of the game for three weeks in mid-season and which handicapped him the rest of the way, "Lefty" Grove turned in the finest earned run average in the loop, for the fourth consecutive season. The Mackian southpaw permitted but 2.84 earned tallies a game.

LYONS OUTSTANDING

Perhaps the most meritorious of the season's mound performances was that turned in by Ted Lyons, White Sox ace. With one of the weakest clubs in major league history, the stylish Texan permitted only 3.28 runs per contest to finish right behind Grove, who had a second place club for support, and Charlie Ruffing of the world's championship Yanks.

Ted's record season after season with the lowly White Sox indicates that with a winning club, he would be in a class by himself.

Almost as outstanding as Lyons was our Ivy Paul Andrews. Coming here from the Yankees in exchange for Danny MacFayden, he should have been discouraged over the shift from a pennant winner to a tail ender. Instead, he gave everything he had to help the Sox cause, won eight games while losing only six, to be the only winning pitcher on a club that didn't win a third of its games, and came in sixth with the fine mark of 3.53 runs per game.

MacFayden, able to win only one out of 11 games here, scored eight victories in 13 starts for the Yanks but his earned runs average with the world's champions was 3.95 or 15 points higher than Andrews' Red Sox average.

CROWDER CLOSES FAST

Alvin Crowder, of the Senators, after a so-so season the year before, came back strong after losing 11 of his first 24 games. He won 15 games in a row after August 1, and led the field in number of victories with 26. He also pitched the most innings.

Vernon Gomez, Yanks' southpaw, with 24 victories and seven defeats, was second in games won and lost, and Ruffing, with 18 victories and seven defeates, third. No wonder those Yanks walked off with the flag.

Bump Hadley of Lynn, hurling for the White Sox and Browns, was the league's wild man, walking 171 batters.

Pitchers in 45 or more innings rated according to earned run average per nine inning game:

QUEENS OF OUR CARNIVAL FROLIC

IONE MUIR MARY FLYNN AGNES CONNOLLY

Miss Flynn and Miss Connolly won prizes at the Boston Evening American's Christmas Basket Fund skating frolic at the Arena, and the valuable awards won smiles from the pretty misses. Mrs. Muir, one of the Frolic judges, helps Miss Flynn try on the jacket awarded her as Queen of the Frolic. The jacket was donated by Scott Furriers, 411 Washington st., Boston. Miss Connolly, right, holds shoe skates awarded her as wearer of prettiest costume. Skates are one of two pairs presented by South End Hardware Co., 1095 Washington st., Boston. The Basket Fund Frolic was unanimously voted the finest affair of its kind this season.

Quinn in Market for Catcher, Pitcher

"I'll trade anyone on my ball club."

"Pitching and punch is our aim."

"I am working right now on deals for another catcher and pitcher."

Four short sentences which sum up Bob Quinn's aim and aspirations for the 1933 edition of the Red Sox.

A typical dark and gloomy day [illegible] Mid-winter at [illegible] the Red Sox offices [illegible] it was the middle of the [illegible] season. Bob Quinn and his right hand men were discussing plans and players with plenty of [illegible].

"Are you finished trading," queried the correspondent.

"Not by a long shot," responded the Red Sox prexy. "I'll trade anyone on my ball club.

"Right now I am working on deals for another catcher and pitcher. The only trouble is that the other fellows want the players that I won't give up."

"What are the prospects for next year?"

"Well," was the smiling response, "I don't imagine we will beat out the Yankees. But I know we'll be considerably higher than that last place berth."

"What about your lineup for next year?"

"It's a little too early for that," replied Bob. "However, I'll say that it won't resemble last year's very closely. Smead Jolley showed us enough to rate serious consideration behind the bat during the coming campaign. He was weak on foul flies and on getting the ball away. Practice will remedy that. And don't forget he has one of the greatest arms in baseball.

"Mulleavy was the best shortstop in the Coast League last year. This season he will cover third base. A big lad and very fast, he is also a real hitter.

"Seeds is a good all around ball hawk. Hodapp and Fothergill should help. Hodapp's bad ankle handicapped him considerably last year and he did not play regularly.

"Young Spognardi looks as if he'll fit himself in there somewhere. He is as sweet a fielder as there is in the league. Looks as if he'll hit, too.

DRILL TROJANS ON FORWARDS

Los Angeles, Dec. 21 (AP).—What [illegible] place the next 12 days inside the locked gates of the field where Southern California prepares for its Rose Bowl football game with Pitt [illegible] there is certain [illegible] passes [illegible].

The [illegible] the Trojans this year threw passes for touchdowns. Almost half of Southern California's 23 touchdowns in nine games were made on successful aerial attempts.

Coach Howard Jones' team scored eight touchdowns on passes, intercepted two of its opponents' tosses for touchdowns and otherwise advanced the ball through the air to make possible at least a portion of the 11 touchdowns which came from running plays.

Two scoring thrusts resulted from blocked kicks while [illegible] one was paved by a penalty which placed the ball a couple of yards short of the goal line.

There is no question that the 1932 edition of the Trojan war horse has traversed by air a greater distance than in any one season before.

200 ENTER W. E. HOUSE WALK

The West End House will hold their traditional Christmas Day walk with more than 200 members competing. The senior course is 16 miles and is held each year regardless of weather conditions.

Henry Davis, winner of the walk in 1931, holds the record in 2 hours 28 minutes and 7 seconds. The record was previously held by Alden Burroughs, now running under the colors of the B. A. A.

The race has always proved to be a colorful and spirited affair and thousands of graduates and friends turn out to watch the races.

The senior races start at 11 o'clock Monday morning, Dec. 26.

Besides the senior race there are three other classes, midgets, juniors and intermediates. The distances are [illegible] and eight miles respectively. The midget race starts at 10, the juniors at 10:15 and the intermediates at 10:30.

TRIBE TO HOLD DIAMOND CLASS

Plenty of big league baseball players in the making around Boston were [illegible] up their gloves and trying a few practice swings [illegible] around the parlor today following the news that the Braves [illegible] conduct their free school [illegible].

[illegible] of big league baseball.

In making the announcement of the continuation of the school, Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves called particular attention to the aid given the youngsters by President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox.

Judge Fuchs pointed out that Quinn's fine work with the boys in the Boston Park Department League was a real contribution both to the furtherance of interest in professional ball and to the development of future diamond stars around Boston.

This school for young baseball players is strictly on the up and up. There is no charge for the excellent instruction given and there is a law preventing professional league clubs from picking up the most adept pupils they may discover. No effort is made to sign any of the pupils.

Are Women More Ingenious?

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETIMES I [illegible] more [illegible]

* * *

Of course, when it comes to great discoveries and inventions and all that, man is the master mind. He will admit it himself. But in little things which require ingenuity, quick thinking and a knowledge of human nature, the subtler sex can always "put him on the spot."

Helen Rowland

* * *

[illegible] matter of [illegible] for instance. More [illegible] bank runners and [illegible] have been held up [illegible] little black bag [illegible] MUST be [illegible] black bag [illegible]

* * *

The other day I walked out of a hotel gaily swinging a bright, flowered hatbox, hopped into a taxi and drove over two miles [illegible] one bank to another with [illegible] tremor. In that box was [illegible] fortune. But it [illegible] have been one of these [illegible] evening hats from [illegible] nonchalant way in which I swung it. They had offered me a little black bag and an armed guard. But I'm a woman—so I chose a flowered hatbox.

Her theory was that if she locked them up somebody would suspect they were valuable; but when she just tossed them around carelessly nobody would dream that they were anything but five-and-ten. If she had been a man, she would probably have locked them away in a little black bag.

* * *

Some day I'm going to invent an embroidered knitting bag for bank runners—and win a place in the Hall of Fame! No bank official will ever think of it! It would be a CHANGE! And the masculine mind abhors a change as Nature "abhors a vacuum"!

Husband Forgets Her for Others

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We've been married six years. We [illegible] happy [illegible] and my husband [illegible] When an [illegible] around he forgets me [illegible] and goes wild over [illegible] woman who will listen to [illegible] wisecrack. I [illegible] person, and this [illegible] driving me mad.

The [illegible] form of [illegible] please for man [illegible] business men. Are you sympathetic with his desire to shine, to be the life of the party? Silhouette Stays Unchanged in New Collections at Paris

By CABLE FROM PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Dec. 21. The last few fashion collections presented by Paris [illegible] have offered practically no changes of the silhouette. All [illegible] has been concentrated, rather, in the [illegible] used, the [illegible] and their combinations and the [illegible] of hand work. The [illegible] change in line has had to do with the placing of [illegible] which has moved gradually toward the [illegible] front.

Note, for example, the way Madame Bruyere, who designed the [illegible] in today's sketch, places shirrings on the skirt; these shirrings repeat the decoration on the sleeves, yet serve at the same time [illegible] and well in place the gathers below. The material of which the dress is made [illegible] soft tweed mixing threads of two [illegible] of brown [illegible] seem to be too heavy for such gathers, but [illegible] with horizontal stitchings, are effective.

[illegible] also by Bruyere—is the current Paris version of the turban [illegible] in fabric in two shades of brown. The [illegible] oxfords are in [illegible] ghillie line and are fashioned of brown box calf and sea serpent.

Santa and the Magic Doll

By SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: A woods fairy sees a dwarf give some keys he had stolen from Santa to his friends the toads. She discovers that Inga and Pinocchio, two dolls from Toyland, are in the woods hunting the dwarf and the keys. They must find a whistle which calls the toads together.

CHAPTER XV

Getting the Whistle

The woods fairy and Inga and Pinocchio walked up the mountain to the dwarf's cave trying to think of some way to get from him that whistle with which he called all his toad friends together.

The little brown elves worked and worked trying to push a big rock in front of the dwarf's cave to lock him in.

The dwarf meanwhile thought he had fixed everything so well that he just went to sleep in his underground home.

"This dwarf is so strong and so ugly in his nature," explained the fairy to the two dolls, "that I can't send my little wood elves against him."

There didn't seem to be a thing to do. But suddenly Pinocchio looked up above the cave-like door to the dwarf's home and saw several huge rocks hanging on the mountainside.

"Why, if we could push one of those down in front of his door, he couldn't get out," said Pinocchio.

"That's a fine idea," said the fairy. "I'll call all my elves together and we'll try to push one of those rocks."

She kneeled down and tapped three times on the ground and from every tree and bush around there tumbled cunning little brown men.

"Come with us," she said, "we want help to push one of those rocks down here in front of the dwarf's door."

So the whole group of them trooped up to a huge, gray rock and started pushing. But not an inch did it move.

"Why, how stupid of me," said Inga. "Here's the basket that is never empty. I'll just pull out a whole bunch of little donkeys. They're very strong."

They pushed and pushed and suddenly the rock moved an inch. Then it moved another inch. Then "crash!" and it went rolling down the hill and ended up "smack" against the dwarf's door. There wasn't an inch for him to squeeze through.

Then the whole company ran down the hill to hear the dwarf crying out inside: "Let me out! Help! I'm all shut in!"

"Not this time," cried Pinocchio. "You're locked up until we get that whistle."

"What whistle?" shouted the dwarf. "I don't know what you mean."

"Yes, you do," cried the woods fairy. "I know about it."

And when the dwarf knew she was out there he changed his tune.

"If I give it to you, will you help me get out?" he whined.

"Right away, but you must give it to us first."

Sure enough, there was a tiny silver whistle. Inga grabbed it quickly. But then they had to get that big rock away from the door.

Slack Posture May Cause Backache

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

"I SUFFER from sacro-iliac backache," somebody just wrote me. "Is there anything that I can do to relieve the pain?"

Dr Copeland

I receive many letters like this. Some of these sufferers have not been to a physician but they clearly describe their symptoms.

Backache may be caused by various things, but among the most common and important causes is trouble in the "sacro-iliac articulation." These big words apply to the joint between the lowest portion of the spinal column and the hip bone.

This joint is easily dislocated, strained or injured. A fall, lifting a heavy object, a blow or a twist may injure this sensitive articulation. Persons who are overweight and whose work demands continual standing, bending or sitting, are in danger of trouble in this joint.

Faulty posture, such as results from standing or sitting in a slouching position, leads to this ailment with all its discomforts. If you have ever suffered from sacro-iliac backache you appreciate how annoying and painful this condition can be.

Rest is imperative in an acute attack of this disorder. Complete rest in bed will materially reduce the pain and shorten the duration of the attack.

For those who are unable to take advantage of this method of treatment, strapping of the back will help a lot. Strap with adhesive plaster, starting from the left hip and extending over to the opposite side. Then reverse the process, strapping from the right side. Continue until five or six layers of adhesive strapping overlap each other. In most instances pain is immediately relieved by the strapping.

The pain is due to a spasm of the muscles caused by sudden movements or muscular exertion. The adhesive strapping serves as a tight corset and restricts the movements of the muscles, easing the pain.

Health Queries

E. B. Q.—What causes a dull pain on top of the head?

A.—This may be due to high blood pressure. Have your blood pressure tested, also have your eyes examined.

F. D. F. Q.—How can I gain weight?

A.—Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Exercise daily in the fresh air, practice deep breathing. Get regular hours of sleep. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic.

Daily True Story

The Interlude

HARRY WAS WAITING at the station when Alice arrived, tired from her long journey. She hadn't expected him to meet her but realized her heart was beating faster as he approached and took her suit case.

"I had to see you before you got to the house," he said. "Tom and Anne are there. They've just come back from their honeymoon. Tom called me at the office, so I went out to the house and opened it and let them in. They'll be here for a few days."

"Do they know?" asked Alice quickly.

"No," answered Harry. "They know you've been away but they think you've been visiting friends. I told them I was living at the club while you were away. They wanted to see you, of course, and so I——" His explanation trailed away.

"All right," said Alice. "Just don't you say anything. Let me do the talking."

VISIT NEWLY-WEDS

The newly-weds were waiting at the house when Alice and Harry arrived. Anne ran to the arms of her elder sister.

"I'm so glad you got back before we left," said Anne. "Did you have a nice time?"

"Splendid," answered Alice. "But don't let's talk about my trip. I'm sorry I couldn't get down to the wedding."

"Oh, that's all right," said Anne. "It was almost an elopement, you know. Tom and I didn't see any sense in waiting any longer. People say you have to be careful about getting married, but we know our minds. And, then, we had you and Harry as an example. Everybody says they have never seen a more perfect married couple than you two."

Alice said, "That's very nice of them."

"Oh, but it isn't," interrupted Tom. "I've often told Anne that if we could just be as happy as you and Harry are I'd be satisfied. I'm going to get Harry to give me a few pointers."

"And you can tell me the secret of successful married life," said Alice.

GOES TO LUNCH

Alice changed the conversation.

"There isn't a thing to eat in the house," she said. "We'll have to go out to lunch. But I'll get in some food for dinner just the four of us."

The hours went by swiftly with a leisurely lunch and then a matinee. Then the return home for dinner being prepared by a hastily-summoned maid.

"Happy?" Alice asked Anne when they were alone together for a moment.

"Of course," Anne answered. "Why shouldn't I be? And we're going to stay happy, too. Just like you and Harry."

After dinner they talked and listened to the radio. Alice put up her hand to stifle a yawn but Anne saw her. The younger sister jumped up.

"Why didn't you say you were tired?" she demanded. "Of course you are—after that long trip. You go right up to bed." She turned to Harry.

"Make Alice go to bed, Harry," she said. "You two don't have to entertain us. Remember, we're still on our honeymoon."

Alice said good night and went upstairs. Harry followed.

"We'll have to tell them now," he said. Alice didn't answer. She was thinking, thinking deeply. She remembered how her heart had beat when she saw Harry at the station.

"We'll have to tell them something," Harry was saying. "Say that I've been called away by business, or something. Or tell them the truth."

A FOOLISH QUARREL

"No," answered Alice. "I can't do it. Don't you see how they admire us? Don't you see what a shock it would be to them at a time like this when they're just starting their own married life."

"You mean—?" asked Harry. His voice was low and intense. He moved closer to her.

"If you want to," answered Alice. "It was a foolish quarrel, anyway. We didn't mean it—I know I didn't. Nobody need ever know that I've been to Reno and got a divorce. We can get married again in the morning."

Grooming

How to Control the Frizzy Hair

NATURE SOMETIMES supplies the curl quality to hair but not the wave pattern, tresses then are bouffant and frizzy, a condition that is more or less distracting these days of the flat coiffure. Locks of this character can be made to conform by proper thinning, by applications of brilliantine and hot water at the same time, by arranging in undulations, clinching each wave flat with a small comb until the glorious crown has dried.

Little "Loll-About"

LITTLE LOLL-ABOUT, whose daily exercise consists of lifting an eyebrow now and then, lacks snap and ginger; she'll never stand among the beauty prize winners. Blood streams are sluggish, digestion not what it might be, complexion off-color, usually gray or sallow. It was intended that she should carry on, have an active life. She doesn't and she hasn't so she gets mouldy and mildewed and by the time she is thirty-five—which should be the period of her greatest charm—she is making a place for herself upon the shelf. So up and at 'em, lazy ones!

'THREE WOMEN' By Faith Baldwin

"What, for heaven's sakes? No such thing as love?" asked Van Alstyne, interrupted in a rather middle-aged dissertation on little Sally Morgan, Lady Staines and her son.

"Going-on-nineteen."

Van Alstyne was silent. She asked mischievously "Is there?"

"I think so, Joyce."

They went into the Ritz. Young Staines was not in the lounge and Joyce and Van Alstyne went downstairs and found a table and presently, after her healthy order had been given, Van Alstyne left her and went in search of his friend. She sat there alone, looking for, and not finding, any one she knew, speculating on the standardization of women's looks and clothes, tapping her foot to the beat of the orchestra, smiling happily because she was young and pretty, because she was endlessly stimulated by the new world her work was opening up before her because she liked crumpets, drippy crumpets and had a good digestion.

A very tall, lean young man was approaching the table. Van Alstyne was beside him. They sat down, the informal introductions were made. Staines commanded quantities of tea and then sat back to look at Joyce.

He thought her the prettiest girl he had ever seen. She was not really, but he believed it, which amounts to the same thing.

VERY BLOND.

Basil Staines had very blonde hair and a short, clipped mustache. He had steel gray eyes and a beaked, imperious nose. His skin was ridiculously pink and white, he had that deceptively innocent appearance which seems peculiar to his race and class.

"Really? Where?"

He named the play, the approximate date a week or so earlier.

"You were in a box."

"How nice of you to remember!" said Joyce.

"Quite involuntary. One wouldn't, you know."

"Forget."

"He has a marvelous line," Joyce remarked to their host.

"He's rather noted for it," he agreed.

Basil was no strong, silent hero, the taciturn Britisher of fiction. He consumed quarts of strong tea, he waved crumpets perilously in the air and talked an amazing amount of sense and nonsense. He liked America. He liked New York. He liked his job. He liked everything. And it seemed perfectly obvious that he liked Joyce.

Shortly after six Joyce looked at her wrist watch and came to her feet with an audible gasp.

"For Pete's sake! I'll be drawn and quartered and maybe boiled in oil. Uncle Fred, will you get me a taxi or something? They'll be telephoning to the police station and the hospitals."

"But you can't possibly be married!" said Staines in round-eyed horror. "Old Fred, here said,—Miss——"

JOYCE INDIGNANT.

"Not a worried husband, Basil, her grandmother."

"Oh, I see, we had one of those once," Staines confided, with exaggerated relief. "Regular we-are-not-amused-old-lady. I know them!"

When they reached the lobby Staines remembered an engagement and rushed off to telephone. But not before he took Joyce's hands firmly in his own.

"I'll see you again."

"Perhaps. I'm in college, you know."

"Don't tell me that!" he implored her.

"But I do. Barnard. However, I have some free time."

"Not any more," he assured her and hastened away.

"Well, I warned you," Van Alstyne said, watching her face.

"You did not!"

"I meant to, then. He's a breathtaking idiot. I'm very fond of him, however."

He put her into a taxi, and stood a moment on the curb. His eyes met hers, a little wistfully underneath their friendly smiling. A question, an appeal seemed to hover on his lips. But he did not speak save to wish her good-by.

Driving home she remembered that he had probably wanted to ask her about her mother. To send a message, perhaps.

In a moment she had forgotten him. She was thinking of Staines. She'd never met anyone quite like him. So young, so sure of himself—not in the way American boys were sure. He was charming, he was light. His mind was whimsical, alert; he had, she decided, a fascinating face, mobile, irregular, different. She would like to see him again. The sort of person one would never know whether to take seriously or not. Cool, she thought, a little amused at everything, himself included.

MUCH LATER.

It was, of course, much later than her usual routine when she reached home. To her grandmother's instant query she said, carelessly, "It's my afternoon at the laboratory."

Louisa indicated her acceptance of the excuse, but Elizabeth, looking at her daughter's impassive face, was instantly and intuitively convinced that Joyce had fibbed.

Joyce saw Van Alstyne once more after their meeting and then to wish him a safe voyage. She had tea with him alone, and they talked of nothing very much until he asked, abruptly, "Are you happy?"

"I suppose so. Yes, I am. Why not?"

She [illegible] and bunding [illegible] linen with [illegible] held [illegible] traced designs. When [illegible] her [illegible] them [illegible] had [illegible] into a flame.

"—it's hard to tell—I wanted to be a doctor, you know. Awfully. Grandmother wouldn't hear of it."

"I fancy not. Grandmother! What did your mother say to it?"

"Nothing—if she knew. I didn't tell her. Grandmother makes the decisions, you know. Frankly, it's her money."

HER DEBUT.

"She wouldn't let me. There was talk of making a debut after graduation and all that. I couldn't somehow. I talked it over with the head of our school, Miss Cora. I'd had some biology, some chemistry, rather like what you get in high school, perhaps a little more. I liked it, showed some aptitude. Miss Cora suggested that I take certain courses at Barnard—the biology first, then histology."

"Heavenly Fathers, what's that?"

"Study of tissues. Uncle Fred, you're laughing at me!"

"No, on my word."

"I could get a degree, taking other subjects in addition—four years—a B. S. But that isn't exactly what I want. I asked Grandmother if I could do this postgrad work and she said yes. Miss Cora helped to persuade her and so far she's been amiable about it. I think she believes I've taken it up just the way girls of her day acquired a smattering of—china painting, with just the same motives."

"We won't go into those. What are your real motives?"

"I can work the other courses into my schedule. A little physiology—other things. A sort of premedical business. Then I can get work in the laboratories, later—making slides, doing some drawing perhaps and—eventually——"

"Put yourself through medical school?" he asked.

"If I don't wait too long—and if I can."

HEART ACHED.

"Oh, you can," he murmured abstractedly, looking at her. How old was she, 19? Young as April with the slender, sterile-seeming figure of her generation, the eager face, the blue eyes.

His heart ached profoundly. He was suddenly conscious of loving her in many ways, for many reasons—for herself, for her father, for her mother. If Elizabeth had married him, he would have been courtesy-father to Joyce. He'd have made it more than that, they would have come to a close companionship, a wonderful relation.

"You're going to have a bad time," he said, slowly.

He seemed to see them there in the old house, three women of three generations. They were quite clear before him, the abyss dividing the one from the other, the struggle, the wordless warfare, the desperate voices with which they called, unheard, across the gulfs.

Her eyes questioned him.

"Joyce, promise me something?"

"Yes, Uncle Fred."

"If you need me, in any way, to let me know?" As she was silent, he added, "You're determined to go through with this. Oh, don't answer me. I see that you are. Do you realize it may mean—a break?"

She nodded.

"You'll need money?" And you'll ask me for it? My dear, I cared deeply for your father and I loved your mother. Doesn't that give me a little claim on their child? I'll not marry, you know that. It's too late now. The one woman I wanted wouldn't have me, and I couldn't, forgive me, be foolish enough to turn my eyes toward your delightful generation. I'll die a bachelor, quite happily, I suppose. There's a great deal of money you know, idle. Some of it will come to you at my death. I added a codicil to my will after I met you last summer, sitting in your funny little car, your absurd little face turned to the hills and sky. Well, that's all I'll say about it. You needn't frown at me, but if ever the time comes when you're up against it let me see you through? Borrow, if you like, if you'd rather, against what will be yours, eventually?"

SHE COULDN'T SPEAK

She couldn't speak for the pressure at her throat, couldn't see him clearly for the bright drops on her lashes. He asked, without looking at her:

"I've put it badly enough—but will you promise?"

"Yes—yes."

He looked up then. She had no need of words in which to thank him. He understood.

"This doctor business. Somehow, I can't see you in an atmosphere of blood and disinfectants, can't see you wearing tailor-mades and sailor hats, carrying a little black bag and talking histories and symptoms—however, tell me why?"

"You've got 'em wrong," she assured him. "Professional women are smart as anything nowadays. Clothes, I mean. But, as to why, I don't know. I always liked to take care of hurt things, even as a kid. But it isn't that now, I'm not so keen on that end of it any more. I'm mad on the discovering part, the exploratory side, the finding-out. I love the accuracy—the delicacy of touch you have to develop—the up-to-the-minute mind, the concentration. There's so much to learn and still so much after that. No end to it, so little is known, really. Do you think a woman could ever acquire it—the scientific mind, the—the detachment?"

He laughed, shook his head.

"Do I think? Ask your contemporaries, my dear, if you wish the affirmative answer! I'm all admiration for you youngsters and your ambitious gropings, your questionings and gallantry. But whether I think you'll come out anywhere, or find an answer, other than the answers of your mothers before you, whether I think you fight in a righteous cause, frankly, I don't know."

"Youngsters? You mean—girls?"

"Of course!"

LIFTED HIS HAND.

"Then you believe that——"

He lifted his hand, stopped her. "No, you don't. I've stood a good deal from your generation of late years but I draw the line at that. I'll not be hurled into a discussion of sex—any sex. I'm as God made me, a product of the ancient Eighties the palpitant Nineties, and I haven't progressed one yard!"

Later when she said good-bye, he asked her, "I gave you my address. It will always find me, although I'm a footloose person. You will write, won't you? You won't forget your promise?"

She answered, yes, to one question; no, to the other. She held his hand in hers, leaned from the taxi.

"I wish you weren't going. I'll miss you."

"Such an old fogey? Tell me, you liked Basil?"

"How do I know? I only saw him once."

But he was answered and smiled a little as he stood there, hatless, watching the cab lose itself in the traffic. But Basil wasn't good enough for her; no one was, funny courageous little thing. And Basil, his paternal friend well knew, had a horror of what he termed clinical women.

Men didn't change, mused Van Alstyne.

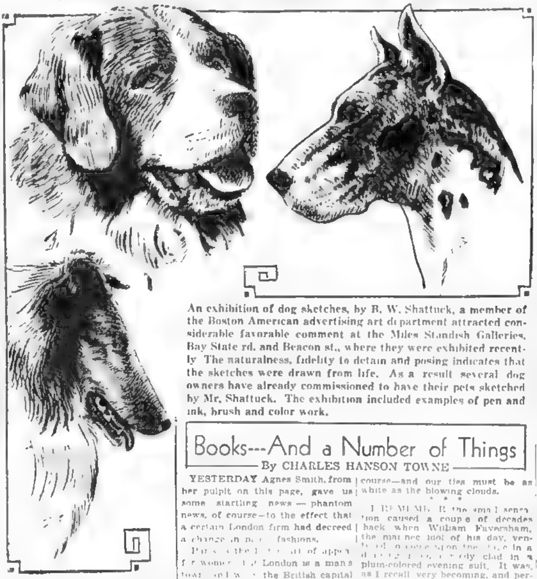
EXHIBITION BY AMERICAN ARTIST



An exhibition of dog sketches, by B. W. Shattuck, a member of the Boston American advertising art department attracted considerable favorable comment at the Miles Standish Galleries, Bay State rd. and Beacon st., where they were exhibited recently. The naturalness, fidelity to detain and posing indicates that the sketches were drawn from life. As a result several dog owners have already commissioned to have their pets sketched by Mr. Shattuck. The exhibition included examples of pen and ink, brush and color work.

Books---And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

YESTERDAY Agnes Smith, from her pulpit on this page, gave us some startling news — phantom news, of course—to the effect that a certain London firm had decreed a change in [illegible] fashions.

There were brass buttons and [illegible] with grace down [illegible] stiff and swinging [illegible] a stage coach but I wonder how it would [illegible] vator of a modern New York skyscraper to attend a board meeting thus arrayed.

* * *

Nothing could be more unbecoming than the present drab fashions for men. We are an unimaginative lot, conventional to a painful degree. If, secretly, we like the old stocks our forefathers wore, we haven't the courage to put them on. Instead we cleave to starched collars, and we swing around ballroom floors with hideous coattails flying out, our necks encased in stiff winged affairs that gradually wilt and make us look even more ridiculous than we are. We are as alike as peas in a pod or waffles in a waffle iron. All are in sombre black. We are terrified of color. As if it were some purple cow which would gore us. A red carnation is as far as we will venture to go when we choose a boutonniere, and to be de rigeur we must conform to the simple pearl stud—imitations will do this year, of course—and our ties must be as white as the blowing clouds.

* * *

I REMEMBER the small sensation caused a couple of decades back when William Faversham, the matinee idol of his day, ventured on the stage in a [illegible] clad in a plum-colored evening suit. It was, as I recall, very becoming, and perhaps the actor hoped to inaugurate [illegible] suit them better than the usual high ones, and they have thick bands of heavy silk made which they tuck under the flaps [illegible]

* * *

Men [illegible] look better in [illegible] if we wore gold braid on our trousers it might help, but who would dare to start such a fashion? We got [illegible] to abandon black hose. We have come to bright neckties and soft shirts of various colors only after years of fright, and we finally achieved fedora hats to replace the formal and, in most cases, the unbecoming derby. Perhaps we shall try further innovations in time.

One thing I hope will be changed soon, and that is the garterless sock. Couldn't the mothers whose sons persist in this do something about it? There is missionary work for them.

Until men actually like to doll up for a fancy dress ball I fear there is little hope of a radical change in men's fashions. Yet here is one field where going back would be a step forward. The 18th century was far more picturesque than this.

[illegible] and indifferent Jill was led again into the room off the Homicide Bureau where she had been taken the night of her arrest.

"Now, sister, have you anything you want to tell me tonight?" O'Shea asked. There was a triumphant gleam in his eye.

Jill was apathetic. She did not care much what O'Shea knew or [illegible] Anyway he had nothing [illegible] she was sure of that.

"Some of your friends want to see you," O'Shea added. Jill brightened. Helen, or perhaps Dr. John. They were going to let her see them at last.

She turned toward O'Shea expectantly. There were steps outside the door. It opened, McNabb [illegible] somebody in. Jill [illegible] wide with expecta[illegible]

[illegible] powered light [illegible] the room was [illegible] roar of traffic [illegible] beating to cut[illegible] to be the beating of her heart. In that few seconds of silence Jill felt she suffered the agony of a lifetime.

It was so sudden, so unexpected. If [illegible] only had a warning [illegible] she knew O'Shea's eyes were boring into her [illegible]

"A SHOWDOWN FLOPS"

[illegible] Jill remembered the code of Merkle and his men. She had been disciplined thoroughly in the last five years.

She turned to O'Shea to speak [illegible]

"Why don't you say 'hello' to your friends?"

"I thought you were bringing Dr. John to see me." Jill, fighting fiercely, was glad she was seated. Her knees felt weak. O'Shea, so certain of his victory, misjudged the fiber of the red-headed girl before him. He had been certain she'd "crack" and everything would be "jake."

"Now, girlie, say hello to the boys. You were anxious enough to turn them in. You might tell them how glad you are to see them."

Insolent assurance. Jill's mettle was up. O'Shea had a lesson to learn about a redhead.

There was a frown on O'Shea's forehead.

Jill leaned back in her chair. She had to use every bit of will power to keep her teeth from chattering there in that stifling room.

"When you start talking." O'Shea bellowed. "You know this woman was with you up on Wayne street. She got the information about the payroll for you. We've even got the telephone call from the apartment to the hospital."

A SUPERB ACTRESS

"You ought to be writing detective stories," Windy remarked.

"This girl was with you in that apartment." O'Shea was furious.

"What are the names you knew these men by?" O'Shea asked of Jill.

"I'm sorry, Mr. O'Shea, but I never saw them before." Over and over the ground they went. O'Shea certain of his facts, pounded away with a myriad of questions.

"Where did you meet Merkle?" he asked Jill.

"I have to hand it to you, kid, you're smarter than I gave you credit for."

Then he turned to Slivers.

Slivers shrugged his shoulders.

"That's the time you went up to Sing Sing," O'Shea retorted.

Slivers nodded.

O'Shea had been so sure. Now he wondered if he had been wrong. But how could he be? Yet, how could the girl take the meeting [illegible] she had?

"I had so hoped you'd let me see Dr. Slater." Her voice was pleading.

"You aren't fooling me a bit, any of you," O'Shea announced. "I know what I know. And when a jury hears it—it will be good night. You know Gaffney had three or four kids."

[illegible] thought she saw a glint of admiration in Windy's [illegible] If she [illegible] a chance [illegible] to them [illegible]

"I'll be back in a few minutes," he said. McNabb followed him out. The door closed.

"How is he?"

"What's your name, Red head?" Slivers asked.

"Jill Mordant."

"Yes."

"What do you know about that, Windy?"

"We didn't know we were going to meet a big shot down here when they brought us in."

[illegible] had been a tran[illegible] O'Shea was listening [illegible]

"Why do you think that dick keeps telling us that you are our girl friend?" Windy remarked. "Not but what you're a good-looking dame. I didn't mean nothing insulting. But the guy must be crazy."

Just then O'Shea opened the door and walked in. Jill and the two men could present a blank countenance so [illegible] O'Shea. He was not an ace detective for nothing. There were some record books in his hands. He seemed unconcerned. He could have, with a clear conscience, throttled all three of them. He had been so sure of himself.

It was next morning after this meeting that William Strayer, well-known criminal attorney, dropped into Parker Holden's office.

"I want to talk to you about a client of yours," he said pleasantly.

Holden had no use for Strayer, did not trust him, felt he was a disgrace to the profession.

"Yes?" Holden was coldly polite.

"Sorry, but I don't know the boys."

"That's what I want to talk to you about." The attorney proceeded carefully. "They are held in connection with the hospital hold-up."

(Copyright 1932, by Public Ledger)

O'Shea's failure to "break" Rusty nettles him, but with bulldog tenacity he sticks to the trail he is confident is the right one. Dictators Act; Explanations Later

By GILBERT SELDES

T[illegible] Adolf Hitler's [illegible] dictator [illegible]

Gilbert Seldes

[illegible] undermining the trades [illegible] d'Annunzio out of the spot[illegible] knew it he had conquered [illegible] to appear that Hitler lacks [illegible] the first requirement of a good dictator; intelligence is only secondary. The best qualification Hitler has shown so far is [illegible] should have done so [illegible] From his tactics one would think [illegible] be elected to Congress; he has temporized [illegible] those in power; he has given the impression [illegible] enough of himself to take power. I am afraid [illegible] events in Germany force him into command [illegible] of the world's best [illegible]

One for America?

Last July a number of [illegible] decisions about [illegible] them promptly [illegible] orders are executed [illegible] make mistakes, but he must not wobble.

Rulebook

In the modern world he should have fixed ideas about agriculture, industry, finance and international affairs. They may be the wrongest ideas in the world but they must be superficially plausible. It is not necessary to be consistent. The moment a policy has been put into effect you can change it explaining that such and such a phase of dictatorship has been passed and we are entering a new one. The policies need not even be popular, but they should be striking.

It isn't exactly treason to suggest that America may find it[illegible] these days. If the next four years are as bad as the last three, if Mr. Hoover tries, as they say he intends to try, to rescue the country, and if Mr. Roosevelt has not persuaded a great many people that what we need is four years more of our system of government, 1936 might well be the year for trying a dictator. We are still a great country and we can try anything once.

I think that an American dictator would try to be President in name and would need only a servile Congress to make his position secure. He would certainly build himself an inner cabinet, free of all routine and de[illegible] he would [illegible] see him [illegible] from [illegible] places.

Three Supporters

If I were a Communist I would support a dictator in America with the firm belief that when he had [illegible] and organized the United States to the [illegible] State Capitalism the Communists could step in [illegible] State Socialism in its place. [illegible] the country [illegible] when [illegible] has knitted together their opportunity will be all the greater.

If I were a capitalist I would also support a dictator; it would seem the last chance of saving the country—and my own skin. (I assume that the first dictator would be more Fascist than Communist in accordance with the spirit of the country.) And I think if I were a worried citizen, bewildered by the failure of the usual forms of government, I would support a dictator [illegible]

Two Opposed

Against the dictator would be two classes of people: those who wanted another kind of dictatorship and those who wanted none. The latter would include liberals and old admirers of Jefferson. They would not be of much avail. For in the past 20 years enough of liberty has been hacked away to make hardly noticeable the loss of a little more. And the next few years may see such uses of power as will make dictatorship seem reasonable in comparison.

The election of a new man to the presidency has, naturally, checked the talk of dictatorship because we are willing to give the new administration a chance. I think that if Mr. Hoover had been re-elected the talk would have risen at once. From many points of view the delay is a good thing. For one, the right man for the place has not yet shown his hand—or his head.

WHY THE BULLS REFUSE TO GIVE UP HOPES

One would think there would not [illegible] U. S. Steel preferred [illegible] in view of the fact that the directors have pre[illegible] warned that it was in danger if the steel industry did not [illegible] which it has not been doing. On the other hand the warning was also voiced several months ago and the dividend [illegible] just the same. Recent short [illegible] has doubtless improved the technical position of the market and a sharp rally can be staged on a [illegible] of the bear interests [illegible]

Shoe prices and wages are at a low [illegible] in Lynn the production [illegible] at $2 a pair being [illegible] for any year since before the war, and the new sample lines for 1933 revealing a greater variety of these $2 shoes than at any time in 1932. Manufacturers expect that volume business will be booked on these $2 shoes in the January markets. This price applies chiefly to women's shoes, some for boys and girls being made to retail at $1 a pair or less.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the whirligig of the past 13 sessions is once again in an area where it must receive good support. If prices start to retreat from this level under the fire of volume offerings, the bull cause will be dealt a sorry blow. However, there have been evidences of scale buying this week that bear the earmark of important accumulation. It may be that the backing and filling seen recently is part and parcel of a campaign to discourage holders of long stock. For the present it does not seem worth while to jump to any hasty conclusion.

U. S. Steel

[illegible] U. S. Steel had given up the market leadership [illegible] must be somewhat [illegible] by recent market action. Quite definitely has the list shown that it still follows wherever Big Steel leads. Steel is likely to remain the leader of the pack.

The selling which first depressed Steel preferred is naturally and logically connected with the dividend prospect for 1933. A sharp increase in operating schedules or the sale of some wholly-owned property would be necessary to insure [illegible] at the [illegible]

A sharp increase in production seems [illegible] of the question and the gossip are selling off some of Steel's subsidiaries. International Cement is put forward as a possible buyer of the Universal Atlas Cement Corp. On paper it does not seem feasible.

This and That

International Cement is in a fair enough position financially but it is not in a position to handle such a large proposition at the moment, according to its balance sheet. It could not buy the Universal Atlas out of cash on hand nor does it seem likely to enlarge its present funded indebtedness to do so.

If it took [illegible] cash [illegible] as shown by the [illegible] balance sheet [illegible] would be sufficient. The money U. S. Steel [illegible] the regular preferred dividend for one quarter is 2 [illegible] times greater than the [illegible] cash on hand. Funded debt is 18 millions and further [illegible] would be a heavy load to carry.

The "line" appearing on the Dow-Jones averages and emphasized [illegible] cannot be considered as still in effect. Just as long as the closing prices of the industrials hold above 67.50 and the rails hold above 25 the sidewise movement may be considered as in force.

TODAY'S NEWS OF WALL ST. LEADERS

PRICE movements for pivotal [illegible] influenced by conflicting factors were generally inconclusive today. A sidelines position was favored by most traders, dull trading [illegible]ing.

Burlington's Drop Is Much Reduced

Loadings of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy for the week ended Dec. 17 totaled 15,650 cars, compared with 18,149 in the preceding week and 21,036 in the corresponding week of 1931. Last week's loadings were 11.1 per cent under the like week a year ago, while in the previous week the figures were 20.3 per cent below the corresponding period of 1931.

Central's Loading Decline Is Smaller

For the week ended Dec. 17 New York Central Railroad loaded on its [illegible] 35,934 cars, against 39,243 in the like 1931 week. It received from connections 45,551 cars [illegible] 53,780 [illegible] year. Cars [illegible] during the week [illegible] 81,493 against 93,029 in the same week of 1931. Decline from a year ago for week ended Dec. 17 was 9.1 per cent. Preceding week was 16.8 per cent below 1931.

Investment Trusts Discarding Steel

Wall Street heard today some Street gossip to effect that investment trusts have been discarding Steel preferred "in wholesale fashion" and that investment interests are getting rid of the common. Speculative operators are said to be taking advantage of dividend [illegible] brokers testifying to steadily increasing size of short interest.

Tax Selling Under Year Ago

Tax selling and investment switching are said to be considerably under the proportions of previous years.

Chesapeake & Ohio Resists Rail Trend

Impressive resistance displayed by Chesapeake & Ohio during recent reactions in rail shares continues in evidence. Support favoring the stock results from reliable forecasts that the road will earn close to $3 this year, providing a secure coverage for the $2.50 dividend rate. This seeming statistical assurance that the payment will not be disturbed has also aided the market for Chesapeake Corporation, since the latter will thereby receive sufficient income to maintain its $2 disbursement and have a small balance to apply toward reducing large secured loans and accounts payable. At the end of 1931 these "payables" totaled $35,371,587.

Rail Outlook for 1933 Uncertain

Foreign Exchanges

SPECTATOR Says:

There is apparently a good deal of evening up for the year-end, plus some disappointed selling coming into the market. Though the immediate outlook for stocks is confused, further weakness ought to provide an opportunity to buy stocks for a rally.

Bullish Pep

Quite a bit of the selling in the last two days came from those who got a little too pepped up about the bull side last week.

Floor traders especially, who were afraid of "missing the boat" . . . The average member of the exchange, it must be remembered, has been hard hit in the last two years and his principal object now is to make a living by trading . . . Usually he doesn't care whether he buys or sells and tries to follow a trend even if it is only a minor trend . . .

A few days ago traders were long. Stocks didn't go up so out they went and traders tried the short side . . . In addition, traders are largely responsible for the churning a few stocks have been going through recently. After all, a fraction is a fraction, whether in Telephone or in Radio.

Steel Output

We shouldn't be surprised if there were a realization soon that too much emphasis is being placed on the current decline in steel operations. Steel output slips every year at this time, though this year the decline came from a very low level.

Of course, there are no earnings, and the fourth quarter results will be very poor. The important thing is what will happen in the spring. A rebound is customary . . . We hear of some scale buying in Steel preferred despite the poor dividend outlook.

Here and There

Current strength in sterling suggests the short interest was larger than estimated . . . 'Tis said there is more tax selling in bonds than in stocks . . . Preliminary estimates on Woolworth's earnings are that the $2.40 dividend will be covered with a bit to spare.

One curious thing about Case Threshing is that the preferred, which pays $7, is selling less than 9 points above the common and gives an indicated yield of 15 per cent.

Acts to Break Up 'Gas' Tax Evasion

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—To break up importers evasion of the 2½ cent's a gallon tax on imported gasoline, the Treasury today ordered the same rate levied on foreign naphtha which it said has been imported in large quantities for conversion into motor fuel.

STOCKS SHOW FIRM TONE IN BOSTON

Stocks displayed a firm tone in late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today with changes ranging from fractions to more than 6 points. Edison Electric was strong and advanced more than 2 points. Old Colony Railroad featured with a gain of more than 6 points.

Boston & Albany showed strength and moved up 3 points while Atchison and New Haven eased slightly. New England Telephone and American Telephone were steady around previous closing prices. Boston Elevated softened and slipped back a point.

Gains of moderate proportions were shown for American Woolen preferred, First National Stores, Gillette and United Shoe. United Founders eased fractionally.

Gain in Price of Copper to 5.20 Cts.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—The price of copper in the export market scored a further slight gain today, sales being reported at from 5.10 to 5.20 cents a pound against 5.10 cents yesterday. Following collapse of the international conference on producers, copper abroad dropped to 4.85 cents but has since shown a steady recovery under improved buying.

Transamerican Has Increase in Traffic

Transamerican Airlines Corp. reports that all passenger and express totals for the entire year of 1931 were surpassed on September 7, this year. Also, it stated that air passenger and express traffic over its Great Lakes system during the first ten months of this year showed increases.

Blackmer New Head of Am. Steel, Wire

Cleveland, Dec. 21 (AP)—Directors of the American Steel and Wire Company named Charles F. Blackmer, president of the company to succeed John S. Keefe who retires January 1.

Marvel of Day Given Criticism

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics New York University.)

About all there is to it is a description of the way power-driven machinery has increased production, and how excessive credit has resulted in overcapacity. Then there is a sudden jump to the conclusion that the whole trouble lies in "the price system," and that we should seek some new standard of value.

* * *

I have previously shown that the trouble is not in the price system, but in the way we have abused that system by trying to fix prices artificially and arbitrarily. If we had just let freely determined market prices govern investment and production, we would never have had such overcapacity and overproduction.

* * *

Now we should note that the proposals made by the "technocrats" for a fixed standard of value are utterly erroneous and impossible. In one thing they are right, namely, that any "measure" must have some of the qualities of the thing to be measured. A yardstick must have length in order to measure lengths. And just so a measure of value must have value, or a measure of prices must have a price. This is just where these beginners in economics the technocrats, fall down. What they are proposing is that we try to use some unit of energy (such as a kilowatt or a horsepower) as a measure of values.

* * *

But energy has no value in itself. Its "value," if it has any, depends on what it costs to produce it and upon what it produces in the way of saleable products.

The value of energy varies like the value of anything else, according to the demand and supply. It gives us no fixed standard of value.

* * *

You see, values and prices are very different from physical quantities. For example, a ton of snow weighs exactly as much as a ton of coal. But the snow has no value, while the coal has.

Just so, energy, which is related only to chemistry and physics, has no necessary or direct relation to values and prices. You can make a great deal of energy and use it to manufacture ice at the North Pole. But it would have no value and no price.

* * *

Let the technocrats take any measure of energy they select and tell us how much value it has? They can't do it, except in terms of the products which may result and how much these will sell for. That gets us right back to the price system you see.

The notions of the technocrats are logically unsound and impossible. As economists, they may be good engineers.

PRICE CHANGES NARROW, WITH TRADING DULL

New York, Dec. 21 — Price changes in the main were narrow in New York Stock Exchange dealings today, with trading dull. Pivotal shares made a rather feeble effort to recoup the losses of yesterday's setback.

Several issues pushed up fractions to a point in the early dealings, but the list eased off later, and scattered selling came into the coppers, tobaccos and rails. In the main, industrials held up fairly well.

GAINS ARE CANCELLED

Early gains of around a point in American Can, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas and Union Pacific were lost in the later trading. U. S. Steel preferred, a recent weak spot, rallied 1½, then lost part of its gain. American Tobacco "B" lost nearly 2 points, and Lorillard and Reynolds sagged fractionally.

In the coppers and rails, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific lost fractions. Oils were about steady. U. S. Steel common sagged a fraction. Owens Bottle and Crown Cork were heavy.

Bullish sentiment in brokerage circles appeared to have been considerably dampened by yesterday's slump. Some professionals were said to be shifting to the short side, discouraged at their recent inability to promote a rally.

It was pointed out that the market had been unable to make important headway in the last ten days, despite considerable investment buying prompted by advices of certain investment services and prominent brokerage houses.

SOME BRIGHT SPOTS

The mid-week business statistics were not without bright spots. Some of the individual carloadings reports have shown some fair gains, contrary to the usual seasonal trend. This was particularly notable in the case of New York Central, which came within 9.1 per cent of the volume in the like week of last year. This was almost entirely attributed to a pickup in automobile manufacturing.

Weekly electric power production figures, showing a sharper gain than in any of the corresponding weeks of the past three years, may also have reflected in part the acceleration in the motor industry. The work on 1933 models was said to be about the only sustaining influence in the steel industry, which appeared to be in for a period of extreme holiday quiet.

A reflection of the automobile activity appeared in the Detroit Board of Commerce's employment index, which stood at 44.2 on Dec. 15, compared with 39.3 on Nov. 30, and 60.7 on Dec. 15, 1931.

Bearish gossip of one sort and another was promoted by yesterday's slump.

Selling of the coppers was a further reflection of the adverse price situation in the industry. While foreign prices have recently firmed a little, stocks of metal above ground are so large that the industry has little hope of early return to a profitable price basis, particularly since the recent breakup of the international producers' conference. Tobaccos were sold in connection with fresh gossip over the prospects of a cigarette price cut. Oils were helped by the crude production figures of last week, although gasoline stocks in storage were again higher.

Wall Street manifested much interest in the course of the beer bill in the House of Representatives. Some of the bottling stocks were sold, possibly reflecting disappointment at the progress of the measure.

Wheat Up Little in Chicago Market

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP)—Upward trend showed itself in wheat prices early today. Bullish construction was generally placed on the Washington official crop report emphasizing the low condition of new domestic winter wheat. Many traders, however, challenged the accuracy of the government estimate of 1.3 per cent reduction in acreage.

Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started at ⅛ off to ⅛ up and subsequently altered little.

Wool Prices Steady; Moderate Demand

Daily wool market report issued by local Agricultural Department Bureau says:

"A very moderate piecing out demand is being received on a fairly broad selection of domestic wools. Prices generally are fairly steady. Some sizable quantities of graded French combing 64s and finer territory wools are selling at prices within the range 40-42 cents, scoured basis."

Two-Cent Cut in Gasoline Prices

New York, Dec. 21—Standard Oil of New York has made a reduction of two cents a gallon in tank wagon and service station prices of gasoline in New York City metropolitan district effective today. Reductions also will be made in parts of Connecticut varying from one to two cents a gallon and at various points in New York state, such as Nyack, Port Jervis and Middletown.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Dec. 21—The cotton market held within a narrow trading range today, with the run of contracts showing gains of from 1 to 2 points in late trading. January was up 1 at 5.94; March up 1, at 6.08; May up 2, at 6.19; July up 1, at 6.20, and October up 1, at 6.40.

FINDS DETROIT BUSIEST POINT

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Steel production for this week was estimated today at 14 per cent of capacity by Iron Age, a decline of 1 point from last week.

A further reduction was forecast for the holiday period, when many mills will close for 10 days unless there is a sudden pickup in new orders.

"In appraising prospects for the early part of next year, the steel industry looks for its principal support from the automobile industry, though it is not banking too heavily on the volume of car buying that may develop when new models, now being produced for dealers' stocks, are on display floors," the review said.

"Detroit is today the busiest industrial center of the country. Automobile manufacturing schedules have been increased in recent days to the point that a December output of at least 110,000 cars is assured, and with Ford getting into production, a January total in excess of this figure is virtually certain, as most of the other car makers will maintain present schedules well through next month."

N. J. Public Service Net Is $43,558,663

Public Service of New Jersey and subsidaries for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1932, report net income from operations of $43,558,663, against $45,596,519 a year ago. Balance available for dividends and surplus amounted to $29,140,413, against $31,481,375 for the same period last year, a decrease of $2,340,362.

Rise in Farm Prices Viewed as Necessary

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Chicago, Dec. 21—Chicago, which is sensitive to the heart beat of the Great agricultural Middle West, sees no prospect for substantial economic recovery without a rise in farm prices.

On my hurried visit here I have had an opportunity to talk with a number of the leaders of the La Salle st. district. I asked one eminent financier whether he thought the prospective political plans, in which Governor Roosevelt is known to be interested, will prove effective.

He replied candidly that the so-called voluntary domestic allotment plan was most promising when applied to wheat, which is so largely consumed at home, though he considered the plan purely experimental. Despite his mental reservations, he was definitely in favor of making the experiment.

"The basic need," this banking executive pointed out," is to raise farm prices, not simply for the benefit of farmers or that of their creditors, but in order that they may once more begin to buy the products of industry. Farmers are now in the market for virtually nothing. It was not the interest rate on first mortgages which broke the farmer, even under existing adverse conditions, but rather the piling on of additional debt in the form of second mortgages, instalment obligations and commercial debt."

Bankers here are keenly interested in revision of United States Treasury financing plans. They believe that the very short term debt has become unwieldy and that the Treasury should allow some of it to run off. In this connection, I learned that one important Middle Western bank has ceased to put in bids for short term government obligations. It found that in order to get an allotment in the amount size it was necessary to bid for a much larger quantity.

Board of Trade Open Saturday

Chicago, Dec. 21—Directors of the Board of Trade have voted to keep the exchange open as usual Saturday, despite the fact that New York Stock Exchange Governors have not yet acted on the closing petition for the big exchange. Other exchanges usually follow the New York leadership.

$550,000 Biscuit Expansion

New York, Dec. 21—National Biscuit Co. is planning expansion. It has filed plans for five-story shipping and manufacturing building on 10th ave., at 15th st., New York, to cost $550,000. Plans allow for five additional stories. New York Central tracks will pass through structure.

POWER OUTPUT MAKES GAIN

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Electric power production picked up sharply in the past week, the weekly tabulation of the National Electric Light Association showed today.

While a gain in the week ending Dec. 17 is the usual seasonal experience, the upturn this year was substantially larger than in the years 1931, 1930, or even 1929. To a substantial degree, it presumably reflected dark stormy weather over much of the country.

Total kilowatt hours for the past week were 1,563,334,000, a gain of 11,402,000 over the previous week. In the same week last year the gain over the previous week was less than 4,000,000, and in 1929 about 19,000,000.

Last week's production was 6.7 per cent under last year, the best comparison in five weeks. The previous week had been off 9.1 per cent from 1931. The comparison made with last year by New England alone failed to improve, being off 5.6 per cent from 1931, against 5.4 per cent in the previous week.

For the Atlantic seaboard as a whole, however, the improvement was marked, for it was 3.7 per cent under 1931, against 7.4 per cent a week previously. The central industrial region was within 8.2 per cent of the previous year, against a divergence of 11.1 in the previous week. The Pacific Coast was 3.9 per cent under 1931, compared with 7.7 per cent in the preceding week.

Radium Refinery Is for Bear Lake Ore

Port Hope, Ont., Dec. 21—The only radium refinery in the British Empire will start operations here within ten days. Ore will be transported to the plant by plane from the recently discovered pitchblende deposits on Great Bear lake. It is anticipated Canada will be able to supply all its domestic needs and have considerable for export.

Already Canada has produced more than 4000 grams of radium barium compound which is being concentrated by department of Mines chemists at Ottawa.

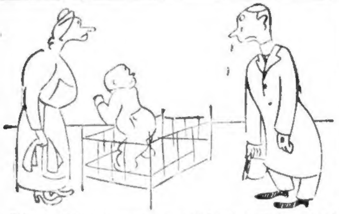
Let's Not Be Ashamed To Be Sentimental



"The most pleasant memory of pre-Volstead days—the spectacle that made brewers proud—was the fine old brewery horse. He can never return. He belongs to the past."—Col. Jacob Ruppert.

He was just an average father in a hurry
As he passed the nursery door and called, "Good bye!"
He was late to work and in a nervous flurry,
Yet he stopped and there were hot tears in his eye.
Where he stood before the infant's tiny bed.
Then he blew his nose and turning to the nurse he Spoke with deep emotion as he said:

REFRAIN (slowly and tenderly)

This child of mine will doubtless grow to manhood—
He'll have wealth and social status without doubt—
He'll acquire all the knowledge
They dispense at Harvard College
And there's little he will have to do without.
But the tragedy for him is predestined,
The fate that chokes me now with such remorse
Is that he will never know
What a fine and gorgeous show
Was presented by a full-blown brewery horse.

POLICE GET MODERN 'WILD WEST' WEAPON

OFFICER FRANCIS ZEIGLER

In the roaring days of the wild and woolly West, desperadoes carved notches into their six-shooters. The notches are still in style, but sawed-off shot guns have replaced six-shooters—at least in South End. That's where Officer Zeigler arrested Robert Boyle, 52, as he was sweeping the weapon pictured above across a row of windows. He said he was about to avenge an insult, but did not explain whether the five notches cut into the gun stock represented a liberal portion of sweet revenge. (Staff photo.)

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

We sat around, a group of us, watching the snow flutter down like paper chips past the windows of Monty Brice's apartment on the 25th floor of a local hotel. Monty was in a reminiscent mood. "That snow," he said, "reminds me of Si Slocum, the slickest confidence man that ever took a sucker for a ride and made him like it. One of his greatest stunts was to dig up fellows who looked like people of prominence. Then he'd [illegible] show. Once he nursed along a chap who had inherited [illegible] like $300,000, and Slocum decided he wanted most [illegible] grand. So one night he said to the fellow, 'There's [illegible] meeting of some of the stockholders of the Amal[illegible] Steel in Ansonia tonight. How'dja like to attend?' and the sucker said, 'Gee, that'd be great.' Well, they went up to this elaborate suite and before the business started they drank a lot of champagne and smoked expensive cigars. Then Slocum introduced him to the chairman, 'E. H. Harriman,' and a few of the leading stockholders, one of whom was 'William Howard Taft,' another 'Charles Evans Hughes' and a third, 'J. Pierpont Morgan.' The sucker was thrilled, of course.

"Well, Harriman called the meeting to order and started out by saying, 'Gentlemen, this has been the greatest pool in financial history. The boys over on the Street are green with envy and I guess I don't have to tell you that. Well, there's a few shares left and instead of tossing them into the pool, I've got an idea we ought to buy them up and save them for our wives or sweethearts or children. I'm going to take about $400,000 worth, if you don't mind. How about you, Morgan?'

"The dignified J. P. Morgan took a few seconds off to study the question and then said, quietly, 'If the gentlemen here don't mind, I'd like about a million dollars worth.' At this both Taft and Hughes jumped to their feet and protested. 'Where does Morgan come in to hog it all? How about the rest of us? Well, when the excitement subsided, Morgan agreed to cut his demand down to half a million. Taft took $200,000 worth and said he wished he could afford more. About this time, Slocum drew the sucker to one side and said, 'Boy, oh, boy, how'd you like to be able to get some of that stock?' The fellow's eyes lighted. 'I'd give anything. Slocum said, 'Well, I tell you, I think maybe I can arrange it. I'm not sure, but I'm going to try.' The sucker beamed. 'Gee, you're a regular fellow,' he said. So Slocum went over to Harriman and whispered into his ear and Harriman looked up and studied the sucker for a second or two and then spoke up and said: 'Si, if he's a friend of yours, that's enough for all of us, I guess. But you understand—we can't let him have more than, say, about $250,000 worth. No more than that.'

"The sucker's joy knew no bounds. He leaped to his feet and shouted, 'Gentlemen, you don't know how happy you make me, and I only wish that last week I hadn't sunk all my money into a trust fund because, you can take my word for it, if I hadn't done that, I would have bought $250,000 worth of your stock now.'

"Well, when Harriman heard that, he turned all colors. He jumped at Slocum and said, 'You big phony,' and punched him in the jaw. Whereupon J. P. Morgan got up and said to Harriman, 'You can't do that to Si!' and punched Harriman in the jaw. At that, Taft took a clout at Morgan and Hughes got sore and pounded Morgan. The sucker ran out of the room and went down to the lobby and over to the clerk and shouted, 'For God's sake, go up stairs. Harriman and Taft and Morgan and Hughes are socking each other all over the lot!'"

"That's a swell yarn, Monty," I said, "but why does this snow remind you of Slocum?"

"Oh," he replied, "I was just thinking of the time Si got $20,000 out of a guy for a formula which guaranteed to turn snowflakes into diamonds."

It was Brice, too, who related what I believe is a hitherto untold Wilson Mizner yarn. A bunch of the local boys used to gather in the Claridge for a Saturday night session of poker—this was in the pre-war days when the Broadway boys had money. Mizner, for a time, had an unusual run of luck and one day one of the players, a prominent actor who's dead now, came to him and said, "Mize, you're lucky. How do you do it?" Mizner looked around furtively and then whispered back," "Gee Mize, I'd like to try it—just once." Mizner said, "Well, you know, Nat, you have to have a lot of courage to pull a cold deck, especially on friends." The actor snorted. "Say," he chirped, "You've never heard my courage questioned, have you?" So the plan was agreed upon. At a given signal when the actor was to deal, Mizner was to pass him a "cold" deck.

Everything went off that evening as planned. When the actor reached absently for his handerchief, Mizner passed him the "cooler"—that is, a deck with all the cards so arranged that each of the players would have a good hand but the actor's would be the best. The "gambler" caressed the cards and then began flipping them out with a grand flourish. He studied his own hand and noticed that he had four aces. But he noticed something else. From about the center of each card down to the bottom ran a furrow. He looked up. The same furrow gaped at him from the cards held by his opponents. No one said a word but the actor gulped, grabbed his hat and coat and fled. Afterwards he learned that Mizner had driven a nail into the cards, covering the head with a few stray cards, before passing the deck to him. As the actor flipped each card, the nail ripped it down the center. The other members of the party had, of course, been warned in advance by Mizner.

Hollywood Stuff!

And still the snow fluttered down and none of us felt like going out into the cold. So Bill Rowland told us the story of Paul Gangelin, one of the prolific screen writers of today. Gangelin, it seems, having been signed to a lucrative contract, waited around for weeks for his first assignment but he might have been in the Isle of Bali as far as the office was concerned. Apparently they didn't know he existed, so his pride hurt, he decided he was going to quit. He called up the office of Eddie King and the secretary got on the wire. "This is Paul Gangelin," he said. "I want to speak to Mr. King." The girl told him to wait, returned a few seconds later, and said, "Sorry, Mr. King is in conference. Would you please call Thursday morning at 10:30?" Thursday morning at 10:30, Gangelin phoned again. "Sorry," replied the secretary, "Mr. King is terribly busy. Would you please call Tuesday morning at 11:30?" Tuesday morning at 11:30, Gangelin called. "Sorry," started the lass, "Mr. King is—."

"Listen," shouted Gangelin, "you go back and tell Mr. King that what I have to say will only take a second of his time. Tell him that I simply want to resign." The girl told him to hold the wire. A few seconds later she returned. "Mr. Gangelin," she purred, "Mr. King is awfully sorry, but he's in conference, and wants to know whether you wouldn't please resign with somebody else'!"

S. O. S.

Some weeks ago I mentioned casually that Jack Jarrott was destitute. Yesterday he hobbled into my office—just out of the hospital where he had undergone a serious operation. This fellow, who was a dancing sensation not so many years ago—among whose dancing partners were Joan Sawyer, Vera Maxwell, Mae Murray and Louise Alexander — who claims to have originated the fox trot—wants a job as a doorman, a porter or anything of that nature. Right now, he hasn't even a place to sleep. How about it, Broadway?

2 Lessons for Dr. Magrath

A Medical Examiner's Methods

Dr. George Burgess Magrath, the Medical Examiner, is up to his old tricks again.

A man is found dead in the exclusive society of the Back Bay. Dr. Magrath decides in the sacred precincts of his own mind that the man came to his death by suicide. Well satisfied with his own judgment, Dr. Magrath goes along his own sweet way, and it comes to public notice only upon accidental discovery of it by the police.

Dr. Magrath should be taught a lesson, in two parts.

The first part is that no man's judgment is infallible, not even the precocious judgment of Dr. Magrath himself. We have established in this country a government of checks and balances, in order that one department may check possibility of errors of the other and prevent it from rushing into mistakes. And this system of co-operation in the American Government certainly ought to be put into practice wherever there is the possibility of crime lest the criminals escape from justice.

The other part of the lesson which Dr. Magrath should absorb is that every violent death becomes automatically charged with a public interest. The police should be informed, because they are the investigating agency of the public. The District Attorney should be informed, because he is the prosecuting agency of the public. The courts should be informed because they are the agency of the public in determining guilt or innocence.

The theory of government as old as government itself is that government is charged with the protectioin of the safety of its people. And the government should be informed, therefore, whether that safety has been violated. Government did not have to wait for any Dr. George Burgess Magrath to come along to take all of that serious responsibility off its hands.

This is a simple statement of the simple theory of government in so far as the lives and safety of its people are concerned. There can be no assumption from his past record, however, that Dr. Magrath is willing to learn it.

Signs of Better Days

That Corner Comes Nearer

The Connecticut Unemployment Commission examined some 7000 business establishments in that State recently and found, much to its surprise and much to its delight, that a third of them are actually employing more workers than in 1929.

The bright story is, of course, that business has improved among them. The darkest days of the depression, there at least, are behind them.

Calvin Coolidge said a few months ago that in our philosophy of pessimism we have concentrated our thoughts upon the unemployed, rarely giving a thought to the fact that so many millions of our people are steadily and gainfully at work. What he meant was that we are inclined to ignore the many hopeful conditions that exist and upon which we can build our way out to prosperity.

We are to have beer legislation soon, with employment furnished for a million people now idle. The new Administration will alter the tariff and make it possible for America to regain some of its lost export trade.

The government could issue Prosperity Bonds for a program of public works, putting another million men to useful work. The national manufacturers' sales tax could eliminate the myriad of nuisance taxes which hamstring business now and thus could allow a flow of money to productive industrial and commercial pursuits. Sensible government economy would also furnish business enterprise with another flow of money now gobbled by wasteful taxation.

Moreover, the banks of this country would be encouraged to loosen up on loans to private enterprises that will afford both business and labor. It is hardly gratifying to hear banks boasting of their liquid conditions when their vaults are bulging with money that could ease credit, promote business and supply employment.

Let us believe hopefully that conditions are improved, as has been found in Connecticut. But let us also resolve not to ignore any of the many opportunities before us to promote and enlarge this improvement.

Boston Needs Radio

Our Police Are Handicapped

"Since the advent of the radio, first-hand evidence of crime has been easier to obtain. Convictions have increased 21 per cent."

The above statement was made by the Police Commissioner of Detroit. It is impressive because it corroborates the opinions of Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York, of our own State Police and of all the progressive Police Departments that have had the good sense to equip themselves with radio for detection of crime.

A crime is committed; a clear voice from Police Headquarters announces the location of the crime; autos equipped with radio-receiving devices catch the warning, and the police are at the scene before the trail is cold.

This is an obvious improvement over the system which waits for a casual policeman to appear at his callbox or to come across a red light in his meanderings around his beat. It is such an obvious improvement that it ought to be installed in every city in this country, including Boston. Boston is far behind in this vital matter of protecting its citizens and property.

Bishop Desmond

Rev. Fr. Daniel F. Desmond of Somerville is appointed Bishop of Alexandria, La. The Christmas gift he receives is a wider and more responsible field for his excellent talents. Since his brave service as a War Chaplain, Father Desmond has been active in the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other civic enterprises which have made him the intimate acquaintance of many people of all religious faiths. Their universal estimate of him is that Somerville's loss is Alexandria's gain.

New York Day by Day

Bowery Pawnshops

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—Bowery pawn-shops, more than ever, are symbolic of their sign of the proud Medici—three gold balls—this winter. For a fallen aristocracy is crossing their thresholds. Havens of down-town money lenders offer obscure hide-aways for those from uptown who need quick loans.

It's no exaggeration that many who once were able to drop into banks for four-figured sums, without question, now must pledge treasures to fill the family larder. Fifth and Park avenues have their quota of those who borrow in the Bowery area. A matron from Tuxedo Park recently pawned her engagement ring.

As a rule, pawnshop trivia is junk, but it is doubtful if ever before they have received such magnificent offerings. One sees real silver tea sets, nine-branched candle sticks, extraordinary ceramics, and priceless heirlooms of doubtless antiquity.

Windows are Pandora boxes, overflowing with luxurious links to former happiness! In one shadowy cavern, near Broome st., there was a gentleman's evening dress set—something not out of place in a Cartier window. In another, the exquisite blending of Rockwood pottery.

In still another window, cluttered with tawdry clocks (decorated with fractious bronze horses) and silly shaped silver-plated vases, there stood out, like a lily in the bog, a frosted glass fruit dish embellished with the unmistable statuary loveliness of Lalique.

Five mid-town churches are open all night for the winter's forlorn. In such sanctuaries they huddle in every position of which the human body is capable. In a way, they are troops bivouacking before dead camp-fires; resting before the battle. The Battle of Tomorrow!

A beautiful lady of Beekman Place, victim of a treacherous malady, recently passed on, one week before her scheduled marriage. To her affianced, a short story writer, she sent a generous flagon of the perfume she loved and a note: "I am sending this in lieu of your favorite picture. A photograph is a dead thing but a scent is alive. Think of me always as vitally active and merely in what I hope is an advanced state of consciousness."

Depressing rumors are insistent, three romantic old hotels of the town will close shortly. Twenty years is long life for a metropolitan inn, but many due to the boom were able to remain open profitably until now.

Alexander Woollcott's farewell party, before taking off for Russia, was a mock mannequin parade in his manor, dubbed "Wit's End." All the Parisian flubdubbery was in profusion—the miniature stage for display, tea cart refreshments, pivoting ladies panoplied in finery, and pads and pencils for guests to check the exhibits. Among gowns called off as they appeared were: "Madam Ancienne," "Pour le Brothel," and others.

Two years ago, Vash Young, who never had written a line for print, showed me a manuscript I thought unusually meritorious. Several editors whom I asked to read it thought otherwise. That manuscript, in book form as "A Fortune to Share," has been a best seller for a year. Which may encourage other writers who face editorial rebuff.

Lady boxers, who can swing from the ankle and "take it," are drawing Broadwayites over the bridge to Brooklyn's Ridgewood Grove where Jack Curley, abetted by the cyclonic Harry Van Hoven, is staging that national idiocy—marathon dancing. Punch drunk, they often carry on until a final K. O. starts the birdie tweeting.

Listen, World

By Elsie Robinson

Should Girl Propose?

HERE'S ANOTHER of those letters at which I advise you not to laugh. Something has happened to the world. Here is one of the millions of girls who is paying for it. What is she going to do about it? What are we going to do about her?

Elsie Robinson

Dear Elsie Robinson:—

You answer many curious questions, some of them most puzzling. But never yet have I read an answer to my problem, yet it is one of the commonest, and some day somebody must find an answer. This is my case, and I am putting it up to you and your "World."

I'm thirty-three, in splendid health. It's tiresome to "press agent" myself, but I suppose necessary. So here goes. I am, I'm told, not hard to look at. Brown-haired, blue-eyes, slight. Know how to dress—and make most of them. Amiable. Good mixer. Nice, but not "nasty nice.' Like books, sufficiently. Like sports, and travel a lot.

However, it is my professional, not my personal, status which is making the trouble. I'm a private secretary. I started work at nineteen and have now advanced to a very good position. I am employed by pleasant people and earn $75 a week.

Let me hasten to add that I am not "working for fun," nor am I taking a job from anyone. I am forced to support myself and have literally created my own position. In short, I occupy exactly the same position in the working world which an intelligent, hard-working young man might occupy. But here's the difference.

If a young man occupied my position he could proceed to round out the personal side of his existence as well as the professional. He could fall in love with some nice girl, marry her, start a home and family and proceed to enjoy a normal life. And everyone would expect him to do just this.

But consider my condition or the condition of thousands of girls like me. We, too, want a home; more, perhaps, than the man. We would love a fine husband and adore our babies. We are as willing to be wives as our mothers were, and much better fitted to be intelligent and understanding companions to men. But what can we do about it?

Most of the men who come into my office regard me as they would the office furniture. If I were not a working woman, but just a pretty girl client waiting in the office, they would be instantly alert to my feminine possibilities. I know, for I see it happen every day.

But the fact that I am a secretary, in some mysterious way, seems to instantly chill all such speculation. Their manner is impersonal if not actually brusque. And this, remember, is true of men who, under other conditions, would be my natural suitors. BUT THERE IS AN INVISIBLE WALL BETWEEN THE SUCCESSFUL WORKING WOMAN AND MEN.

On the other hand, suppose I fall in love with some nice man, which I am only too willing to do. Nine chances out of ten, nowadays, the man hasn't as good a position as I. That would make no difference were situations reversed—were he a woman and I a man. My beloved's financial inferiority would then be taken for granted, and my proposal be welcomed. But, since I am a woman, that very fact puts me beyond the pale. No self-respecting fellow would permit himself to return my affections.

AND WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF I WAVED ALL THAT ASIDE AND PROPOSED MARRIAGE, SAYING THAT MONEY MADE NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN US?

The man himself, and every person who heard of it, would regard me as crazy. That's what would happen!

Yet why should that be? Why haven't I as much right to propose marriage as a man? The man's right to do the proposing wasn't a natural right. It was based on his financial superiority. But he isn't financially superior any more. So then, what? Must I "wither on the vine," as my spinster great-aunts did, for the sake of an outgrown convention? You tell me.

ALICE J. HOWELL.

I pass, Alice. YOU tell her, Stranger. Should a nice girl propose? And what's she to do if she doesn't?

Just Folks

The Bearers

We were his friends! A month ago
At golf he called us three to play,
And now beneath the silent snow
We put his coffined form away.
I rather fancy that he knew
This last grim task for him we'd do.

He suffered pain and spoke no word.
Today I heard his widow tell,
Just six months back the news he heard
That never again would he be well.
And so that very afternoon

Well, here we are! The final task
Which any friend can do for friend.
On earth no more of us he'll ask.
Yonder's the grave, and 'tis the end,
Except that gallant soul will wait
To meet us when we share his fate.

Forcing Roosevelt's Hand

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

ON THE SAME DAY PRESIDENT HOOVER sent a message to Congress proposing the immediate creation of a commission, with or without congressional sanction, to re-examine the debts question, Senator Wagner had something to say in contradition of the conclusion of the first presidential message.

In this latter message, Mr. Hoover implied that all the federal government need do in regard to unemployment has been done and that the little planned to give men jobs should be abandoned. The debtor nations will be interested in Mr. Hoover's message of this week; the millions here denied their inalienable right to work will be more interested in Senator Wagner's observations.

The message of Mr. Hoover brushes aside, as inconsequential, the ideas of Mr. Roosevelt as to the method for the reconsideration of the debts; and then proposes to invite Mr. Roosevelt to co-operate with Mr. Hoover on the latter's plan. Since the latter has little more than two months to serve, it would seem possible to wait until the new administration comes in to act upon its own policies and decisions. But Mr. Hoover is going to invite Mr. Roosevelt to join him in the determination of the personnel of the commission to be named. It is a rather remarkable idea.

* * *

If the President Names Such a Commission

It may well be doubted if the cause of international understanding will be served by the naming by the President of an unofficial commission having no authority from Congress, and named, perhaps, in open opposition to that body. The moment such a commission is named, even under these circumstaances, the impression will be made in Europe that this commission is really representing the American government. Then if it makes recommendations which Congress disapproves; or if Congress ignores the existence of such a commission, thus irregularly named, we shall hear more from Europe about being betrayed and deceived by this country. Haven't we had about as much of this as we can stand?

If the President names such a commission, and Mr. Roosevelt approves it, and it is accepted as an authoritative body by Congress, then Europe will have a right to take the commission as a governmental body; otherwise, it will not.

Most of the bitterness against us now is due to the fact that there have been too many private citizens and officials without authority pretending to speak for America. We ought at least to be careful henceforth to protect ourselves from misunderstandings that are unnecessary.

* * *

Keeping the People in the Dark?

There is, we think, a general feeling that England is entitled at least to a reconsideration of her debt. Her action in meeting her obligation on the 15th has strengthened this feeling in regard to her. But Mr. Hoover's commission is not to deal with Enginad only; it is to deal with all the debts—to reconsider the debts of the nations that have defaulted on their recent payment. Thus before we have any assurance from France that she will reconsider her determination not to make the payment overdue, she is served with notice that we shall immediately begin to consider whether we shall scale her debt lower than the 50 per cent reduction alrtady given her. If France is thus assured, we may be sure there will be no hurry about making the payment overdue.

If, as is possible, France has implied that if first assured that her debt will be reconsidered she will pay the amount due on the 15th, it at least will be a triumph for her in forcing us to toe the mark.

If conditions are so desperate that civilization is going to collapse within the four months intervening between now and the accession of Mr. Roosevelt, our leaders are keeping the people in the dark. We do not believe that conditions are that desperate.

* * *

A Mere Mischief Maker

The grim determination somehow to drag Mr. Roosevelt into an acceptance of the debt policies and plans of the out-going administration is almost coming to be an impertinence. He has indicated in broad lines the manner in which he proposes to deal with the debts; and Mr. Hoover's present plan ignores it. It is not likely that Mr. Roosevelt will abandon his own idea as to how the debt question should be approached at the snap of Mr. Hoover's finger, even though applauded by the foreign legion in America. And in that event, with this new commission having no status whatever after March 4th, it may easily turn out to be a mere mischief maker.

* * *

Senator Wagner Observes

There is another question that the present regime does not find interesting or worth mentioning—that of the vast army of workers denied their inalienable right to work. May we suggest that the preservation of civilization may not depend on the transfer of the debts to America, but unquestionably does depend on solving this problem of the jobless. In his opening message, Mr. Hoover brushed all this aside with the observation that the federal government has done all it need to do, and more—that public work already authorized, with money appropriated, should now be abandoned.

Why?

Do we not have the assertion from Mr. Gibson of the emergency relief that conditions are far more serious than a year ago?

Senator Wagner has just called attention to some interesting facts. We all remember that the administration stubbornly fought or opposed all measures for relief and all public construction programs; that finally, on the very eve of election it yielded to the [illegible] of public opinion expressed in a congressional program. This, sponsored by Wagner, provided certain funds for public construction to put men to work; and also $300,000,000 to be loaned to states where necessary to take care of the vital needs of men, women and children needing food, clothing and shelter.

Senator Wagner observes a bit dryly, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has "not violated the speed laws" in using the money appropriated to it for the benefit of the jobless. There is another sentence in his speech we want in black letters:

Another illuminating observation of his is that of the $1,500,000,000 Congress provided so the Reconstruction Finance Corporation might finance self liquidating projects but $360,000 has been touched.

One of the reasons he finds, is that the interest rate has been fixed so high as to make worthy projects non-self-liquidating. Another is that the R. F. C. in so far as matters of this sort are concerned acts upon the theory of a private commercial bank.

Again Senator Wagner is the voice crying in the wilderness and if there is no answer but a cry, we may learn of dangers to our civilization very soon. His program we shall touch upon more fully. Just now we merely call attention to the appalling fact that while the air is full of rumblings about how the foreign debtors may be served through further sacrifices by the American people, we are hearing scarcely anything about how millions of our people are to be saved from starvation and the slow death of privation.

This may not be a problem on which the intellectuals can sharpen their wits, but it is one on which the heart of humanity may well dwell a bit.

AMERICAN'S HOME COLLEGE

TODAY'S QUESTION

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION

By DR. F. E. NULL, Instructor in Physics.

Weather prediction is based largely upon a study of the prevailing winds. The first thing that greets the eye as one looks at a weather map is that the lines showing equal air pressure tend to form circles and "whirls" around regions of low or high pressure. The air actualy is whirling around these regions, its direction at any point being given by the small arrows on the map.

In a low pressure area the air flows in an ascending "swirl" (like the small dust eddies one sometimes observes in summer on city streets). In a high pressure area the air is flowing down in a descending eddy.

It is much more likely to rain in a region covered by a low pressure area than in the vicinity of a high pressure zone. In a low the air is warm, light and rapidly rising, due to displacement by the surrounding colder air. As the hot air rises it is cooled, and the water vapor may readily condense and fall as rain.

In the region of a high, on the other hand, the air is cold, and as it descends has a general tendency to become warmer (due to the radiation of heat from the earth, contact with the earth as it spreads out, etc.). As the air becomes warmer it can hold more water vapor, evaporation is increased and it feels dry.
